THE PRIME MINISTER

I am delighted to share my warmest wishes for the 16th annual edition of British Bangladeshi Who's Who.

Since its inception, this publication has become a valued platform for recognising the outstanding achievements of British Bangladeshis across a wide range of fields. It puts the spotlight on the talent, resilience, and leadership within the community, and serves as an inspiration to many.

Your celebratory event is a fitting tribute to those featured - and to the wider community whose contributions enrich British life. Thank you to everyone involved in producing this valuable publication, year after year.

Wishing you continued success for future editions, and events.

MAYOR OF LONDON

Thank you for your letter of 11 June requesting a message of support for your 16th Anniversary Edition. I am happy to provide the following message:

"I want to extend my congratulations to British Bangladeshi Who's Who 2025 as you gather to celebrate the achievements of the British Bangladeshi community.

The contributions of the Bangladeshi community to London are an undeniable part of what makes us the most vibrant city in the world. A city that celebrates and respects its differences. I am proud to be Mayor of such a forward-looking, dynamic and global city.

I know the importance of role models, and as you celebrate your community, I know it will only continue to inspire the next generation of all Londoners, not just members of the Bangladeshi community.

Congratulations to you all, I hope you have an enjoyable evening celebrating your success".

Yours sincerely,

Sadiq Khan
Mayor of London

High Commissioner

High Commission for the People's Republic of Bangladesh
London, United Kingdom

Message from H.E. the High Commissioner

I am delighted to learn that the British Bangladeshi Who's Who is publishing its 2025 edition.

The contributions of the Bangladeshi community to politics, business, arts, culture, education, and other professions are a source of great pride for us all. We deeply appreciate the sacrifices, determination, and relentless efforts that have led to their remarkable success. The achievements of the Bangladeshi community in the UK not only enhance our global image and reputation but also inspire the next generation to strive for even greater heights.

This publication is a commendable initiative, providing a platform to recognize these achievements and allowing Bangladeshis at home and abroad to learn from these inspiring success stories. Such recognition encourages us all to pursue our goals for our families and our nation.

I gladly recognize the brilliant endeavours of the British Bangladeshi Who's Who and look forward to their continued cooperation and engagement in building a flourishing Bangladeshi community in the UK. I wish them notable success in the coming years.

(Abida Islam)

High Commissioner of Bangladesh to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland
&

Permanent Representative of Bangladesh to the IMO

Foreword from the Editor

We have now reached a magnificent 16th year for this publication. During these times of anti-migrant rhetoric, it has become extremely important to highlight the contributions that migrant communities are making and have made to this country.

This years publication focuses on the high achievers and success stories within this brilliant British Bangladeshi community.

We have, as usual, selected the brightest and best and given them the awards for their achievements.

I sincerely hope that you enjoy reading through the wonderful stories in this years edition.

Foreword from the Executive Editor

The British Bangladeshi Who's Who is now in its 16th year and what better way is there to celebrate than by highlighting the amazing achievements of this great community which is endlessly making immense contributions to this country.

This years edition promises to be as exciting as ever and has revealed some real success stories.

These role models will continue to inspire the current and future generations.

I hope you enjoy the evening and the Publication.

Shahed Ahmed

Sector: Hospitality & Real Estate

A successful businessman and entrepreneur, Shahed Ahmed has always been ambitious and clear about his vision from a young age. Born in the well-known village of Sridhora in Beanibazar, Sylhet, Bangladesh, he began his journey in real estate at an early age. In the early 1990s, he formed his first real estate business, Relax Property, before moving his property ventures to Bangladesh. He founded Shahjalal Developer Limited and currently serves as its Chairman. He also owns the landmark Shahjalal Tower in Sylhet, Bangladesh. In addition, he is one of the directors of Windsor Hotel and Resort in Sylhet.

Building on his entrepreneurial spirit, Mr. Ahmed expanded into the hospitality sector. After serving as a director of popular restaurants such as Little Venice of Windsor and Tazza Restaurant, he went on to establish Grand Rasoi Group, which includes Grand Rasoi Catering, Grand Rasoi Restaurant, and Grand Rasoi Frozen Food. Currently, he is one of the directors of The Meatery Restaurant in Edgware Road.

Today, Grand Rasoi Catering is one of the leading catering companies in London, celebrated for delivering exceptional culinary experiences and event management services. Under Mr. Ahmed's leadership, Grand Rasoi Group has become a trusted name in the community.

Very recently, Mr. Ahmed was honoured with Tommy Miah's International Indian Chef & Hospitality Award 2025 as Best Caterer in London for Grand Rasoi – a recognition of his outstanding contribution to the catering and hospitality industry.

Alongside his business success, Mr. Ahmed is deeply involved in social and charitable initiatives. He is currently serving as a vice chairman of the historical Bangladesh Centre London and vice president of Beanibazar Welfare Trust UK and an active member of several other charitable and community organisations. He is also a life member of UK Jalalabad Association, Beanibazar Jonokollan Shomitte UK and many more charitable and social organisations. Previously he has served as the founding president of the Beanibazar Pouro Unnoyon Shongstha UK and general secretary of Sridhora Welfare Trust UK.

Mr. Ahmed is also engaged in political and sporting activities, serving as a central committee member of Jatiyo Party and an honorary member of Beanibazar Sporting Club UK and standing committee member of Beanibazar Mohammedan Sporting Club.

He currently resides in Redbridge with his wife, who is currently working in the government sector, and son and daughter.

Mohammed Quamrul Hassan

Sector: Law

Mr. Mohammed Quamrul Hassan, known as MQ Hassan, is a highly experienced and reputable Barrister and Solicitor, who is the founding Principal Solicitor of MQ Hassan Solicitors which is one of the UK's leading law firms. With over 30 years of legal experience across both the UK and Bangladesh, Mr. Hassan's distinguished career is a testament to his vast expertise and deep commitment to the practice of law. Mr. Hassan was born into an elite family in Jashore, Bangladesh. Where his father, the late Advocate Mohammed Abul Hossain, was a highly respected lawyer at the Jashore District Bar and his legacy continues to inspire his past surroundings and Mr Hassan to this day. His brother-in-law, Ahsanul Karim, is a Senior Advocate at the Supreme Court of Bangladesh which is widely regarded as one of the country's top legal organisation. From a very early age, Mr. Hassan aspired to become a lawyer which deeply resonated with his father's esteemed reputation for integrity, diligence, and dedication to justice.

He went on to earn his LLB (Hons) and LLM from the prestigious University of Dhaka, graduating with distinction. In 2005, Mr. Hassan furthered his legal education in the UK, obtaining another LLB (Hons) from Wolverhampton University. This achievement broadened his understanding of international law and enhanced his expertise across various legal jurisdictions. In April 1993, Mr. Hassan embarked on his professional legal career after being admitted as an Advocate on the Roll of the Bangladesh Bar Council. By 1995, he was practicing before the High Court Division of the Supreme Court of Bangladesh. During this period, he became a respected member of the Bangladesh Supreme Court Bar Association. After relocating to the UK, Mr. Hassan continued to expand his impressive legal credentials.

In 2005, he was accredited as a Level 2 Senior Caseworker by the Law Society, showcasing his expertise in immigration and asylum law. Later he achieved two prestigious milestones: being admitted as a Solicitor of England and Wales and called to the Bar of England and Wales by the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn. Throughout his career, Mr. Hassan has worked with several prominent UK law firms and chambers, including Silvers Solicitors (City firm), Noden & Co Solicitors (City firm), GMG Law Solicitors, Patrick Solicitors, Jacob Solicitors and Srinivasan's Solicitors. He notably serving as Head of the Immigration Department at both Silvers Solicitors and Patrick Solicitors. Mr. Hassan took the bold step of founding his own practice, MQ Hassan Solicitors, in January 2012. His passion for giving back to the community is evident in his active involvement with various organisations and his regular television appearances, where he offers free legal advice to the general public. Through live TV programs on NTV Europe, TV ONE, and London Bangla Voice, Mr. Hassan provides legal guidance in both English and Bengali, ensuring that his expertise is accessible to a wide audience.

His contributions to the Bangladeshi community have been recognised with several prestigious awards, including the 'Lifetime Achievement Award' from Anirban Sangsad in 2022, an award from NTV Europe in 2023. Mr Hassan was elected with highest votes and served twice as the "Senior Vice President" of the Society of British Bangladeshi Solicitors. Elected as President of the Bangladesh Law Association UK. Furthermore, he is the Joint Secretary of the Dhaka University Alumni Association in the UK and the Convenor of the Greater Jashore Association in the UK.

The journey of Mr. Hassan is a shining example of the British Bangladeshi dream. As a first-generation immigrant, he has achieved professional success through hard work, dedication and a relentless pursuit of justice. Despite his achievements.

Dr Rifat H Mazumder

Sector: Medicine

Dr. Rifat H Mazumder is a name that reverberates with diligence, enthusiasm, and unique expertise in the medical community. As a young and talented Consultant Rheumatologist and Acute Physician, he has made remarkable strides in the fields of Rheumatology and Medicine, distinguishing himself as a key player in patient care, medical education, and clinical research. Born in Habigonj, Bangladesh, Dr Mazumder studied at Motijheel Ideal School and Dhaka College. His academic journey began with MBBS from Faridpur Medical College. He worked for the National Arm Forces Hospital in KSA and Ministry of Health Brunei.

He completed MRCP (Member of the Royal College of Physicians) London in 2014. Emigrating to the United Kingdom in 2016, Dr Mazumder worked at Mid Essex Hospital as a Clinical Fellow. His outstanding accomplishments and intense passion for autoimmune musculoskeletal disorders led him to achieve a rare opportunity to secure a place in highly competitive National Training Programme in Rheumatology and Internal Medicine in the esteemed East of England Deanery. He was one the best trainees of his time and achieved all the required competencies well ahead of the designated time frame and honoured with a certificate of completion of training six months early.

Dr Mazumder accomplished an MSc in Rheumatology from the University of South Wales. He has a Fellowship in Medical Leadership and Management from the King's College London. In his current role as a consultant rheumatologist and Acute Physician at Nottingham University Hospital, Dr. Mazumder has spearheaded numerous initiatives to enhance patient care. Integration of colour Doppler vascular ultrasound in a GCA Fast Track Clinic not only aids in making a quick diagnosis and management of this life-threatening condition but also saves a considerable amount of NHS Funds. In his dual role as an Acute Physician, Dr. Mazumder is known for his adeptness in handling high-pressure situations with calm precision and his ability to explain complex medical conditions in a way that is accessible and reassuring to his patients. During covid-19 pandemic his dedication, and ability to swiftly diagnose and treat acutely unwell patients- saved countless lives. To determine the prevalence of rheumatic diseases within the British Bangladeshi population, he has initiated free health screening events held at community hubs.

It provides comprehensive screenings for autoimmune arthritis to make it possible for many community members to receive early diagnoses and prompt treatment, significantly improving their long-term health outcomes. Understanding the financial barriers faced by many Bangladeshi students, Dr. Mazumder established a fund specifically aimed at providing financial assistance to those in need. This fund covers tuition fees, textbooks, and other essential educational resources. Dr. Mazumder's contributions to medical research are equally noteworthy. He has published many papers in prestigious medical journals.

He is actively involved in training the next generation of physicians, serving as a GMC-approved Educational Supervisor for the Medicine and Rheumatology Trainees. He is an examiner of MRCP exam. He wrote a chapter for the upcoming 5th edition of the Oxford Textbook of Rheumatology. His outstanding contributions to Rheumatology and Acute Medicine, merged with his benevolent aptitude for patient care, made him a deserving recipient of the Fellowship of the Royal College of Physicians (FRCP) London.

Mohammed Afruz Miah BEM, affectionately known as “Oldham’s Running Man”, is a shining example of how personal transformation can ignite community change. Once a maths tutor facing serious health challenges, Afruz embraced running to turn his life around and in doing so, he discovered a powerful way to serve others.

What began as daily jogs soon grew into headline endurance feats. From running 313 kilometres from Oldham to London while fasting in Ramadan (twice), to climbing Mount Kilimanjaro, skydiving, 24hr fitness challenges and recently completing the Miles4Humanity challenge 10 km every day for a year, actually 386 which is a record!

Afruz has pushed himself to extraordinary limits. Each step was dedicated to raising funds and awareness for those most in need, especially through his close work with Global Relief Trust and local and national charities in the UK!

Beyond his running, Afruz has personally travelled to deliver humanitarian aid in war-torn areas and regions struck by natural disasters standing side by side with communities in crisis. His relentless efforts have raised over £750,000 for Palestine to date and an astonishing over £3 million for causes worldwide.

His tireless dedication has not gone unnoticed. In 2022, Afruz was awarded the British Empire Medal (BEM) in recognition of his outstanding charitable work. He was further honoured with invitations to represent his community on the national stage taking part in the Queen’s Platinum Jubilee torchlit procession and being among the select few invited inside Westminster Abbey for the historic Coronation of King Charles III. Sitting just metres from the royal procession, Afruz’s journey from Oldham’s streets to Britain’s grandest ceremony became a symbol of hope and inspiration for countless others.

And his journey is far from over. Afruz has a calendar of forthcoming challenges, including international marathons, bold new cycling adventures, and a series of creative “out-of-the-box” endurance feats each one designed to inspire, to unite and to raise even more for those most in need.

Through every challenge, Afruz carries a simple but powerful message: faith, fitness and fundraising can change lives. He continues to inspire young people, families, and communities across the UK and beyond proving that one person’s determination really can move mountains, cross finish lines, and light the way for others.

Abdus Samad

Sector: Entrepreneur/Philanthropy

Abdus Samad is an outstanding British entrepreneur, philanthropist, and community leader whose lifelong dedication to philanthropy, education, and business-led community development has had a transformative impact across both the UK and Bangladesh. Mr. Samad has consistently demonstrated how private enterprise can be a powerful force for public good.

A pioneer in the early online food tech scene in London, Mr. Samad launched CurryLondon.co.uk in 2005—an innovative platform that digitised food delivery services well ahead of its time. His entrepreneurial journey has since evolved across multiple sectors, including hospitality, insurance, private hire, real estate, and technology.

As CEO of Vantage Accident Management Group (VAMG) since 2009. In 2015, he founded Medx-UK Ltd, a private hire vehicle rental company that became a lifeline during the COVID-19 pandemic, offering rent-free vehicles to over 80 drivers facing financial hardship. Through Al-Baraka Investment Ltd, he has supported a portfolio of residential and commercial developments designed to stimulate local economic activity and provide affordable housing options. In 2014 he was one of the co-founder of Love2laundry, online laundry service operating in United Kingdom, Ireland, USA, UAE, Pakistan, and in Netherlands.

His most ambitious and socially impactful venture to date is Future-desh, launched in 2024. This FinTech platform supports over 700 rural entrepreneurs and farmers across Bangladesh through an innovative shared-profit model. The initiative, backed by 130 socially conscious investors, is helping to build a circular rural economy that focuses on contract farming, manufacturing, retail, and textiles. The project places particular emphasis on empowering women, young people, and smallholders, offering not just financial inclusion but also capacity-building and sustainable livelihoods.

Mr. Samad's dedication to education and youth empowerment is equally noteworthy. He has played a key role in supporting institutions in Bangladesh through Abdus Samad Foundation including Kalam & Samad High School, the AFK Trust Islamic Education Centre, and the Ansarun Nessa Orphanage. His contributions have provided hundreds of underprivileged children with access to quality education, safe housing, and better life opportunities.

In the UK, Mr. Samad has shown exemplary civic leadership. As Chairperson of the Bengali Workers Association (2014–2019) and Director of the West Euston Project Ltd, he implemented programmes in elderly care, women's empowerment, healthy eating, and entrepreneurial training for BAME youth. These efforts have directly addressed issues of social isolation, inequality, and economic exclusion in some of London's most deprived communities.

His political and diplomatic engagement further reinforces his commitment to community-building. As Vice President of Conservative Friends of Bangladesh, Mr. Samad has championed UK–Bangladesh relations through participation in delegations, social action projects, and cultural exchange initiatives. His work has helped strengthen diaspora ties and promote mutual understanding between communities.

A committed humanitarian, Mr. Samad has supported emergency relief efforts across multiple global crises, including the Grenfell Tower Fire, the COVID-19 pandemic, and international aid responses in Gaza, Morocco, Pakistan, and Syria. He works closely with respected charitable organisations such as Fountain of Mercy and CAP Foundation, helping deliver aid where it is needed most.

He is not only a successful business leader but also a role model for socially conscious leadership within the British Bangladeshi community and beyond.

His work has improved lives, fostered opportunity, and built lasting bridges between diverse communities.

Cllr Nadia Shah

Sector: Politics/ Philanthropy

First British Bangladeshi Female Mayor for the UK (Camden) and a Global Advocate for Mental Health & Inclusive Public Service, Nadia Shah is not just a local leader — she is a global change maker. With a career grounded in compassion, advocacy, and fearless innovation, Nadia has become one of the UK's most impactful public servants. Her work in international mental health, refugee support, and community-led leadership has improved the lives of some of the world's most vulnerable people — from Camden to Bangladesh, from refugee camps in Myanmar to earthquake zones in Turkey. Born and raised in Camden, London, Nadia made history as the first British Bangladeshi woman to serve as Mayor of Camden (2016–2017). But beyond the title, it was her focus on children's mental health that defined her term. Partnering with the Anna Freud National Centre for Children and Families, she raised a considerable amount to fund SmartGyms a cutting edge therapeutic tools now used in schools across the UK to improve children's mental wellbeing, behaviour, and learning outcomes.

Nadia led a delegation to Bangladesh to highlight the urgent need for mental health services in schools and communities and helped integrate therapeutic mental health education into the national curriculum, and higher education institutions to train doctors and nurses, and helped establish Sylhet's first dedicated mental health centre. Her international work didn't stop there. When Rohingya refugees arrived in Bangladesh, fleeing genocide and sexual violence in Myanmar, Nadia was on the ground — working with NGOs and medical teams to implement the delivery of antenatal care, trauma counselling, and psychological support for amongst 80,000 women and children. delivered in local dialects and cultural contexts, ensuring dignity and respect. Following devastating floods in Bangladesh, she co-chaired emergency meetings with UK diaspora leaders and raised funds to deliver food, medical aid, and home reconstruction. After the 2023 Turkey earthquake, she led a female-led humanitarian convoy to Adana province, distributing female hygiene kits, building a playground in a refugee camp, and delivering trauma-informed support to children.

All this global work is underpinned by Nadia's relentless commitment to the people of Camden. She has served in senior Cabinet roles for over a decade, leading on Equalities, Youth Employment, Rough Sleeping, Safer Communities, and more. Amongst much more She has recently Secured over £5 million annually for Camden's voluntary and community sector Helped make Camden a Borough of Sanctuary for refugees Launched the Camden Equity Network and "Black on Board" to drive inclusive leadership Pioneered policies for violence against women and girls, community safety, and anti-racism.

Chairs the Interfaith Leaders Network - ensuring cohesion between faith leaders Her leadership style is defined by presence. Whether connecting the UK with networks abroad, sitting with families affected by trauma, or coordinating international aid responses, Nadia leads with empathy, not ego.

She believes, "It's not about programmes. It's about people." And she lives that every day.

As a powerful advocate for mental health and cross-cultural public service, Nadia Shah represents a new kind of leadership: one rooted in lived experience, informed by community voices, and driven by a deep belief in human dignity. Whether rebuilding lives after war and disaster, or opening doors for young people and women close to home, Nadia's work is reshaping what public service can look like 'compassionate, inclusive, and global.

Growing up in an army family, He learned discipline, focus, and resilience at an early age—qualities that have remained at the heart of his professional and personal journey. These values have guided him across continents and shaped nearly two decades of work in the Higher Education sector in the UK.

He began my career in 2006 as a Student Engagement Officer at Guildhall College. It was there that he discovered my lifelong passion: helping students achieve their educational and professional ambitions.

In 2019, he co-founded Smart move Education and Kampus Group, organisations dedicated to transforming the student journey from admissions to career development. Today, as Chairman, he lead a dynamic team of more than 400 staff across 14 international branches. Together, we guide thousands of students each year in choosing the right courses, developing employability skills, and stepping into thriving careers. This work is deeply rewarding and reflects his belief that education is not just about degrees—it's about futures. The opportunity to see students progress from their first enquiry to a successful career continues to inspire me every single day.

As a public speaker and motivational coach, he had the privilege of inspiring audiences across the world, hosting large international events, and sharing practical insights on leadership, education, and business growth. His work as a business analyst also allows him to support organisations in achieving sustainable success, reinforcing my dedication to both personal and professional growth.

Beyond his professional life, he holds a deep connection with his community. For over 15 years, he has actively supported the Bengali sports community in the UK, particularly through cricket. From participating in recreational leagues to sponsoring tournaments such as the Bangladesh District Cup, he sought to empower young athletes and create platforms for them to thrive. As a grassroots funder and sponsor of new teams, he takes pride in nurturing talent from the ground up, helping local players and clubs find their footing and grow. Supporting sport is more than a pastime for me—it is a way of giving back, fostering teamwork, and building opportunities for the next generation.

At every stage of my journey. Whether through education, mentoring, business, or community service, his purpose has been to open doors for others and to leave a positive, lasting impact. Looking ahead, he remains committed to expanding opportunities globally and creating pathways that allow future generations to thrive.

Jamal Ahmed is a globally recognised privacy thought leader, bestselling author, and visionary entrepreneur whose extraordinary journey has redefined what is possible for professionals and businesses navigating the digital age. Celebrated as the “King of Data Protection,” Jamal has empowered more than 70,000 professionals across 137 countries to turn complex privacy challenges into opportunities for growth, trust, and innovation.

Born to a family from Biswanath, Sylhet, Jamal grew up in Manchester before moving to London as a teenager. The resilience, discipline, and sense of community instilled by his parents remain the guiding principles of his work today. Their values inspired him to pursue a path of excellence that would carry the pride of the British Bangladeshi community onto the global stage. Jamal earned a BA (Hons) in Business with Law from Kingston University, where he built the academic foundations for his career at the intersection of business and regulation. He went on to achieve the CIPP/E, CIPT, and CIPM certifications from the International Association of Privacy Professionals, earning the distinguished title of Fellow of Information Privacy (FIP). A certified Prince2 Practitioner and Master NLP Practitioner, Jamal combines technical expertise with strategic leadership and human insight - qualities that distinguish him as one of the foremost privacy professionals of his generation.

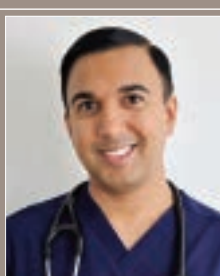

He founded Kazient Privacy Experts, a trusted consultancy serving governments, multinationals, and SMEs, and later launched the Privacy Pros Academy, a global training and mentorship platform. Through his pioneering Easy Peasy Methodology, Jamal has turned some of the world's most complicated regulations, including the GDPR and Saudi Arabia's PDPL, into clear, actionable guidance. His mentees - from Uber drivers and paralegals to project managers - have gone on to secure six-figure privacy leadership roles, reshaping their lives and careers.

Jamal's contributions have earned him wide recognition. In 2025, he was honoured as a Freeman of the City of London. He has been profiled by the BBC, celebrated by Forbes, and named among the Top 100 Most Influential People in Data Privacy 2025. His Amazon best-selling book, The Easy Peasy Guide to the GDPR, has become an essential reference for professionals worldwide, praised for making the complex simple and the daunting accessible.

Equally dedicated to philanthropy and community empowerment, Jamal has raised over £317,000 for 27 charities supporting humanitarian causes across the UK and abroad. He has also created spaces for connection and growth through initiatives such as the Pizza Powwow networking events and the KSA Privacy Pros Network. His partnership with Muslim Aid reflects his belief in combining professional expertise with service to the community.

As host of the acclaimed Privacy Pros Podcast and a sought-after international keynote speaker, Jamal continues to shape conversations at the highest levels on privacy, governance, and the responsible use of AI. For him, privacy is not merely compliance; it is about protecting dignity, building trust, and unlocking opportunity.

Dr Koyes Ahmed is an NHS GP and Urgent Care Doctor from Bristol and is also the Chief Medical Officer of Duty Doctor (www.dutydoctor.com) - a private, online GP provider, on a mission to create an affordable, accessible and trusted healthcare service, that is open to everyone. Dr Ahmed was the original Founder & CEO of Duty Doctor, before successfully selling the company in September 2025, although he still retains a senior position within the organisation.

Dr Ahmed qualified in 2007 from St Bartholomew's and The Royal London Hospital School of Medicine & Dentistry, with two degrees - an MBBS Bachelor of Medicine, Bachelor of Surgery, and a BSc (Hons) in Experimental Pathology; subsequently, he obtained two postgraduate clinical diplomas - in Child Health (DCH) and Obstetrics and Gynaecology (DRCOG), and a postgraduate specialty certificate in General Practice, the MRCGP (Membership of the Royal College of General Practitioners).

During his time at Medical School, Dr Ahmed was the President of the Queen Mary Bengali Society - thought to be the largest university Bengali society in the country at the time - and Vice President of SAMDA (Student Assisted Medical & Dental Applicants) - helping underprivileged students gain access to Medicine and Dentistry.

During his GP training, he was Vice-Chair, then Chair of the Severn GP Trainees Committee - and was involved in the training of over 300 junior doctors in the region. With an extensive background in Medicine, Dr Ahmed has twenty-four years of education, training and experience in healthcare, and has been a doctor for eighteen years, a GP for thirteen years and has worked in the NHS, the UK private sector (as a Regional Lead GP), and internationally (as a Lead GP and a Medical Director) in Abu Dhabi and Dubai. During his time abroad, Dr Ahmed was reportedly the youngest Medical Director of any Western-style facility in the whole of the UAE.

As well as being the Chief Medical Officer of Duty Doctor, Dr Ahmed currently works in the local NHS Out-Of-Hours GP service in Bristol and is one of the Clinical Co-Ordinators; when in this role, he oversees the clinical operations in an area covering over a million people.

Dr Ahmed's previous roles outside of healthcare have included being a Vice-Chair and Executive Committee member of BMSLG - Bristol Muslim Strategic Leadership Group - and a School Governor at Mangotsfield Church of England Primary School.

For his work during the COVID pandemic, Dr Ahmed was highlighted by the Mayor of Bristol as a “Hidden Hero” and was recognised by the British Asian Trust as a “British Asian Hero”. During this time, he also started to develop a social media presence, and remains active on Facebook, Instagram and LinkedIn, in particular.

In addition to the above, Dr Ahmed has been featured by the BBC, ITV and Sky News, as well as various other media outlets, and he has participated in a number of NHS videos and campaigns.

Outside of work, Dr Ahmed likes to spend time with his family, eating out, theatre and travelling, and enjoys a number of different sports, as well as being an avid fan of Liverpool FC.

Dr. Syed Mashuk Ahmed is a distinguished physician, community leader, and social activist whose life's work reflects a profound dedication to healthcare, education, business, and social welfare.

With an illustrious career spanning medicine and community service, he has built a reputation as a bridge-builder between professional, cultural, and charitable spheres, both in Bangladesh and the United Kingdom.

As a medical professional, Dr. Ahmed is a proud Member of the Bangladesh Medical & Dental Council (BMDC) and the Bangladesh Medical Association in the UK Limited (BMA UK). Beyond his medical career, Dr. Ahmed has played a pivotal role in business and commerce. He is a Life Member of the British Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce and Industry (BBCCI) and currently serves as an Executive Committee Member of the BBCCI London Region. His involvement in this influential organization underlines his belief in fostering entrepreneurship, strengthening businesses, and empowering the British-Bangladeshi community in the UK.

Deeply passionate about education and social progress, Dr. Ahmed has been instrumental in founding and supporting several inflations. He is a Founder Member of the Bangladesh Female Academy in Derai (BFA), dedicated to empowering women through education, and a Founder Member of the Eye Care Centre in Derai, which provides vital medical services to underserved populations. As a Trustee of the Brihotthor Sylhet Education Trust and the Valarie Taylor Trust, he has continuously supported initiatives that expand educational opportunities and improve healthcare access.

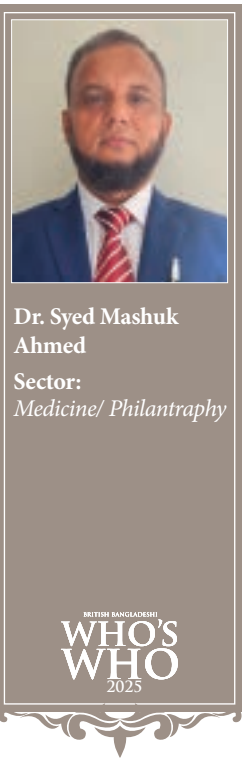

Dr. Ahmed's philanthropic commitments extend to healthcare institutions as well. He is a Life Member of the Beani Bazar Cancer Hospital, supporting critical cancer care facilities, and a Member of the Friends of National Heart Foundation Sylhet (FNHFS), promoting cardiac health services in Bangladesh.

Within the Bangladeshi Diasporas, he is a respected leader and advocate. Dr. Ahmed is the Treasurer of the Bangladesh Probashi Kallyan Parishod (BPKP), Life Member of the London Bangla Press Club (LBPC), and Executive Member of the Derai Shallah Cultural and Welfare Association UK. Sherin Akhtar is the Lord Mayor of Chester, a Politician whose life is a great example of compassion, strength, of sacrifice and challenge.

Sherin was born in Oldham, to Shah Hushiar Ullah and late Parvin Akhtar. Sherin completed her A Levels at Oldham Sixth Form College and continued in education at University, reading BA (Hons) in Social Science, majoring in Politics. After starting her family, Sherin completed her Masters (MA) in Social Work.

Sherin's family roots are from Bishwanath, Sylhet and as a young girl, Sherin's family emigrated to Bangladesh for almost two years. Attending primary school and Madrasa, Sherin excelled in her studies.

This experience shaped Sherin's worldview and inspired her to take her chosen career path and consequently her involvement in politics. She is determined to help others and create positive outcomes in the lives of people she meets.

Working in local government from a young age gave her valuable insights into the changing nature of local issues and how working together can lead to positive outcomes.

Sherin's grandfather arrived in the UK in the 60's and he taught her the values of empathy and community service from a young age. Her father, a prominent figure and a social and political activist has dedicated his whole life for the betterment of his community in Oldham and in Bangladesh.

Sherin's political career began in 2023, when she became the first British Bangladeshi to become a Borough Councillor. She also made history by winning a seat from another Councillor who had been in position for over 23 years. Sherin is the BAME officer for Chester constituency Labour party, notably also the only person of BAME background to become an executive member.

Sherin became the 808 th Lord Mayor of Chester this year 2025 - 2026. Again, making history, as she is the first British Asian to become the Lord Mayor of the city.

Sherin is also a working member of Cheshire Fire Authority and she is a Parish Cllr.

Sherin lives in the great city of Chester. She has two children a boy (Safwan) and a girl (Dhuha). Her son is her mayoral consort (youngest on record) and he starts his A levels this year. As a family they love the great outdoors, walking coastal areas and woodland. They enjoy traveling and have visited many countries however their favourite place to visit remains to be Saudi Arabia.

Shibley Alam's story is one of courage, service, and dedication to her community. Born in the vibrant city of Sylhet, Bangladesh, Shibley grew up in a close-knit family filled with love and tradition. Her father, the late Mohammed Arfan Ullah, moved to the United Kingdom as a young boy with his parents and worked his way up to become a respected businessman.

Shibley has one sister and 4 brother.

At just eight years old, Shibley moved to the UK with her mother, Shamraz Bibi, her sister, and one of her brothers to join her father. Settling in Hyde, Greater Manchester, she began a new life in a new country. In Romiley and attended Romiley Primary School, then Marple Hall Grammar School and later Hopwood College, adapting quickly to her new surroundings. She always got support from her father and family. Among her early achievements, she proudly became the first Bangladeshi girl in Hyde to pass her driving test—a moment that symbolised independence and confidence in her adopted home.

Family has always been at the centre of Shibley's life. She married Mohammed Khairul Alam, an ambitious entrepreneur who moved from Bangladesh to the UK in 1996. Khairul built a successful catering business and later opened a travel agency, earning respect throughout the community. Together, they have four children who reflect their parents' dedication to education and achievement. Their eldest graduated with honours from the University of Manchester, their second daughter is studying at the University of Leeds, and their youngest attends the University of Liverpool.

The couple has faced challenges with courage and unity. When Khairul suffered a serious stroke, they temporarily moved back to Bangladesh to honour his wish for recovery there. This experience, though difficult, strengthened their bond and highlighted their shared resilience.

Professionally, Shibley has devoted more than two decades to education, nurturing young minds and fostering inclusive learning environments. Her teaching journey spans both the UK and Bangladesh, with impactful roles at John Scurr Primary School in London, Heybrook Primary School in Rochdale, the British Bangladesh School in Sylhet, and Dowson Primary School in Tameside.

Beyond the classroom, Shibley has been a driving force in community engagement. Her commitment began with the Hyde Bangladesh Welfare Association, where she served for over four years. Since 2018 she has worked with Diversity Matters North West, focusing on promoting inclusion, supporting vulnerable groups, and strengthening social cohesion.

In 2019, Shibley made history as the first female Bangladeshi councillor in Tameside, representing the Hyde Werneth ward. Her leadership and dedication earned her the role of Deputy Mayor, and in 2025 she was elected as the Civic Mayor of Tameside.

Hari Gopal Das FCCA is a distinguished Chartered Certified Accountant and one of the most prominent Bangladeshi cultural activists in the United Kingdom. Born and raised in Chittagong, Bangladesh, he pursued his academic foundation in accounting at the University of Chittagong, where he obtained a master's degree in accounting. With a strong passion for professional excellence, he later moved to London, where he studied and qualified as a member of the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA) in 2003.

For more than two decades, Mr. Das has been practicing as a professional accountant, serving a wide range of clients from individuals to businesses across sectors. Beyond his professional career, Hari Gopal Das is celebrated as a trained classical singer and cultural leader. His versatile repertoire includes Rabindra Sangeet, Nazrul Geeti, and a wide selection of patriotic and traditional Bengali songs. Through his music, he has been a strong advocate of cultural preservation, ensuring that younger generations of British Bangladeshis remain connected to the rich artistic traditions of their heritage.

Mr. Das is currently the President of Soyttan School of Performing Arts, which is recognised as one of the leading music schools in the Bangladeshi community in the UK. Every Saturday, he dedicates his time to providing structured music tuition, nurturing both children and adults in the discipline of classical and modern Bengali music. Under his guidance, Soyttan has become a hub of learning, cultural pride, and artistic excellence. In addition, he serves as Vice President of Bangladesh Udichi Shilpi Gosthi, UK, where he plays a central role in organizing cultural programmers, festivals, and events that celebrate Bangladeshi art, music, and heritage.

Alongside his cultural leadership, Hari Gopal Das has always been active in charitable and social work. He has supported numerous causes in both the UK and Bangladesh, from fundraising for humanitarian relief to contributing towards education and community development. His involvement reflects a deep sense of social responsibility, a value he carries across all aspects of his life.

Balancing the worlds of finance, music, and community service, Mr. Das represents the multidimensional success story of the British Bangladeshi diaspora. His journey demonstrates that professional achievement and cultural passion can go hand in hand, enriching not only personal life but also society at large. For him, accountancy is a career of discipline and precision, while music and activism are pathways of creativity and service — together forming a life of balance, harmony, and contribution.

Today, he continues to inspire as a role model for British Bangladeshis, proving that one can excel professionally while also making meaningful contributions to culture and community. Through his work as an accountant, his performances as a singer, and his tireless dedication as a cultural activist, Hari Gopal Das has established himself as a respected figure whose impact is felt across both the professional and cultural spheres of the United Kingdom.

Uday Sankar Das born into a respected and culturally rich family in Chattogram, Uday Sankar Das grew up surrounded by art, literature, and heritage. He completed his education in his hometown, earning a Master's degree in Accountancy from the University of Chittagong. Yet, it was not numbers alone that shaped his destiny—his heart belonged to the rhythm of words.

From the tender age of seven, under the gentle guidance of his father, Uday stepped onto the stage to recite Tagore's iconic poem Beerpurush. From then on, his love for the art only deepened, and he became a familiar voice at school, college, and university cultural events.

In 1971, during the Liberation War of Bangladesh, Uday and his family took refuge in India. There, he joined Oxfam's refugee relief programme, entrusted with visiting camps, assessing needs, and reporting back to Oxfam headquarters in Oxford. He recalls this humanitarian work as one of the most rewarding experiences of his life.

At 25, Uday arrived in the UK to pursue further studies. He completed his professional accountancy qualifications and worked with a mid-sized firm in the City of London. But alongside his career, he remained deeply immersed in cultural life. In London, he became one of the few Bangla reciters active in the diaspora, performing across Bangladesh, India, the UK, USA and Canada. His voice graced television screens in all three countries, bringing poetry to life for audiences near and far.

Uday's talents, however, extend well beyond recitation. He is a familiar voice to many as a radio broadcaster, having worked for over two decades with the BBC World Service, Bangla Section. Among his most memorable moments were breaking the news of Princess Diana's tragic accident and later covering her funeral.

A keen sportsman in his youth, Uday has attended numerous international sporting events, his enthusiasm undimmed. His other great love is drama. He first acted in a full-length stage play while in Class 6, during the birth centenary of Rabindranath Tagore. From school productions in English and Bangla to college performances, and later, decades of involvement in Bangla theatre in the UK, Uday has remained a devoted thespian and organiser.

As a writer, he has contributed columns in both English and Bangla to newspapers in Bangladesh and Britain, covering topics from global politics to culture and sport. His interview with former WTO Director Pascal Lamy was published in an English daily in Bangladesh, showcasing his journalistic flair. Service to community has been another hallmark of his life. As a dedicated Rotarian, Uday has supported numerous charitable projects worldwide, earning the prestigious Paul Harris Fellowship. He also served two terms as President of the Rotary Club of Tower Hamlets, London.

Despite his many public roles, Uday takes greatest pride in his family. His elder daughter, Ishita, is a Consultant in Obstetrics and Gynaecology in the NHS, while Namrata, with degrees in Economics and Accountancy, works at ITV managing finance for the programme This Morning. His wife, Shelly, dedicated over three decades of service as a Health Advocate with the NHS in East London before her retirement.

Today, Uday Sankar Das is widely respected as a cultural icon within the British Bangladeshi diaspora — a man whose life has woven together art, service, and family with equal devotion.

These projects not only demonstrate his sharp business acumen but also reflect his commitment to entrepreneurship and local economic growth.

Equally significant are Mr. Haque's contributions to education. In the early 2000s, he founded Neuron Educare, which quickly emerged as one of London's most trusted student consultancy firms. At a time when international student consultancy was still developing, Neuron Educare distinguished itself by setting new standards of professionalism, integrity, and reliability. Over the years, the firm has guided thousands of students in securing placements at universities across the United Kingdom and abroad. For many, Neuron Educare became a trusted bridge between ambition and achievement, offering comprehensive support in admissions, applications, and career advice.

Building on this foundation, Mr. Haque expanded his involvement in the education sector through initiatives such as Selcatia Education. More recently, he launched Study Match, a forward-thinking platform that connects students with the right educational opportunities in an increasingly competitive global environment. By embracing digital innovation while keeping student welfare at the heart of its mission, Study Match reflects Mr. Haque's ability to adapt to evolving needs and lead with creativity and foresight.

Mr. Haque's dual achievements in both property and education mark him as a versatile and resilient leader. From developing state-of-the-art office spaces to shaping the academic futures of international students, his impact spans across communities and sectors. His work embodies the values of hard work, innovation, and service, making him an exemplary role model for aspiring entrepreneurs and professionals.

As a proud representative of the Bangladeshi community in the UK, Mr. Haque stands as more than a successful businessman. He is a symbol of progress, determination, and community pride. His achievements continue to inspire not only members of his own community but also individuals from all backgrounds who aspire to create a lasting legacy. With his ongoing ventures in both property and education, MD Intezamul Haque remains at the forefront of growth and opportunity, carrying forward a vision that bridges commerce, education, and collective advancement.

Anjenarra Rahman-Huque has built a career that bridges the worlds of finance, politics, and community service, combining over a decade of professional expertise with a deep commitment to public engagement and leadership.

She began her career in commercial banking, where she spent more than 12 years progressing into senior leadership positions. These roles provided her with strong foundations in finance, operations, risk management, and decision-making. Her time in the sector highlighted her ability to lead diverse teams, manage complex challenges, and deliver results under pressure. Colleagues and peers recognised her for her professionalism, resilience, and ability to foster collaboration across departments and stakeholders. This combination of skills gave her the confidence to broaden her career into the political and community sphere.

Anjenarra is currently Chair of the Conservative Friends of Bangladesh (CfoB). As Chair, she works to ensure the organisation continues to serve as a bridge between the UK's political institutions and the Bangladeshi diaspora, giving voice to the community and highlighting issues of shared concern.

Her political involvement also includes extensive work with the Conservative Party, where she has directed and managed both local and national election campaigns. These roles required strong communication and organisational skills, as well as the ability to motivate teams and deliver results under tight deadlines. She has developed expertise in public relations, demographic research, campaign strategy, and event organisation, ensuring that political communications are targeted, effective, and engaging.

Through CfoB, Anjenarra has co-ordinated a range of impactful initiatives, most notably the Social Action Projects in Bangladesh. These projects take delegations of UK MPs to Bangladesh to work with local charities on pressing issues such as poverty alleviation, access to education, and improvements in healthcare. During a recent visit to Cox's Bazar, she saw first-hand the challenges faced by Rohingya refugees. This experience led to strengthened advocacy, which helped secure over £50 million in support from UKAID to assist vulnerable communities. Such initiatives reflect her commitment to practical, long-term solutions that make a meaningful difference in people's lives.

Beyond her professional and political commitments, Anjenarra remains dedicated to supporting her local community. She has served as a school governor for multiple institutions, focusing on raising educational standards and creating opportunities for young people.

Her career reflects adaptability, continuous learning, and the importance of applying diverse skills across different sectors. By combining her financial expertise with her political leadership, she has created a professional profile defined by both achievement and impact.

Cllr Moazzam Hussain has been a passionate champion of the Warrington community for over 45 years, dedicating more than three decades to voluntary service. Inspired by his late father, a respected NHS doctor of over 30 years, Moazzam's public service is rooted in compassion, integrity, and commitment to others.

Since 2012, Moazzam has served as Secretary of the Warrington Ethnic Communities Association, fostering understanding and partnership between the town's diverse communities, faith groups, and public institutions. He is also the driving force behind the Warrington Mela, a vibrant annual celebration attracting thousands with music, dance, food, and family activities, showcasing Warrington's unity and diversity.

A trustee of the Warrington Islamic Association since 2010, Moazzam has spearheaded major community developments. He successfully negotiated with Warrington Borough Council to acquire an old school leisure centre, transforming it into the Warrington Islamic Centre — a mosque, madrasa, and community hub serving hundreds. His tireless efforts also secured the community's own Muslim graveyard, meeting a long-standing need with dignity and care.

Moazzam's humanitarian spirit is evident in his extensive charitable work. During COVID-19, he organised deliveries of food and essentials to hundreds of families. He has supported refugees from Syria, Afghanistan, Ukraine, and other conflict zones, providing practical and emotional help.

For over 15 years, Moazzam has offered a free-of-charge A–Z bereavement service, assisting families of all backgrounds with paperwork, washing and shrouding the deceased, and overseeing burials with compassion and respect. This behind-the-scenes work has brought comfort to countless grieving families during their most difficult times.

Elected as borough councillor for Great Sankey South in 2021 and re-elected for a second term, Moazzam also serves as a parish councillor for Great Sankey Parish. His mayoral theme focuses on improving the lives of young people, supporting the homeless, and tackling loneliness among the elderly and vulnerable.

A proud family man, Moazzam is the father of four children, all pursuing careers in service and achievement.

Football has always been a central part of Yasmin's life. As a young girl, she loved the game but, at just 13, she stopped playing due to a lack of safe and supportive opportunities for girls. At the time, sessions with female coaches simply didn't exist in her community. Being the only girl in a male dominated space, Yasmin had to give up the sport she loved.

Two decades later, Yasmin wanted to reconnect with something that once brought her joy. At the age of 33, she decided to look for a place to play football when looking for a place she came across a post on the Muslimah Sports Association (MSA) Facebook page offering one final place on an FA Level 1 Coaching Course. Without hesitation, she signed up and started her coaching journey.

From that moment, Yasmin committed herself to transforming opportunities for women and girls in football particularly those from minority communities. She began by volunteering, growing sessions from just five participants to a regular group of 25. One of her most significant early achievements was entering the first South Asian female team, with Muslim players, into the Super 5 Women's League, an inspiring milestone in representation and inclusivity. Today, Yasmin is the Female Development Officer and Head Coach at Frenford & MSA WFC. She coaches over 120 girls every week, providing safe, welcoming spaces for players to develop their skills and confidence.

Yasmin is also an FA Community Champion, a role in which she has successfully recruited and mentored more than 60 female coaches. Many of these women are now delivering sessions in their own communities, further multiplying Yasmin's impact and helping to grow the grassroots game.

Her influence reaches beyond the pitch. As a London FA Council Member and part of the Women and Girls Advisory Group, Yasmin plays an active role in shaping policy and programmes to make football more inclusive. Her story and achievements have been recognised nationally, and she has received numerous awards including the Asian Sports List Award, Essex FA County Coach of the Year, and the BT Sport Action Woman Community Award. She was also honoured as a Batonbearer for the Commonwealth Games.

Yasmin's journey has been shared widely in the media, from The Guardian and the Ilford Recorder to Sky News, ITV, BBC, and more. She has also collaborated with global brands like Nike and Adidas, amplifying her message of inclusion and empowerment.

Above all, Yasmin is passionate about being a visible role model, breaking down cultural barriers and stereotypes, and ensuring no girl has to give up football because of a lack of opportunity.

Ahmed Mahbub's ascension to the mayoralty of Haringey represents more than a personal triumph—it embodies the evolving narrative of British Bangladeshi political participation and the democratisation of civic leadership in contemporary Britain. As Haringey's first Mayor of Bangladeshi heritage, Ahmed has not merely occupied a ceremonial position but has fundamentally reimagined what representative governance means for one of London's most diverse boroughs.

Since his council election in 2022, Ahmed's trajectory through local government has been marked by strategic positioning and institutional acumen.

What distinguishes Ahmed's tenure, however, is his sophisticated approach to community advocacy. Rather than employing tokenistic gestures, he has systematically worked to elevate Bangladeshi visibility within Haringey's broader socio-political landscape.

The timing of his emergence proves particularly significant. As the UK grapples with questions of identity, representation, and belonging in the post-Brexit era, figures like Ahmed offer a compelling model of citizenship—individuals who maintain strong cultural connections while fully engaging with British democratic institutions.

Ultimately, Ahmed's mayoralty represents not an endpoint but a catalyst, suggesting broader possibilities for Bangladeshi political engagement across Britain. In an era when local government faces unprecedented challenges, leaders who combine technical competence with authentic community connection become increasingly vital to democratic resilience and renewal.

His vision has always gone beyond business. He believes deeply in giving back to his homeland and to society. He contributed to the establishment of the first Habiganj Diabetics Hospital, helping provide essential healthcare to countless patients.

In 2014, in memory of his beloved parents, he founded the AK Education Trust. Every year, the trust Eyarun Nessa is a British Bangladeshi woman whose journey from a deprived council estate in Yorkshire to national recognition has been defined by breaking barriers and amplifying unheard voices.

The eldest of six siblings, she grew up carrying duty and sacrifice, often putting a band-aid over her own struggles and leading without a blueprint. Married for over 20 years to her husband from Bangladesh, she has also navigated cultural and linguistic complexities that sharpened her resilience and deepened her commitment to others.

From coding rooms to football pitches, Eyarun has broken new ground at every step. She entered computer programming as the only British Bangladeshi woman at the time, navigating a male-dominated space where she faced microaggressions and subtle biases but refused to be diminished.

She carried that same fire into sport working with Bradford City Football Club and completing the Yorkshire Three Peaks, expanding representation for South Asian women. Her achievements were recognised with the Asian Sporting Heritage Award, cementing her role as a pioneer.

Today, she is recognised as a community powerhouse: shaping strategy, championing inclusion, and leading creative projects that unite thousands across Bradford and beyond. As a Co-Founder, CEO, and board member, she has worked with the NHS, local councils, schools, mosques, and the voluntary sector to break down barriers and build belonging. Her leadership has been honoured with a Bradford 2025 Community Pillar nomination. She has also hosted British Bangladeshi award events and was featured by Walker Morris, one of the UK's leading law firms, in a programme that spotlighted inspiring leaders who are challenging stereotypes and driving change across the country.

With a strong background in filming, editing, and photography, Eyarun is the only British Bangladeshi woman in her area working professionally in digital storytelling. She is the founder and director of her own filming organisation, through which she has produced powerful work capturing and celebrating Bangladeshi heritage for the next generation - work that has been widely well received by the Bradford 2025 City of Culture and screened at the National Science and Media Museum.

Alongside this, she has been featured on the BBC's Escape to the Country, where she spoke about the importance of access to green spaces and inclusive outdoor environments. Through her creative work and advocacy, she uses storytelling to amplify unheard voices and inspire inclusion.

She wears many roles - wife, mother, eldest daughter, eldest daughter-in-law, professional, and community leader. They are both privilege and pressure, woven tightly into the fabric of her life. But from that weight, she has built resilience. From those challenges, she has drawn strength. And with that strength, she is opening doors for others and rewriting what it means to be a British Bangladeshi woman today.

Yet Abdullah's impact is felt well beyond the legal world. He is one of the most recognisable legal voices within the community, followed by thousands across social media for his charismatic way of breaking down the law. His television and online appearances have made him a familiar face, valued not just for what he knows but for the way he delivers it with warmth and authority.

Life outside law is no less dynamic. Abdullah is one of the very few competitive skiers of Bangladeshi origin, a passion that has taken him to the slopes across Europe. He is also a committed mountaineer, long-distance runner, and marathon finisher, finding in outdoor pursuits the same discipline and resilience that drive his professional life.

Charitable work has always been close to him. He has raised funds through marathons and charity ski runs for Palestine, using sport as a platform to support causes that matter deeply.

Alongside this, he continues to contribute to legal journals, combining practice with reflection and scholarship.

What stands out most is the balance he has created: academic achievement paired with practical skill, public recognition matched by personal dedication, and a career in law that feels as approachable as it is accomplished. Abdullah represents a new kind of legal professional, one who speaks to both the profession and the wider community with equal conviction.

BRITISH BANGLADESHI
WHO'S WHO

Mish Rahman (Mohammed Misbhaur Rahman) is a trailblazing political organiser and one of the most prominent British Bangladeshis in UK politics. In 2020, he made history as the first British Bangladeshi elected to the Labour Party's National Executive Committee (NEC), representing grassroots members on the party's highest ruling body. A lifelong champion for social justice, Rahman is a respected community leader, national campaigner, and voice for the working class, with an unwavering commitment to anti-racism, equality, anti-austerity and anti-war activism. Born and raised in Walsall, West Midlands whose family originate from Fokir Para, Osmani Nogar, Rahman was the first student of Sylheti heritage to attend Queen Mary's Grammar School in its 500-year history.

At 19, he co-founded the Bangladeshi Youth Organisation in Walsall, creating a vital institution to empower disadvantaged young people in the face of institutional racism and poverty. In the early 2000s, he led the organisation to deliver education, leisure, and advisory services while securing major funding and building a strong, motivated staff and volunteer team.

With a career spanning business, education, and labour rights, Rahman has been a restaurateur, worked in schools as an Ethnic Minority Achievement Officer, and delivered successful mentoring programmes for underperforming ethnic minority students. He is also co-founder of the Latifah Fultali Complex, an educational and community institution in West Bromwich, where he served as General Secretary, and has been Chair of Governors at the British Muslim School.

As National Vice Chair of Momentum, Rahman helped develop the Leo Panitch Leadership Programme, training the next generation of socialist leaders. He currently serves as Chair of Trustees for Show Racism the Red Card, the UK's leading anti-racism education charity, and is an alumnus of the Labour Party's Bernie Grant Leadership Programme. His work consistently bridges grassroots activism with high-level strategy and governance.

A seasoned political communicator, Rahman is a regular media contributor, appearing in print and frequently on BBC, Sky News, Channel 4, ITV, LBC, Channel 5, and other outlets to discuss topics ranging from Palestine and workers' rights to Islamophobia, racism, and the positive case for immigration.

Rahman is also involved in the development of the new democratic, grassroots political formation Your Party, led by Jeremy Corbyn and Zarah Sultana—a movement aiming to transform politics from the bottom up and give working-class communities a stronger voice.

Through his roles as Labour NEC member, school governor, media commentator, trade unionist, and campaigner, Mish Rahman remains a steadfast advocate for equality, justice, and empowerment across Britain.

Inaya Shahjahan is an accomplished karateka, coach, and community leader who has combined sporting excellence with a commitment to empowering the next generation. Training in Goju Ryu karate for over a decade, she has achieved her black belt and represented Great Britain at the highest levels of competition, including the European Karate Championships. She also regularly partakes in international training seminars, gaining valuable knowledge from Senseis across the globe.

In 2025, Inaya represented Team GB at the European Karate Championships, where she won both a gold and a silver medal. As one of the only British Bangladeshi women in hijab competing internationally, she has broken barriers in a male-dominated sport and established herself as a role model for young athletes from under-represented backgrounds.

Alongside her own competitive career, Inaya has worked tirelessly to promote inclusivity within karate. She is a dedicated instructor, teaching children at a primary school after-school club, and has also co-founded her own initiative within her karate club: All Girls Karate. This sector was created to provide a safe and encouraging space for young girls, particularly those from Bangladeshi and Muslim backgrounds, to engage with sport.

Her work in this area has already had a visible impact, with an increasing number of girls joining and thriving in the programme. Through All Girls Karate, Inaya not only teaches technical skills but also imparts values of confidence, resilience, and discipline.

Inaya's journey has been shaped by both achievement and responsibility. As she continues to compete internationally, she remains equally committed to mentorship and community impact. By breaking new ground as a visibly Muslim athlete and championing inclusivity in sport, she has become the very role model she once longed for throughout her own childhood.

Looking ahead, Inaya plans to expand All Girls Karate and inspire even more young women to take up martial arts. She hopes her story will encourage Bangladeshi girls in particular to pursue sport with confidence, proving that representation matters and that barriers can be overcome.

She stands as a proud representative of the British Bangladeshi community, using karate not only as a platform for personal success but as a means to uplift and inspire others.

Suluk Ahmed is a long-standing community activist and politician with deep roots in Tower Hamlets, where he has dedicated decades of service to local people. Born in Sylhet, Bangladesh, Suluk moved to England in 1976 as a child with his mother, Joygun Bibi, and sister, Moksuda Khatun, to join his father, Md Shamuz Ali. His father, a tailor by profession, had settled in the UK in the late 1950s and built a successful business in the leather garments industry from the early 1960s, establishing the family's future in London. Suluk was educated at Daneford Secondary School before studying Business at Newham College. From an early age, he developed a strong passion for sports, particularly football.

In 1977, he co-founded the Progressive Youth Organisation (PYO) football club, where he served as manager, player, captain, and treasurer. During the 1970s and 1980s, Suluk became active in anti-racism campaigns, standing against far-right threats and helping to strengthen resilience and solidarity among Tower Hamlets' diverse communities. In 1980, he joined his father in the family's leather garments business, where he worked for a decade before moving into the construction sector and later becoming a property developer. Alongside his business career, he remained committed to grassroots activism and public service. His dedication to civic life was formally recognised in 2013 when Tower Hamlets Council appointed him Mayor's Community Champion Coordinator for Spitalfields and Bangla Town. The following year, in 2014, he was elected Councillor for Spitalfields and Bangla Town, becoming a strong voice for residents. Over the years, his leadership has been further acknowledged: in 2022 – Re-elected as Councillor and appointed Cabinet Member for Equality & Social Inclusion (served two years), 2024 – Elected Deputy Speaker of Tower Hamlets Council and in 2025 – Appointed Speaker of Tower Hamlets Council.

Suluk has always lived in Tower Hamlets, where he continues to reside with his wife, Rana Ahmed, and their six children: Muslima Ahmed, Rizwana Ahmed, Fahim Ahmed, Jawad Ahmed, Ijaz Ahmed, and Eiliyah Ahmed.

Consultant in Older People's Medicine and Acute Internal Medicine, University Hospitals Birmingham. Dr. Zakia Sultana is a distinguished Consultant in Older People's Medicine and Acute Internal Medicine at University Hospitals Birmingham.

Born in Rajshahi and raised in Dhaka, Bangladesh, she is the eldest of two siblings. Her late father was a government officer, and her late mother a devoted homemaker. Her younger sister is now a faculty member at the University of Essex, Colchester, having completed a PhD in Brain-Computer Interface and Neural Engineering.

Dr. Zakia completed both her SSC and HSC with distinction at SOS Hermann Gmeiner School and College, Dhaka. She earned her medical degree from Faridpur Medical College, affiliated with Dhaka University, where she was awarded scholarships throughout her studies in recognition of her academic excellence. She then began her postgraduate training in Internal Medicine at Bangladesh Medical University (PG Hospital).

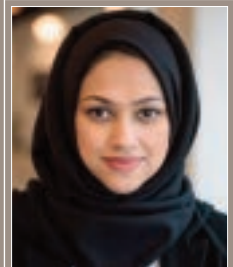

Her international medical career began as a medical resident at the National Guard Health Affairs Hospital in Saudi Arabia, followed by a position with the Ministry of Health in Brunei Darussalam. In 2016, Dr. Zakia and her family relocated to the UK, where she joined the NHS. She successfully obtained her MRCP (UK) through the Royal College of Physicians, London, and was subsequently awarded a National Training Number under the East of England Deanery—fully sponsored by the UK government. Her training in Geriatric and Acute Internal Medicine included rotations across four major teaching hospitals, with extensive exposure to subspecialties such as stroke medicine.

Beyond her clinical work, Dr. Zakia is passionately committed to mentoring and supporting overseas medical graduates. She helps them secure clinical attachments, navigate the complexities of UK training pathways, and provides supervision across all levels, from foundation trainees to senior registrars. Looking ahead, her long-term vision is to improve healthcare delivery for women and children in rural and hard-to-reach communities.

Balancing a demanding medical career with family life, Dr. Zakia is also a devoted mother of two. Her daughter, currently in Year 11 at Nottingham High School, is a 2nd Dan Black Belt in Karate, while her young son is two and a half years old. Her husband, a Consultant Rheumatologist, works at Nottingham University Hospital. She credits her achievements to determination and the unwavering support of her family, firmly believing that women—particularly those from developing countries like Bangladesh—can accomplish their goals with the right mindset and encouragement.

Outside of medicine, Dr. Zakia enjoys listening to podcasts by Islamic scholars, gardening, healthy cooking, working out, and spending quality time with her family.

Afia Adamjee is an electronics engineer, philanthropist, prominent foreign investor, wife and mother of four children. For over 40 years, Afia has been a trailblazer in almost every new challenge she has undertaken. From being the only female student in her HSC programme at MC College Sylhet, to being the only woman in her Bachelor of Engineering cohort at the University of Westminster.

Afia's academic excellence was recognised by ITN (Independent Television News), who sponsored her degree and offered her a top of the market graduate job. Since graduating in 1994, Afia was the only female engineer at Gravity Media, an industry leading firm, and she now continues to advocate for and train the next generation of female engineers in a male dominated industry. Afia's career as a highly specialised Senior Broadcast Engineer has taken her around the world. Her expertise has been demanded at major events since 1995, from the Commonwealth Games in Malaysia, Goodwill Games in Australia to the Tennis Masters in Monte-Carlo; and more recently at the 2022 World Cup in Qatar, Wimbledon and Paris Olympics.

In December 2023, Afia became the first woman of British Bangladeshi origin to be awarded Commercially Important Person (CIP) status by the Government of Bangladesh, for her contributions as a direct investor to the industrial sector in Bangladesh. Since 2017, Afia has been the Director of British Bangla Chemical Ltd. (BBCL) and invested significantly in the development of the companies' chemical plant in Sreemongal. The plant has been operational for several years now, producing Precipitated calcium carbonate (PCC), and British Bangla Chemical has become a pioneer in the global lime industry, putting Bangladesh on the map of major buyers.

Afia's contributions to the Bangladeshi community, both in Bangladesh and the UK, also manifests in her charitable endeavours. As a trustee to the Just Help Foundation, and major donor to the development of the Just Help Eye Hospital, Afia has contributed to fundraising efforts in the UK and organisation on site at the hospital in Sylhet. Afia is also the co-founder of the Adamjee Foundation, which works hard to provide accessible education for under privileged children, as well as mentorship for first-generation university students in Bangladesh. Afia has a particular passion for supporting women and mothers, and this carries over to her work in the Adamjee Foundation as she endeavours to provide maternity care for rural women.

Abdul Ahad is a British Bangladeshi who has been involved in the catering industry for nearly thirty years, and it is fair to say that he has been more than a success.

His first restaurant was opened in Milton Keynes in 1980 and since then his catering empire has grown stronger and stronger. From the moment Ahad entered the catering trade, he saw a vision to create an ultimate shrine to Indian food. In 1998, his plans began to take shape, and finally in early 2002, the dream became a reality.

Jaipur came to an end in 2018 and Ahad received the Paul Harris Fellowship award of appreciation by Rotary International.

As the former owner of the famous Jaipur Restaurant in Milton Keynes, Ahad is the man behind the largest purpose built Indian restaurant in Europe.

The Jaipur Restaurant itself is an architectural landmark building of great beauty, and one that Ahad refers to as his own 'mini Taj Mahal'. The food and the service inside is equally impressive, having won practically every available award to Indian cuisine. Furthermore, although initially Jaipur was solely an Indian Restaurant, it now houses a Thai restaurant, the Orchid Lounge, on the first floor.

For all his success as a restaurateur, he is equally as successful in other fields –one of which is fundraising for charities.

Two of Ahad's favourite causes are 'the Jaipur Limb Project' of the Rotary International and Save the Children charity.

The 'Jaipur Limb Project' set up in Jaipur, India, is engaged in manufacturing prosthetic limbs for children and adults who have lost their limbs due to disease or accidents. The provision of a new limb gives them a life changing experience enabling them to a full life in many different ways. Ahad is a major supporter and contributor to the project during the last twelve years, raising over £30,000 through the Annual Charity Dinner.

Ahad is also a high profile and integral member of Britain's Bangladeshi community and has supported the development of schools, mosques, madrassas and other charity projects in his parental village in Sylhet.

Emon Ahmed is an international lawyer who specialises in corporate, banking and finance law. Emon is currently the Chief Executive Officer of the board to the Ackroyd Legal Group.

In his early years, Emon was a commercial Director at Stirling Ackroyd. Emon started at Stirling Ackroyd at a young age and developed his career within the investment and development sector.

Having advised corporate clients for over 10 years Emon was promoted to the position of Managing Director and expanded the company's operations on an international scale.

In 2015, Emon and his late business partner Mr James Goff, founded Ackroyd Legal, a city law firm specialising in real estate, litigation, corporate and finance law. Today the group, having acquired 15 large solicitor's practices throughout the UK, some of which have been established over 300 years, has over 220 lawyers and is regarded as one of the fastest growing law firms nationally. Ackroyd's international offices include operations in the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Kuwait, and Singapore.

The group has a stellar reputation within the industry, for advising major asset funds and international finance houses.

Emon is also chairman of EA Capital. The company is a Swiss private equity fund based in Geneva with an appetite for undertaking asset management and investing in start-up companies that are early in the development stage – often with pre profit – with high growth potential. The company typically invests into a project with majority stake, undertakes an active role helping to define all elements of the target's strategy, to mature and eventually identify possible routes of exit. Today EA capital has diversified its interests to reduce risk, by investing in a portfolio made up of retail, commercial finance, real estate, and tech companies.

Emon has come from a long lineage of mature business, his family have been in real estate and hospitality since 1951. Emon's grandfather, the late Mr Israf Ali, established his first real estate business in September 1951, which still stands today, as the backbone of the group's success. In 1978 Emon's father, Mr Shab Uddin established the famous Tower Tandoori restaurant of Tower bridge, which is now in its 45th year of trade, having recently gone through extensive refurbishment. It continues to grow and flourish.

Iqbal Ahmed was born in Sylhet, Bangladesh in 1956 and came to the UK in 1971. He completed his secondary education at the City College in Westminster, London and joined the family business in Oldham in 1976. Subsequently, his brothers, Kamal and Bilal joined him and the expansion of the business began. Iqbal is married with three children, two of whom have left university to make their way in the world, one with Seamark, the other a doctor, and the third has completed her degree course at Manchester University.

He pioneered the import of frozen fish and seafood products in refrigerated containers and was the first to import the black tiger shrimp into the UK and EU. Iqbal Brothers & Company soon became the leading supplier of warm water frozen fish and shrimps in the EU with a national distribution network it retains to this day. Seamark plc followed in 1991, specializing in the processing and stocking of warm water shrimps, especially the black tiger and the fresh water king prawn. After processing and packing, these were exported to most countries in Europe, as a result of which, Seamark received the coveted Queen's Award for Export Achievement in 1998. This was followed in 1999, by the first prize in the prestigious Business in Europe Awards.

As a British investor in the third world, with the support and encouragement of DTI, a new, ultra modern factory, costing USD10 million, was constructed in Chittagong, Bangladesh. HRH The Princess Royal was invited to perform the official opening in November 2000, which she did in the presence of many distinguished guests. The Chittagong factory is operating at full capacity and has been expanded, within the existing site areas, producing value added and ready to eat products such as seafood and vegetable somosas, paratha and vegetables. In addition, two further seafood processing companies have been taken over in Bangladesh and the group now boasts its own fleet of deep sea shrimp trawlers equipped with on board freezing facilities, as well as its own hatchery where high quality shrimp can be farmed for export to the world.

In 2001, he opened their USA sales office in New Jersey and have since acquired a warehouse and a cold store in Brooklyn, New York to distribute products in North America including Canada.

In 2005, Seamark constructed a factory in Manchester on a 6.25-acre on a nearby site in East Manchester. A further development to this site involves a large Thai restaurant called Vermilion, which opened in at the end of November 2007. Vermilion features an exceptional décor and the site includes a 200 cover restaurant on its first floor and a bar with a capacity of 300 and a large private function room for over 100 people on its second floor. All three units have bars and kitchens and are capable of handling large and small events, weddings and business conferences. This complex has provided a new and much larger suite of offices and a cold store (one of the biggest of its kind in Europe with a capacity to store 12,500 tonnes of frozen food) for Seamark's associated business Ibco Limited (formerly Iqbal Brothers) who, in addition to their well established frozen and ambient food trading has opened a new venture from this site, a wholesale cash & carry unit named Restaurant Wholesale, with the aim of providing everything the modern restaurant will require.

Over the years, Iqbal has been appointed to a number of Government committees and Advisory bodies, among which are the Southern Asia Advisory Group under DTI, the Competitiveness Council, BOND (the British Council) and the Manchester Forum. He is the Director of New East Manchester Limited, the partnership company between Manchester City Council, English Partnerships and North West Development Agency charged with the task of the regeneration East Manchester. In 2006 he was invited to become a member of the Ethical Trading Champions' Group, set up under the government's Food Industry Sustainability Strategy (FISS). Iqbal represents the interests and concerns of the Frozen Food Manufacturers. The British Frozen Food Federation nominated him for the position on the Champions' Group and they submitted their report and recommendations to the government at the end of March 2007.

He established and is the Chairman of the UKBCCI.

In November 2007, he was personally invited by George Osborn, Shadow Chancellor to join his newly formed New Enterprise Council.

Imam Uddin Ahmad was born in Balagonj, Bangladesh, in 1967 and moved to the UK in 1975 at the age of eight. From a young age, he displayed great ambition, and in 1990, at just 22 years old, he launched his first restaurant in Wolverhampton alongside his two brothers, Md Jamal Uddin and Md Shahab Uddin. This initial success marked the beginning of a prosperous career, with Imam opening five additional catering outlets over the next six years, from 1990 to 1996.

In 1999, Imam expanded his business interests by adding a frozen fish and prawn supply company to his growing portfolio. A year earlier, in 1998, he had also ventured into the property market, investing in both residential and commercial buy-to-let properties. While juggling his commitments to both the catering and property industries, he eventually shifted his focus entirely to property development, recognizing its lucrative potential. In 2008, after obtaining qualifications from Manchester University, he established his own Letting and Management company.

Imam Uddin Ahmad now runs Urban Link Estates Ltd, which manages his Letting and Management operations and Urban Link Property Developments Ltd, which oversees his buy-to-let and property development ventures. His most recent business, Urban Property Acquisitions, specialises in sourcing investment properties for both UK and international investors. This company offers a comprehensive package, providing below-market property deals along with mortgage services, conveyancing, refurbishment, letting and management.

In addition to his business achievements, Imam is deeply committed to community work, both in the UK and in Bangladesh. He serves as the President of a charity supporting impoverished communities in Purbo Poilanpur Union, Balagonj, Bangladesh. Furthermore, as the President of a local mosque in Walsall, he plays a pivotal role in overseeing a £1.4 million project to rebuild a purpose-built mosque.

Imam Uddin Ahmad is also the President of the Midland Region of the UKBCCI (UK Bangladesh Business Chamber of Commerce), reflecting his dedication to fostering business connections and supporting Bangladeshi enterprises in the UK.

He is married with 4 children Amin Uddin Ahmed 34 who is Solicitor and runs his own law firm in Birmingham. His second is a daughter who is an optician, 3rd is son who is a self-employed Dentist and 4th is daughter who is studying medicine at Birmingham University.

Malik Ahmed is a restauranteur and philanthropist based in Cookham, Berkshire. Originally from Patanpara, Sylhet Town, Malik arrived to the UK in 1975 at the young age of 12. The third child of late Abdul Mumin and the late Nomira Khatun Baksh, Malik is one of four children. His father was a police officer by profession and his mother a homemaker. The family settled in Yorkshire and soon made the UK their new home.

Malik's first job was in 1977 as a waiter at a Harrogate-based Indian restaurant, Star of India. In 1978, Malik's father, Abdul, opened a restaurant in Yorkshire called Shahi Raj. Malik and his elder brother absorbed themselves into the family business and worked tirelessly to support their family. However, circumstances changed drastically when Malik's father suddenly passed away when Malik was only 16 years of age. At the tender age of 16 and 19, Malik and his older brother, Faruque, suddenly became the heads of the family. Broken by the death of their beloved father, the brothers made the tough decision to sell the family business.

A knack for business and hospitality is a common and inherent characteristic in Malik's family. Restaurants can be traced back over 150 years in Malik's family; his great grandfather was the founder of the renowned restaurant Moshrafia, located in Bandar Bazar, Sylhet. Famous for their Dhali and Bakarkhani and assortment of sweets, the family restaurant is still up and running to this day.

Malik decided to move to London and soon managed an esteemed restaurant, Khan's. He then worked in Star of India, both incredibly famous haunts in the 80's and renowned restaurants for celebrities in central London..

After 4 years of hard work, Malik and his elder brother Faruque bought their new home in South London.

In 1999, an Italian restauranteur and Malik's good friend suddenly offered to sell him his restaurant in Cookham, Berkshire. After accepting an offer he could not refuse, on the 18th of February 1999, Malik's Cookham restaurant was born. The business expanded shortly after; in 2003, Malik opened his second branch in Gerrards Cross and then a third in Marlow, a takeaway in Gerrards Cross and another takeaway in Cookham.

The restaurant has won countless Awards and is enjoyed by celebrity chefs such as Heston Blumenthal and Tom Kerridge. The likes of Russell Brand, Peter Jones, David Seaman amongst other profiles are known as friends and not simply customers.

Despite having five branches, Malik is very much a family-run restaurant. Malik's brothers, Faruque and Rumel have supported and helped him build an enterprise from the very beginning and even to this day.

Malik is an avid philanthropist, having founded several charitable organisations in his hometown Patanpara. Malik chairs Patanpara Welfare Trusts - a charitable organisation that raises funds for different local causes. From renovating mosques, to raising thousands of pounds for families during COVID to sponsoring the education of the less fortunate, Patanpara Welfare Trusts made an incredible impact on the community.

Malik has five beautiful children with his wife Farhana Ahmed Choudhary. His oldest daughter (University of Birmingham and MA Queen Mary University alumna), Anika, is a Strategy Analyst for a global, London-based real estate firm; his second daughter (University of Birmingham and MSc UCL alumna), Maisha, is training to become a solicitor with a London-based Tech company; his third and fourth daughters, Ramisa and Aisha are studying Criminology and Neuroscience, respectively, at university and his son, Aman Malik, is the baby of the family and is in Year 10.

Mr. Mesba Ahmed MBE is a highly respected British Bangladeshi community leader, entrepreneur, and social activist, best known as the Founder and Chief Executive of London Tigers—a pioneering community sports organisation empowering thousands of young people across the UK and internationally.

Born in the Sylhet District of Bangladesh, Mr. Ahmed moved to the UK in the early 1970s, following the legacy of his father, the late Alhaj Hafiz Uddin, and grandfather—both early Bangladeshi settlers who played vital roles in shaping British Bangladeshi community life. After completing his education in the UK, Mr. Ahmed began his career as a Financial and Mortgage Consultant before dedicating himself fully to community development.

In 1986, inspired by his lifelong passion for football and a strong commitment to helping young people in need of support and guidance, he founded London Tigers. Under his visionary leadership, the organisation has grown into a national force, engaging over 5,000 individuals from 60 different nationalities through football, cricket, badminton, youth leadership programmes, and employment training. The organisation fields teams from grassroots to semi-professional level and competes in prestigious competitions in UK and Abroad.

In 2011, Mr. Ahmed extended London Tigers' impact internationally by partnering in the Conservative Social Action Project in Bangladesh alongside Syeda Warsi, Ann Main MP, Syed Kamal MEP, and Nicky Morgan MP. Together, they launched several initiatives including a girls' secondary school, two cricket centres in Sylhet and Mymensingh, and the Under-16 Sylhet Football Academy. The football academy's open trials attracted over 2,000 youth participants from rural villages, with 35 players selected to represent Sylhet in the Dhaka Pioneer Football League for the first time in history. Many of these players went on to join professional clubs, and the academy's coach was appointed full-time by the Bangladesh Football Federation. The Secondary Girls school educates over 200 students a year.

Mr. Ahmed's leadership has brought him into collaboration with prominent national figures including Boris Johnson (former Mayor of London and London Tigers' Honorary Patron), as well as Prime Ministers Tony Blair, Gordon Brown, and David Cameron. He played a key role in the Big Society initiative, working alongside senior leaders from the public and private sectors.

Mr. Ahmed's contributions have been widely recognised over the years through numerous awards and honours. In 2004, he received the inaugural Westminster Local Leadership Award, followed by the GG2 Leadership Diversity Award in 2005. His impact in sports and community development led to a nomination for Outstanding Achievement at the Sony Asia Television Sports Personality Awards in 2007. Under his leadership, London Tigers has also received national accolades, including Best Community Organisation UK at the Channel S Awards in 2010. The club was honoured as the Best Asian Football Club in the UK by the FA in 2012 at a ceremony held at Wembley Stadium, and in 2014, it was named the Best Asian Cricket Club in the UK at an ECB event at Lord's Cricket Ground.

Mr. Ahmed's philanthropic leadership through London Tigers has earned national acclaim. In 2014, he was named among the Top 1000 Most Influential Londoners by the London Evening Standard, a prestigious honour that placed him alongside figures such as George Osborne, Mayor Boris Johnson, Prince Harry, David Beckham, Arsène Wenger, Ed Miliband, George Clooney, Lakshmi Mittal, Bill Gates, and Her Majesty The Queen. This recognition reflects the profound impact of his work in sport, youth empowerment, and community development, both in the UK and internationally.

In 2023, Mr. Ahmed was included in the first Honours List of King Charles III, receiving national recognition for his outstanding community service to London as the Founder and Chief Executive of London Tigers.

A dedicated sports advocate, Mr. Ahmed has also been a broadcaster since 2010, hosting Sporium, a popular sports talk show on Channel S TV on Sky, which highlights grassroots talent, community issues and events, and national sporting success.

One of his most significant achievements is the development of the London Tigers Sports Complex—a 19-acre, £4 million facility in Southall, secured through a 25-year lease in 2014. The site serves as a central hub for community sport and inclusion.

Throughout his journey, Mr. Ahmed has remained grounded in his mission to uplift and empower others. He credits his success to the unwavering support of his colleagues, family, and community, and continues to serve as a role model for social entrepreneurship, both in the UK and internationally.

Mustofa Ahmed Lucky is a highly accomplished entrepreneur hailing from East London. With a diverse portfolio of business interests spanning property, sports technology, freight, and remittance services, he has made a significant impact on both the business world and the community.

Lucky embarked on his entrepreneurial journey in the year 2000 and has since established multiple successful enterprises, contributing to job creation in the local East London community. One of his early ventures was in the digital printing and photography industry, where his pioneering efforts with emerging technology garnered substantial attention and recognition.

In the remittance industry, he has served tens of thousands of remitters across the UK and facilitated remittances exceeding £500 million to destinations like Bangladesh and other countries through his money transfer services.

As the sports technology sector evolved into a burgeoning industry in 2000, Lucky identified an untapped market in East London. He established a popular gadget buy-sell-exchange store, catering to the needs of young sports gadget enthusiasts. This venture not only provided affordable gaming gadgets to the local youth but also offered competitive prices for selling or exchanging their devices.

Lucky has consistently expanded his property portfolio, encompassing both residential and commercial properties. His remarkable success in this sector is a testament to his business acumen, strategic vision, tireless work ethic, and effective teamwork.

Despite his remarkable success and reputation in the business sector, Lucky remains deeply committed to giving back to the community. He serves as a director of the British Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce & Industries (BBCCI) and actively participates in numerous national and international charitable initiatives. His philanthropic efforts focus on poverty alleviation, education, women's empowerment, and support for individuals with disabilities.

Mustofa Ahmed Lucky is not only a successful entrepreneur but also a dedicated philanthropist and community leader. His passion for innovation, commitment to community welfare, and business acumen continue to inspire and uplift those around him.

Mr Monir Ahmed is a renowned young business entrepreneur and a community worker. Born in 1970 in Mohammadpur, Biswanath, Sylhet, He is the son of late Jomshed Ali and Mahmuda Khatun. He passed his SSC from Ramshundor High School Biswanath, HSC from Sylhet Govt College and BA from Modan Mohan College Sylhet. He holds a certificate in Export-Import System Processing and Cargo from British International Freight Association (BIFA).

Mr Ahmed has been associated in the cargo business for a long time. He started his business Cargo Management in 1987 and worked for sixteen years. Mr Ahmed came to Britain in 2000 and initiated a cargo business in the UK named JMG Air Cargo at 8 Fordham Street, London. This organization currently contributes the majority of Biman's cargo in Bangladesh. In the past few years, Biman has earned a huge amount of money from JMG and Govt of Bangladesh. With more than 60 agents all over the UK, the company gives top sales awards and training to the agents and employees every year.

Mr Monir Ahmed's pioneering business model emerged from an understanding that cargo services must remove the problem of inaccessibility to the consumers. Mr Ahmed introduced the air cargo business to the Bangladeshi community. He has not only made cargo services cheaper, but also quicker to consumers and achieved a major share in the market. As well as ensuring that he remained true to his values about the community. This achievement made JMG a leading cargo business that runs worldwide, providing door to door services to EU member states as well as parts of Africa, Asia and Canada. He has now plans in place for cargo services to Bangladesh from both Italy and France.

Mr Ahmed is also known for his charitable work and hardworking nature. Being Treasurer of Sylhet CNF Agent Association for many years. He is also known for his role as a Business Executive Member of Bangladesh Overseas Centre and the Organizing Secretary of Biswanath Youth Association. He is also one of the Directors of the British Bangladeshi Chamber of Commers.

Continuously participating in various social and cultural events he is well known for his donations and voluntary work. His organisation supported in carrying relief goods to Bangladesh during different natural calamities in Bangladesh. He is the trustee of Biswanath Education Trust, Chairman of Dar-Ul-Kuran Nazirbazar Charity Organization and Chairman of BBIF-86 in the UK. He is also the Finance Director of AL-Jamee Group of Investment UK.

Mr Ahmed is adamant to continue his community work and extend more support towards the community in the future, especially for the development of rural Bangladesh and the UK.

Mehruz Ahmed works as CEO for a Charitable Organisation. He takes a keen interest in Older Peoples issues particularly loneliness and isolation. He has launched a number of innovative projects to prevent loneliness and isolation. He is also a Director of a Consultancy firm.

Previously he has worked in the Banking and Finance Sector and in the Civil Service in Whitehall.

Mehruz is the Chairman of Conservatives Friends of Bangladesh (an organisation set up in 2006 to promote the culture, successes and values of British Bangladeshis, and to build positive links between British Bangladeshis and the Conservative Party) and a long-standing member of the Conservative Party. In his capacity as Chairman, he advises Conservative Parliamentarians and HQ officials on issues related to the British Bangladeshi Community. He has held numerous positions in the Conservative Party both nationally and locally and is a passionate campaigner.

Mehruz made political history by becoming the first ever British Bangladeshi Conservative Councillor in 108 years by winning an outstanding victory against the opposition in Westminster City Council in July 2008. In May 2009, Mehruz was quickly promoted to Deputy Cabinet Member for Children and Young People Services.

Mehruz successfully led Project Shapla since 2011. Project Shapla is an International Social Action Project of Conservative Friends of Bangladesh. Mehruz has been leading a team of 30 delegates consisting of Conservative Party volunteers and Conservative MPs/MEPs to Bangladesh, were the project partnered with local and international charities and worked in a range of areas including health, education, governance and sport in Sylhet and Dhaka.

The social action project in Bangladesh gave the delegates an opportunity to learn about international development, build a relationship and to leave a lasting legacy in Bangladesh. Through the work Project Shapla it has strengthened relationships further between the Conservative Party, British Bangladeshi Community and Bangladeshis.

Last year, Mehruz secured a visit of Conservative MPs and Conservative Party volunteers to the Rohingya refugee camps in Cox's Bazaar as part of their social action - Project Shapla. The Conservative MPs and delegates were the first to visit the refugees and accompanied by UNHCR and Bangladesh Government officials & MPs. The visit was the strongest piece of work that put the Conservative MPs in a position to call a debate in the House of Commons on the crisis and ensured the international aid and support to both charities on the ground and Bangladesh Government was increased. The MPs and delegates continue to raise this issue in Parliament and with the Government.

Outside the world of politics, Mehruz passion continues for the communities he serves, Mehruz has been involved with voluntary and public sector for over 25 years as Trustee of Marylebone Bangladesh Society and London Tigers. He has served as a school & local authority governor for a number of primary, secondary and adult educational bodies and continues to take a keen interest in Education and International Development.

Shayella Ahmed was born in Bangladesh and moved to Abu Dhabi at the age of six months. She spent her childhood and her early teen years growing up in the U.A.E. where her father worked as an engineer for a power station that provided water and electricity. She spent a few years in Bangladesh in her late teens and studied in Bangladesh.

After finishing her H.S.C. in Bangladesh, she married and moved to London. Shayella focused on being a mother to her 3 young daughters and a homemaker. Whilst raising her children, she had an aspiration to further her studies and return to education. With her husband's support, Shayella was able to achieve her goal in attaining higher education and completed an undergraduate degree in Business Management at Queen Mary University London - all whilst simultaneously raising 3 young children.

After graduating, Shayella briefly worked at LCH Clearnet, initially determined to build a career in finance. Shayella also played a major role in supporting her husband in his business ventures and contributing fundamental decisions. However, Shayella realised she wanted a career that was more fulfilling and wanted a job role where she could directly help and work with people. That sense of fulfilment was met in her current job role in the NHS as a District Nurse Coordinator. Following COVID lockdowns, Shayella realised the importance of feeling connected to her community. Shayella's involvement in the Beautiful Ladies Group as co-founder has led her to form genuine friendships with like-minded women within the Bengali community. It has also allowed her to advocate for causes she deeply cares about, such as women empowerment and erasing the feeling of isolation many stay-at-home and working mothers in the Bengali community deal with. Shayella wishes to continue expanding her reach to women in the community and create spaces for women to meet and connect.

Md Shahidul Alam arrived in the UK in 2008 and is now the Director of Cricket, Capital Kids Cricket, a cricket development organisation working across London.

A British Bangladeshi who has achieved one of the highest cricket coaching qualifications among all Bangladeshis. He qualified as level 3 coach from England & Wales Cricket Board (ECB) in 2001 and became a Coach Education tutor from 2009 under the ECB.

In Bangladesh Md Alam played at the highest level of domestic cricket from 1985 until 2000 and represented Bangladesh in 1990. He acted as National Cricket Coach / Senior Coach of High Performance programme under Bangladesh Cricket Board from 2001 until November 2006. During that period he worked with the National team, Bangladesh A team, Under 19 & Under 17 and managed junior development programmes, coach education courses, developed talent scouts procedure etc.

He also joined the Malaysia Cricket Association as National Coach to take up a special project to run the high performance programme with Under 19 side for the ICC Cricket World Cup 2008.

He is an Asian qualified ECB Coach Education Tutor / assessor and initiated T20 Asia Blaze in 2015 where local communities / leagues came together to play under the country names India, Bangladesh, Afghanistan, Pakistan and Sri Lanka.

The ECB are now looking to take this competition nationally. Middlesex community cricket league is another successful league that was set up in Victoria Park which has seen many young adults get playing opportunities on a regular basis. He has managed some national programmes including Chance to Shine and Street Chance with huge success. Projects run by Md Alam have been recognised nationally with his players, coaches and clubs receiving due credit. Also some projects featured in various media including Sky Sports and BBC. Md Alam has been shortlisted for and won many awards.

His great mentoring skills have enabled 40 coaches to gain the UKCC L1 qualification and over 25 coaches to gain the UKCC L2 qualification. Under his guidance, he has developed three coaches who are currently working full time for Middlesex, Essex & Surrey Cricket Boards and several others are working as sessional coaches across London.

Over the past 8 years, he has built up and supported four new clubs; London Tigers Southall CC, Tower Hamlets CC, West Ham Junior CC and Stratford CC. The first of the three clubs are now competing in structured leagues within the county cricket system. He is also involved with developing a junior cricket club in Waltham Forest.

He also received the National Award to Develop Grassroots Cricket in the Asian Cricket Awards 2016.

His efforts have not only been at grassroots level though, he has coached the East London Tigers team in the Lord's Taverners City Cup (formerly Wisden City Cup) for the past 7 years. This team won the competition in 2009 & 2010, with Dipayan Paul (2011) & Zain Shahzad (2012) gaining professional contracts with the MCC Young Cricketers through the competition.

One of his greatest assets is using his contacts within the business industry to raise funds for community cricket in the UK and in Bangladesh. He was the inspiration behind the International London Sixes cricket competition that has raised over £30k for community cricket in East and West London in the past 6 years.

Arif practices as a corporate lawyer at DLA Piper, one of the largest and most recognised law firms in the world. His journey to this prestigious firm is a testament to his relentless hard work and determination. Born and raised in the UK, Arif grew up on a council estate and attended a school where fewer than 22% of students left with 5 GCSEs. Despite the disruptive environment at home and school, he never gave up. Through sheer determination and hard work, Arif achieved an impressive 11 A/A* grades at GCSE and AAB at A level, securing a place at a prestigious Russell Group university.

Arif's background is a blend of British and Bangladeshi cultures, with his parents originating from the Sylhet region in Bangladesh. The rich traditions and values from his heritage deeply influenced his upbringing and perspective. Coming from a working-class environment where opportunities to excel were limited, Arif was inspired to co-found a local youth organisation. This initiative aimed to support teenagers at risk of dropping out of education and falling into crime, providing them with the guidance and resources needed to succeed.

Before commencing his legal career, Arif worked as a policy officer for the UK Government (DEFRA). At DEFRA, he worked on food security during COVID-19 and was an active member of the department's Diversity & Inclusion team, creating and delivering bespoke training sessions. During the uncertainty of the COVID-19 pandemic, Arif demonstrated remarkable tenacity by pursuing his master's degree full-time while simultaneously working for the government. Balancing these demanding responsibilities showcased his exceptional ability and relentless drive to succeed in all areas of his life.

Arif's dedication and innovative thinking have led him to build a vast network of individuals, which has been instrumental in his success as both a lawyer and social entrepreneur. This network has allowed him to make a significant impact in his career and the communities he serves. His journey is an inspiring example of how faith and a strong network can pave the way for success.

Currently, Arif is one of the few British Bangladeshis working at a top 10 global law firm. As a lawyer, he has mentored numerous students from disadvantaged backgrounds, helping them enter professional careers in the legal sector. He advises on a range of work focusing on mergers & acquisitions, group reorganisations, and private equity investments, with clients across many sectors including real estate, renewable energy, and technology.

Arif's story is a powerful example of overcoming adversity and achieving success against all odds. He is a role model for young British Bangladeshis today, showing that with hard work, determination, and a strong support network, anything is possible.

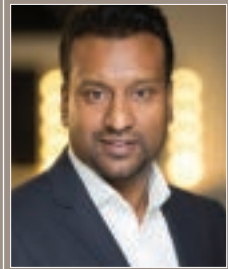

Kamru is currently the Managing Director of the District One Estates Group, which focuses on property investments. He is an accountant by profession and after graduation from University of London with a BA (Hons) in Accountancy & Law, he initially trained as an auditor in the Central London Audit Commission for some three years. Kamru knew from a young age that he wanted to run his own business and decided not to pursue a career as an accountant and instead become an entrepreneur.

Kamru started investing in property in his early 20s. By the time he was 29, Kamru achieved his goal of becoming a self-made millionaire. Kamru is one of the most dynamic and well respected property entrepreneurs in the UK. As well as building his own £20 million property portfolio, he has helped over 5,000 fellow Bangladeshi people source and finance property deals through his property and finance companies. Additionally Kamru organises and delivers property investment seminars, which has resulted in his clients and investors making substantial profits to date on their investment. All of Kamru's achievements came as the result of endless hard work and unwavering tenacity. Kamru is dedicated to showing others how they have the opportunity doing the same and is continually inspired by watching his clients, friends and family members achieve the kind of success they thought they could only dream of. Since the inception of Channel S, Kamru has appeared regularly on television as the property and finance expert for the channel. Although Kamru has amassed his wealth with property and land business investments in the UK and Bangladesh, having a financial and law education background has enabled him to own and co-own a variety of businesses. Premier Properties and Apex are well acknowledged brands within the British Bangladeshi households. He is also featured in the other mainstream Who's Who publication, including being highlighted as Young Business Leader in the 'Who's Who of Britain's Business Elite'.

Kamru has been appointed as the director of the newly formed Tower Hamlets Chamber of Commerce and Enterprise (THCCE). He is an active member of the Conservative Party and a philanthropist. He has for many years sponsored a number of charities both in the UK and overseas. He is voluntarily involved in work with the youth, elderly, people experiencing poverty and homelessness. He has also worked as a volunteer at the Citizen Advice Centre.

He was the founder member of the Newham Youth link and his companies regularly sponsor football tournaments and local football teams. Kamru set up developing village roots in 2005, predominantly to help underprivileged children get access to education in Bangladesh. In 2014 jointly with his brother Askir, they have set up Hazi Johur Ali Trust, which donates to the vulnerable and needy in Bangladesh. Kamru works in a voluntary capacity to an enormous degree and has received numerous awards for his voluntary and charity work. Kamru is a family oriented individual and is married to Rina Begum. They are blessed with 4 children. They all attend some of the best private schools in England. His hobbies include travelling, socialising, football, swimming and reading.

Mazhar Ali is a popular name in the catering business in East London being a partner of the Eastern Pride. Catering has dominated his life ever since he moved to the United Kingdom, his success continued. He was born in 1958 in Chatak, Bangladesh. Mr Ali is one of 6 brothers and sister in his family and from a young age, he wanted to make sure his family and neighbours are living well.

Ali came to the United Kingdom in 1980 and settled in Oldham and it did not take long before he could become successful in business. With very little educational qualification, Ali went straight into a kitchen and worked his way up to become a chef to develop his culinary and management skills. From the experience gained in this job, Ali became a head chef and this was a sign for his future success.

His first business venture was a take away in Somerset named Indiana, opened in 1990. This venture took off successfully and became a stepping stone in his business life. Indiana influenced Ali's next venture - Al-Amin, Dorchester, which led to his next challenge. Ali then established a take away restaurant - The Raj - in Shoburyness. Ali had created a recipe for success and his businesses continued to thrive. The Raj had risen from the ashes and became popular in the locality and to this day it is still providing in the local people of Shoburyness with quality Bengali cuisine.

Following the success of The Raj, Ali chose to move closer to London. Ali's London based ventures included, The Spice Tandoori in Plaistow. He has also entered into property business and acquired a few properties in and around London trading under Ali Raja Properties Limited.

Ali is engaged in many charitable works and help his community in many ways. In 1988, Ali helped fund the Jahidpur Madrasa and a whole new bazaar for this village. He is married to Husnara Begum, and they have four children. His eldest son, Farbez Uddin has graduated with a BSc degree in Business Economics, while his eldest daughter, Lothifa Aktar is still studying BA in International Relations. 2025

Cllr Nasim Ali OBE was the Mayor of Camden 2022-23 and had another historic year leading the proclamation of King Charles III after the sad death of the late Queen.

He is the Mayor of Camden, for the second and third time and has had an outstanding political career.

Councillor Ali was appointed Mayor of Camden, first time, at the age of 34 (2003/4) when he was the youngest Mayor in the country. Councillor Ali achieved a number of historic firsts in Camden: the youngest ever Mayor; the first Bangladeshi and first Muslim Mayor of Camden; the first Bangladeshi Executive Member; the first Bangladeshi Leader of the Council and the Labour Group; the first Mayor to have a child in office. Councillor Ali is proud to say that his first son, Rio Ali, has secured a place at Oxford University. Councillor Ali saw his role as reaching out to all sections of the community to ensure that the political process was understood by all and worked well for everyone. During his first Mayoral year Councillor Ali met the Queen and most members of the Royal family.

His most memorable moment was meeting Nelson Mandela. Councillor Ali's achievement was recognised by the Queen with him being made an Officer of the British Empire and awarded an OBE in the New Year's Honour's list for 2011. Councillor Ali's achievements were also recognised in Bangladesh where he had a reception with the Prime Minister and the President to celebrate his achievements. Councillor Ali was born in Islam Pur, Osmani Nogar, Sylhet, Bangladesh and came to the UK aged 7. He is married to Lina Choudhury and has three boys, Rio, Zachariah and Noah Ali, from his first marriage. His early initiatives included the Camden Monitoring Group (1989) to combat racial harassment and the Camden United Project (1994) to unite young people through their common interest in football diverting them away from racism, crime and conflict. Councillor Ali received one of the first Camden Good Citizen Awards. He has been a ward councillor for the Regents Park ward since May 2002. Councillor Ali is a Board member of the St Andrew's Holborn Charities, St Pancras Thanet St Trust, Governor of Camden and Islington NHS Trust and Vice Chair of Camden Community Centre's Consortium (C4). In the past he has been an advisor to the Metropolitan Police, Prince's Trust, King's Cross SRB Board and a Governor for Westminster Kingsway College. He was also the Chair of the Healthy Families Partnership at King's Cross, Board member of the West Euston Partnership, Chair of the WEP Planning Working Group and on the Executive Board of the Community Empowerment Network. Councillor Ali is also the Chair of the Camden Mela Committee. In 2021 the Camden Mela celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Independence of Bangladesh at the renowned British Library. In the past it has been held in Regents Park and the prestigious British Museum too.

In 2007, Councillor Ali helped to arrange a reception for Professor Yunus to celebrate his award of the Nobel Peace Prize. He has a degree in Informal and Community Education from the University of Kent. Since 2001 he has been the Chief Executive of the King's Cross Brunswick Neighbourhood Association.

Tariq Ali is a British entrepreneur and former civil servant with a 20-year career spanning government, commerce, and global investment negotiation.

In recent years, Tariq has focused on building a complex, multi-vertical business platform built on brand heritage, intellectual property, and industry-shaping vision. The venture has been legally engineered with elite counsel, Bird & Bird LLP, and already holds extensive protections across international markets.

Developed over two years, the business reflects a high-level strategic build designed to shape its sector through innovation, a tightly structured legal architecture, and execution defined by clarity, selectivity, and signal over noise. Tariq began his career in the Ministry of Justice at age 18 and was later headhunted by Sir Paul Jenkins KC, Director-General at the MoJ. He was promoted to Headquarters within the Legal Directorate, where he worked alongside government lawyers and those from the Treasury Solicitor's Department on national level litigation, constitutional, and data protection matters. His work earned him formal recognition as a Young Achiever by the Ministry and an invitation to Buckingham Palace.

He later joined the Secretariat to the Criminal Procedure Rule Committee, chaired by the then Lord Chief Justice. Following over a decade in public service, Tariq transitioned into entrepreneurship — founding multiple London-based companies, including a medico-legal firm in Harley Street, a law-translation firm in Kensington, and a series of health and wellness businesses where he developed proprietary product formulations to meet contemporary consumer needs in the UK and selected European markets.

Tariq has rapidly established himself as a founder with advanced experience in intellectual property and brand creation, having independently led the legal and commercial configuration of a portfolio of protected marks and global domains as part of a tightly executed business model.

Tariq was invited by the Prime Minister's Office of Bangladesh as one of four UK delegates to attend a global investment summit in Dhaka, where he was present during state-level trade negotiations between Bangladesh and the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

He has also advised senior ministers and ambassadors on UK market entry — including for a leading South Asian electronics brand — and served as Secretary General (London) for the UK Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce & Industry (UKBCCI) from 2019 to 2024. Tariq remains active across international trade, investment diplomacy, and brand development — with a focus on high-barrier ventures built around intellectual property and tech-led consumer ecosystems.

Entrepreneur and celebrity chef Shakur Ali is one of the leading Bangladeshi businessmen in the UK where he owns the award-winning Jaflong restaurant in Market Square of Bicester Town in Oxfordshire. He has other business interests in Sylhet, Bangladesh. Mr Shakur Ali is a prominent and well respected member of the Bangladeshi community and serves on the management committee of various voluntary and not-for profit organisations including the Bicester and District Chamber of Commerce, Bangladesh Caterers Association and Oxfordshire Bangladeshi Association. He is the founder member of the OBA and is very committed to promoting the rich cultural heritage of Bangladesh.

Mr Shakur Ali is a founding chairman of Bicester Muslim society. Mr Shakur Ali is a vice president of BCA and a Director of Bangladesh-British Chamber of Commerce. He has full heartedly devoted himself for the service of BCA, BBCC and his local organisations. In the last few years, he has proactively participated in the trade delegation visits to Bangladesh and most recently he took part in a successful trade mission to Bangladesh with the senior members of BBCC. He also played a vital role in co-hosting a seminar in Oxford with the Oxfordshire Bangladeshi Association for the first Bangladesh ICT delegation in 2002. He and his local organisation fully supported the first ever trade exhibition "Bangladesh Expo 2005" in London, which was organised by the BBCC. Mr Shakur Ali is the founder of Shakur Education Trust which provides financial support to improve education in the Dulabazar area where he grew up. He is regularly reported in the local press for his charity work, in Bangladesh and UK.

Mr Shakur Ali is extremely fortunate and grateful for the continuing support from his family. They have three sons and two daughters. Their first, Dilwar Ali, graduated from the university of Cardiff. He is now involved with the family business. Their second son, Shahin Ali is an optician engineer and their third son is studying Performing Arts at college in Oxford.

Syed Maruf Ali is an Assistant Head of Key Stage 4 (Year 10 and 11) at a prominent secondary school in Oldham, Greater Manchester and a community activist who has inspired many children and young people from deprived backgrounds in Oldham.

Maruf, hails from a highly respected Syed family in Kalaborpur (Syed Mir Bari) in Nabiganj Upazila of Habiganj district. In 1986, Maruf moved to the UK at the age of 10 with his parents and siblings to settle in Oldham. Upon arrival in the UK, he faced many challenges, least of all the language barrier together with racism which was rife in the 1980s. Despite these challenges, Maruf did not allow these difficulties to hinder his educational aspirations. After completing his secondary school and College, Maruf graduated from Huddersfield University reading Business & Finance BA(Hons). Subsequently he completed numerous Post-graduate Diplomas and Management Training Programmes to complement his degree.

Maruf was intrinsically involved in coaching and managing a Junior Football Team consisting of mainly Bangladeshi boys in Oldham. The primary objective of setting up the team was to engage with a growing number of young boys who were disillusioned and risked jeopardising their future by mixing with the wrong crowd. The success of this project led Maruf to set up a voluntary organisation called SPARC (Shahjalal Physical Activeness & Recreational Club) in 2018. SPARC now has many volunteers working with young people and facilitating various sports and activities for young people in deprived parts of Oldham. Accordingly, Maruf is a highly inspiring and motivating figure for many of these Children who have benefited from the work and dedication provided by him.

Over the last 25 years, Maruf Ali has undertaken numerous voluntary roles including working for National Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders (NACRO). This organisation aims to reduce crime by supporting people in finding alternatives to crime, for example, by resettling ex-offenders and providing education and advice in communities. Linked to these experiences, Maruf is a member of the Independent Advisory Group (IAG) whose role is to act as a 'critical friend' to the Police. The IAG recommends how policing services may be, or are being, perceived by communities and how they can be improved.

Prior to taking his current role at a Secondary School, Maruf worked as a Personal Advisor for a Careers Advisory Service, helping young people aged 13-19 to participate effectively in appropriate learning - whether in school, Further Education College, training providers or other community settings. Maruf was instrumental in raising the aspirations of these young people so that they reached their full potential.

Maruf is a Trustee of a local Community Centre and a local Mosque where he plays a key role in shaping the development of these establishments by formulating and implementing key Strategies and Policies. He was also a Governor of a local Primary School, where he played a decisive role in improving the performance of a School which was sub-standard and during his tenure, the School's Ofsted inspection grade was raised to 'Good'.

Maruf is a very family orientated person and lives with his wife and two children.

Originally from Sunamgonj, Bangladesh, Abdul Amin emigrated to the UK in the late 70's along with his parents and five siblings. They lived in one of the most deprived areas of Birmingham, Handsworth. After completing his secondary school studies, Abdul moved to Swindon and set up a family business in Lechlade, Gloucestershire. Since then, they have continued to expand and set up further businesses in Swindon and the surrounding towns.

Having grown up in council estate, Abdul experienced and witnessed the life of struggling families and realised that community change is necessary to improve lives. His upbringing motivated him to pursue politics and he was first elected as a councillor for Walcot and Park North, Swindon in 2012 during local elections. This ward is one of the most deprived wards in the Borough and is comprised of many diverse communities. Abdul has thoroughly enjoyed his work as a councillor and helping members of his ward with various individual and community-level issues.

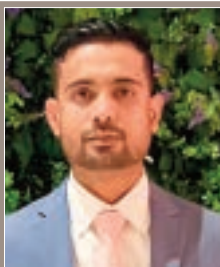

He has also enjoyed serving in a number of committees during his time as a councillor, including: Chairing the Wiltshire's Diverse Communities Independent Advisory Group for Wiltshire Police – this helps to highlight and address issues regarding, for example, recruitment and retention of ethnic minority staff within the force. This, in turn, helps to better understand the local communities that are served. School governor for a local primary school – ensuring the children receive a good quality education by scrutinising aspects of the school, including budgets and recruitment.

Also the Swindon's Rotary Club – Rotary is a world-wide organisation where members work together to better the local community and these can be through charitable events, Planning and Licensing, Dorset and Wiltshire Fire and Rescue Service and the Wiltshire Police and Crime Panel.

Abdul is very grateful to have been appointed as the Mayor of Swindon for 2022/23. One of the aspects of the Mayoral role which he is very excited about is supporting various charities. He has decided to support STEP which is a local mental health charity helping children in Swindon. His second charity is the Zam Zam Trust which helps disadvantaged families in the Sylhet region of Bangladesh.

Abdul has met some fantastic people through his roles, and he is keen to meet more people during his term as the Mayor of Swindon. He is keen to bring together the various diverse communities of Swindon and work together with the Deputy Mayor to raise money for his chosen charities.

At 34 years old, Javed Alom is an entrepreneur who has made a remarkable impact in the U.K.'s property management sector. Originally from Bangladesh, Javed came to the U.K. as an international student from the American International University-Bangladesh with nothing but his goals and an unshakable determination to succeed.

Starting from scratch, he worked day and night in physically demanding jobs to save the money he needed to launch his property ventures. With those savings, Javed secured his first property, which he sublet to kick-start his short-term rentals business. He used the income from that first property to expand, acquiring additional properties one at a time. Through relentless hard work, strategic risk-taking, and a refusal to let failure define him—even in the face of challenges like the COVID-19 pandemic—he has built a thriving property portfolio.

From his early days in the U.K., Javed has demonstrated a strong work ethic and entrepreneurial spirit, quickly identifying opportunities within the property market and boldly pursuing them.

His leadership and business acumen have allowed him to establish a successful portfolio that reflects his deep understanding of market trends, as well as his ability to navigate challenges with resilience and creativity.

This ethical approach to business has helped him build a strong network of professionals and clients who trust and respect him, further contributing to the growth of his ventures. Despite the many personal sacrifices he and his wife made to grow the business, their efforts paid off. Within few years of starting his business, Javed and his wife were able to buy their own home in London. Together, they are raising their daughter, Naia, who remains a constant source of motivation and inspiration. In addition to his professional success, Javed is deeply committed to philanthropy and believes in the importance of giving back, not only to his home country but also to his community in the U.K. He regularly supports charitable initiatives in Bangladesh. Recently, he raised money for flood victims in Bangladesh and ensured the funds reached the people they were intended for by personally delivering it to those who need it most.

Javed views his success not just as a personal achievement but as a platform to make a broader impact, both in the U.K. and in Bangladesh.

Despite being the only member of his immediate family living in the U.K., with the rest of his family in the USA, Javed has embraced his journey with unwavering determination. His motto, "keep going," embodies the relentless drive that has seen him overcome countless obstacles on his journey.

In addition to his business success, Javed serves as a role model for others, inspiring them to push beyond their comfort zones and embrace opportunities with confidence. He provides mentorship and free advice to aspiring entrepreneurs and other mentees, and he is committed to creating job opportunities within his community and continuing with his philanthropic endeavours.

He continues to set ambitious goals and is committed to expanding his influence within the sector, all while remaining dedicated to his family and his roots as a Bangladeshi-British individual. His journey from humble beginnings to becoming a major player in the property management industry is a testament to what can be achieved through hard work, boldness, and an unwavering belief in one's ability to create their own path to success.

Propa Rezwana Anwar is a British Bangladeshi television presenter, published book co-author and recent King's College London graduate, now working in Westminster.

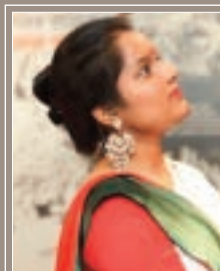

Daughter of Dr Zaki Rezwana Anwar FRSA, Propa's media career began from a young age, in her case with participation in children's programmes on Bangla TV. Thereafter, she performed on 'It's Our Day' - a popular bilingual children's programme on Channel S (Sky 777). Appearances ranged from singing and reciting poetry, to reading children's news ('Chhotto Khobor') and even creating her own brand of bilingual satirical stand-up comedy. Aged 10, she passed multi-stage auditions to sing solo at Royal Albert Hall. Passion for engaging audiences was nurtured when with utmost love and enthusiasm she began presenting 'It's Our Day' herself as a teenager - the very show she enjoyed performing on as a child.

Propa now additionally hosts 'Sunday Show' on Channel S, this TV show for adults featuring trajectories of inspiring British Bangladeshis. Propa was honoured as BBPI Jamdani Network's youngest member, to meet His Majesty King Charles III and present Queen Consort Camilla with a Jamdani sari on behalf of British Bangladeshis. Despite being London born and raised, Propa sat A Level Bangla exams early, and does all she can to promote Bangla culture. She hosts numerous high profile national interfaith events too, both as Vice Chair of Barnet Multi Faith Forum with Barnet Council's support and as Head of Events for London's Interfaith Youth Council.

An alumna of the country's top performing girls' state school (Henrietta Barnett School) in her gap year Propa initiated the social media strategy for the country's top performing boys' state school (Queen Elizabeth's School, Barnet). Next during her degree at King's College London, she was one of the youngest Faculty Education Committee members in the Faculty of Social Science & Public Policy; Propa got the Economic and Social Research Council funded opportunity to co-write a book (ISBN 978-1-8382998-1-1) with researchers about making education experiences meaningful. Here she credits her mother, late father Dr Uday Syeed Anwar and school teacher Charlotte Humphreys for instilling within her a love for academia.

Notably, Propa successfully tutored tens of young students 1:1, who passed their 11+ exams and now attend a range of well-performing schools. Propa is Governor at Summerside Primary School and spoke as British youth representative at the Transforming Education Summit 2022, at United Nations' HQ in New York. She is currently partnering with Microsoft to encourage children to learn to code by co-organising school trips and workshops.

Smrity Azad is a dedicated cultural activist, theatre artist, reciter, presenter and media personality who has been deeply involved in promoting Bangladeshi arts and culture for over 29 years in the UK. Her Father, the Late Dhali Abdur Rashid, was a Freedom Fighter in the 1971 war, which shaped her upbringing and patriotism for her country. Smrity immersed herself in cultural performances, theatre, music, and recitations, as well as being active in various political movements, including Charon Sangskritik Kendro in Dhaka. This nurtured her life-long connection to her country.

After frequently travelling to London, Smrity moved permanently in 1995, immediately recognising the necessity of creating spaces that would allow members of the Bangladeshi diaspora to celebrate their heritage. Smrity continued her involvement in the arts, combining her cultural and political roots with the contemporary creative world she encountered in the UK. As a theatre artist, she performs and assists in directing plays that resonate with the experiences of the Bangladeshi community, giving voice to stories that often went unheard. Her skills as a reciter are particularly renowned, and she has become well-known for her ability to bring Bangladeshi poetry and literature to life. Her recitations have been featured in both community events and larger cultural festivals.

Smrity continued her political activism in the UK and became an advocate for human rights, bringing to light injustices that have been overlooked on an international scale. Thus, Smrity holds titles in many organisations, including Vice President of Ghatok Dalal Nirmul Committee UK and Deputy General Secretary of Sommilito Sahitya Sangskritik Parishad UK. Smrity has also been actively campaigning for the Labour Party in the UK and has been elected as GC Delegate and Women's Officer for Blackwall and Cubitt town.

Smrity's efforts in London led to the founding of Docklands Theatre & Performing Arts in 2012, with the support of her husband, Engr Mithu Azad, she serves as the Chairperson. The theatre was established with a clear mission: to provide a platform for creative individuals with Bangladeshi culture at the heart, particularly among the youth. With Mithu being a Light and Sound Engineer, the couple combined their experience and used stage drama as the primary means of cultural expression. Their two children, Protthoy Sheikh and Priyoty Sheikh have also followed in their parents' footsteps and are actively working in the Bangladeshi community to promote the arts since an early age and have been recognised for their work. Docklands Theatre has become a thriving space where art meets activism, drawing artists and audiences from various cultural backgrounds.

As part of her ongoing mission, Smrity has travelled globally alongside her organisation, participating in cultural festivals and workshops. She has been active in her work with various charities and collaborative projects, including Rescue Aid Trust's Feed 5000 initiative. Alongside Channel S, she helped in distributing aid to affected communities across Bangladesh during the COVID-19 pandemic.

As a media personality, she has used her platform to speak on issues of cultural integration, the importance of arts in social cohesion, and the need for creative spaces in multicultural societies. She participates in television, radio, and online platforms, and was a radio presenter for Betar Bangla and Sunrise Radio. Her media connections have allowed her to bring Bangladeshi arts and politics to a wider audience internationally.

Throughout her career, Smrity Azad has demonstrated a profound commitment to using the arts as a tool for education, empowerment, social change, and to unite people across borders and generations.

Kazi Arif is a Property Consultant & Valuer at the multi-award-winning company Prime Estate Agents. He moved to the UK in 1996 to pursue his studies, completing his DMS, MBA, and DBA at UK universities. He has since obtained numerous esteemed professional property qualifications, including the Real Estate Economics & Finance Certificate Course at the London School of Economics (LSE). He is also a member of the Chartered Institute of Housing and is affiliated with several key governing bodies within the housing sector.

Kazi is not only a successful entrepreneur and property expert but also a well-known TV personality and a highly respected figure within the community. His contributions have been recognised with several prestigious awards, including: 2024: NTV (Europe) Award – Recognition for Extraordinary Contribution to Society. 2022: Voice for Newham Award – For outstanding contributions to the community during COVID-19. 2022: Tower Hamlets Civic Award – Benefitting the community through success in business and community involvement. 2019: UK BCCI Award – Contribution to the Property Industry & Community. 2017: British Bangladeshi Who's Who Award – Outstanding achievement in Property, Media, and Community.

Grateful to the Almighty Allah, his family, clients, and well-wishers, Kazi acknowledges their role in all that he has achieved and all that is yet to come. With over 22 years of experience in the property sector, Kazi laid the foundations of his entrepreneurial journey in 2007 by launching Prime Estate Agents in Whitechapel, E1. Growth was gradual but consistent, fuelled by his belief that outstanding service always stands out. His dedication paid off, and the agency expanded, eventually relocating to a larger office in Brick Lane (opposite the Brick Lane Mosque). Today, Prime Estate Agents is recognised as a leading independent agency, winning accolades such as: Best Independent Estate Agent London, Real Estate Firm of the Year, Leading Real Estate Advisor of the Year, Shortlisted for The Negotiator Awards 2017, London Agency of the Year, Property Wire Awards – Best Letting Agents in London.

Kazi's commitment to serving the community extends beyond business. He began offering free property advice locally, which became hugely popular and led to the launch of his own TV programme in 2014: The Property Show with Kazi Arif. Broadcast live every Monday (8–9 pm) on NTV (Sky 780), and available on Facebook and YouTube, the show provides free advice, up-to-date news, and discussions on property-related issues. Viewers can call in with questions, and many even arrange appointments with him directly. The programme, running successfully for nearly 12 years, has established Kazi as a pioneer in property talk shows within his community.

This year marks the 18th anniversary of Prime Estate Agents, now one of the most established independent estate agencies in London, covering properties across the M25. None of this would have been possible without Kazi Arif's unique vision, perseverance, and unwavering commitment to excellence.

Apsana Begum is the Labour Member of Parliament for Poplar and Limehouse. She was elected in December 2019 with a majority of 28,904, increasing Labour's majority in the constituency. She is now second time Member of Parliament for Poplar and Limehouse.

Apsana is the fourth British Bangladeshi to be elected to the UK Parliament and the first hijab-wearing UK Member of Parliament. She delivered her parliamentary maiden speech during a debate about International Women's Day, paying tribute to the rich history of women's struggles for social justice in East London and pledged to serve the East End constituency in the traditions of socialism solidarity and internationalism. Apsana is a member of the Socialist Campaign Group of Labour MPs Prior to her election, Apsana read Politics at Queen Mary University of London and completed a postgraduate diploma in law and community leadership at the School of Oriental and African Studies.

She was a trustee of Women's Inclusive Team, a Somali women-led charity supporting of residents faced with unemployment, school exclusion and those in need of pre-school support. Apsana worked at Tower Hamlets Council, Tower Hamlets Homes, Queen Mary University of London and the NHS in a number of roles, including as a diversity and inclusion practitioner, contributing to strategies to make the local workforce more reflective of the community. Before her election, she was a prominent anti-austerity campaigner, campaigning for public ownership, retention and democratic control. She campaigned for public nurseries and services for community languages, special educational needs and disabled children in Tower Hamlets. Since her election, Apsana has continued to champion these causes in Parliament vocally advocating for public ownership and progressive taxation.

Apsana has vehemently opposed legislation seeking to curb human rights democratic freedoms and civil liberties including the Nationality and Borders Act, advocating for unjust immigration law to be repealed and for an amnesty, recourse to public funds and work permit rights to be provided to undocumented migrants. She has also been outspoken on the is-ssues of islamophobia, against NHS privatisation and climate injustices impacting Bangladesh and Somalia.

In 2022, Apsana led a historic Parliamentary debate to commemorate UNESCO International Mother Languages Day, paying tribute to the Bengali university students martyred whilst trying to preserve the Bangla language in 1952. Apsana Spoke in Sylheti, which was the first time it was spoken in the UK Parliament. Apsana is a member of the Education Committee where she advocates around the issues of child poverty, free higher education and opposing academisation and the Prevent duty. She is the Chair of the All-Party Parliamentary Group of Domestic Abuse and Violence and played a role in the passage of the Domestic Abuse Act through Parliament. Apsana has spoken out about her own experiences of domestic abuse and violence.

In July 2021 was cleared of criminal allegations made against her, which she described as being vexatious and having malicious intent. In Poplar and in Limehouse, Apsana has stood shoulder to shoulder with local workers going on strike for better pay and working conditions including those employed by Tower Hamlets Council, Barts NHS Trust and Uber. During the Covid-19 pandemic, she raised the pandemic's disproportionate impact upon the Bangladeshi community - including those working on the frontline in the catering, private car hire and care sectors - with the Prime Minister and called on the government to prioritise vaccine rollout to ethnic minority communities.

Apsana Begum was born and raised in in Poplar and Limehouse. She is the fifth daughter of the late Manir Uddin Ahmed, former civic mayor of Tower Hamlets and former councillor for Shadwell ward in her constituency. She has credited her late father's guidance for her political activism, describing him in Parliament as having been a "forward-thinking community organiser".

Apsana was awarded MP of the Year for Young People 2022 by the Patchwork Foundation at a ceremony held at the House of Commons.

Abu Rufian Bablu was born in Molikshari, Moulvibazar, Bangladesh in 1973.

He is the eldest son of Alhaj Badruz Zaman and Shamsun Nahar Begum. Abu and his family moved to the UK in 1976 to join his father.

After graduation from University Abu began managing the family business which lead to him establishing a successful Property Company in addition to running several prosperous Indian restaurants. He reacted to the demands of his clients through the Property Company and implemented Portfolio managements and finance raising through his ARii Property Group.

He became aware of the difficulties with merchant services while working in restaurants, so he looked into becoming a merchant service provider. This led him to establish Rosenburg financial services, which is a global partner of acquiring.com.

Abu is an all round business man and has also taken shares in a health care provider and an accounting practice.

Abu is married to Momena Akthar and they have two daughters and a Son.

Nasima Begum was born in London and is one of seven siblings. Her father was a businessman primarily working in Suffolk so the family moved there in 2002. Nasima was one of the brightest of her peers, consistently achieving top grades and she went on to study Biomedicine at the University of East Anglia in Norwich, Norfolk.

After she met and married her husband Meheraj Alam, who is a businessman in Lowestoft, Suffolk, Nasima moved there. They have been blessed with two daughters, Amelia and Hannah. Nasima and Meheraj have been running the successful Indian Restaurant business Lowestoft Tandoori for nearly 12 years which has won several awards and recognition over the years, consistently being ranked highly across all review sites.

Nasima's interest in politics comes from her father who was a politician in Bangladesh for 15 years before he passed away. Her father contributed immensely to the area he was overseeing by improving infrastructure for the area, building schools, hospitals and bridges and ensuring that every resident had access to sanitary facilities and electricity. Nasima first joined a political party in 2015 so that she could follow in her father's footsteps and bring about positive change to her community.

Lowestoft Town council was formed in 2017 and this is when Nasima was first elected as a councillor. She would go on to be a councillor for one term and then take a break while raising her two children. She then returned to the council in April 2021 and was elected as Deputy Mayor the following month. Nasima was Deputy Mayor for 3 years and was elected as Mayor at the May 2024 Annual General Meeting of Lowestoft Town Council.

The best part of being a councillor for Nasima is interacting with residents and being able to support them with their needs. The sense of fulfilment in having a positive impact on people's lives cannot be beaten.

Nasima is a proud recipient of MotheRed funding which is a project that encourages and supports mums with the selection process of becoming a parliamentary candidate. Successful applicants were chosen by a group of ambassadors including Cherie Blair and Shami Chakrabarti. Nasima has also graduated for the Jo Cox Women In Leadership programme.

Anyone who believes that women can't or shouldn't fight needs to meet Ruqsana Begum. Ruqsana has also won a number of British titles and European championship gold medals.

Ruqsana fights Muay Thai kickboxing, often referred to as the 'Art of Eight Limbs', the national sport of Thailand, where it is far more popular than football. Unlike regular boxing, competitors can use any combination of punches, kicks, knees and elbows to strike an opponent during a bout.

Ruqsana's sporting career is only scratching the surface. She is an inspirational figure way beyond her own community. She is a motivational speaker, teaches kickboxing classes for women, juggles numerous media commitments, and leads a busy family life with many responsibilities as the eldest girl in a large family.

Ruqsana's road to glory in one of the hardest sports was not easy. Raised in a conservative Bengali Muslim environment, the thought that a young woman would choose to compete in the kickboxing ring would not sit well with some in her community.

But Ruqsana has fought hard to explode negative perceptions of women in sport, and indeed young British Muslims and remains a shining example to young British people.

An Olympic Torchbearer in 2012 in her home city, Ruqsana has been nominated for several awards for her outstanding contribution towards sport and the community, including working with the Dame Kelly Holmes Get on Track Programme; such as the Sky Sports Sportswoman of the Year, Muslim News Sports-woman of the Year and the UK Muslim Women's Sportsperson of the Year.

The architecture graduate has also launched a stunning range of sports hijabs; Sports Hijabs by Ruqsana Begum, specifically designed for young Muslim women who might feel too intimidated or ill-equipped to engage in sport.

Mr Abdul Hai Khalique (Junel), Mr Abdul Quayum Khalique (Jamal) and Mr Abdul Muhith (Joynal) are the three brothers behind the internationally renowned grocers Taj Stores in Brick Lane. They took over the business from their late father Alhaj Abdul Khalique who came from Baur Bagh, Moulvibazar, Bangladesh.

Junel, Jamal and Joynal all grew up in Brick Lane, East London and progressed their education to Milestone Preparatory Private School in Bond Street, West London.

Junel studied at Architectural College before joining the family business. His passion for architecture and design saw him design and build his dream home in Essex. Jamal on the other hand attended the private American International College where he completed a Diploma in business before himself joining the family business followed swiftly by the youngest sibling Joynal.

Taj Stores is the name of an inspiration to British Bangladeshis in the UK. Taj Stores started its journey in 1936, by their late uncle Abdul Jabbar who then passed the business to the late Alhaj Abdul Khalique. Taj Stores is now on its way to celebrate the 80 years of its pride. Outside Bangladesh, if there is any business that has been operating with such goodwill and benevolence that is the Taj Stores.

They are also Directors of Taj Properties Construction/Investment Ltd, NRB Bank Ltd and the UKBCCI. Besides running Taj Stores, the brothers also have other business interests. The three 'Taj' brothers hold a very healthy portfolio of properties located across the capital as well as several properties abroad, including Dubai.

The brothers are donors to several charities and these include supporting a Cancer Research Charity in honour of their late mother, and also a charity which specialise in treating problems and illnesses related to kidneys, in honour of their late father.

They also established a charity organisation called J Brothers, whereby the project supports vulnerable and helpless families in Bangladesh by providing sheltered homes, installation of water pumps and donating land. Jamal quotes "Charity should begin from home. We are inspired from the love and feeling that my father and uncle showed to the people of Bangladesh. So we do not go for formalities, rather, we have started our charity work from our own village."

Today Bangladeshis are on the way to portray themselves as a successful community in the UK and Taj Stores is one of those names of successes.

The brothers have their own hobbies such as travelling, jet skiing, photography and golf.

Laboni Barua was blessed to be born in an environment where music was profoundly esteemed by her family. Her guru Shantimoy Chakrabarty was an added inspiration, and he taught her the basic grammar of music. The journey that she started from the exotic tourist-city Bandarban once exceeded its boundary. She then began growing up with the blessings of a number of music scholars incorporating 4 years course in the Bangladesh Shilpokola Academy; though, she had been undertaking classical music lessons from Ustad Surbondhu Ashok Chowdhury for 10 years until she flew to London in 2008.

During her time in Bangladesh, she was enlisted as an A-grade artist of Bangladesh Betar as well as a regular performer in Bangladesh Television (BTV). In 2005, Laboni took part in the widely-acclaimed TV competition 'Tarokader Taroka' on ATN Bangla, Bangladesh and earned the 30th position as a young star. Along with the vibrant music career, Ms Barua attained an Honours degree in Physics from Chittagong University, Bangladesh in 2008.

Soon after Laboni came into the UK, she won the 'Boishakhi Star Awards'. Then, in 2011, her debut album 'Meghla Chele' was released by Leser Vision, Dhaka, and it was widely applauded by her audience—she was tagged as the 'Versatile Singer' by the British Bangladeshi weekly newspaper 'Desh' and 'Surma'. Nowadays, Laboni mostly sings modern and folk songs, though she has simultaneously expedient mastery in Nazrul's songs and semi-classics.

The preeminent British-Bangladeshi singer Laboni has been entertaining her Bengali and Hindi speaking audience with a dulcet tone in the prestigious British venues like Rich Mix, Harrow Arts Center, Nehru Center, Bharatiya Biddya Bhaban, Croydon Fairfield Hall, and so on. She also performs songs in front of large crowds that includes different festivals, some of which are—Boishakhi Mela (Festival), Southhall Mela, Camden Boishakhi Mela, Luton Mela, and so forth.

One of the greatest achievements in her music career was to take part in the 'Hundred Years of Tagore Album' by the 'Nrityakala the Rhythm Dance Heritage' as the only Bangladeshi decent singer amongst the other two Indian and Pakistani singers, and it was launched in the House of Commons in 2014.

Sir Akhlaq Choudhury, the first British Bangladeshi High Court Judge is only the second barrister of Bangladeshi heritage to achieve the rank of Queen's Counsel. Akhlaq graduated in Physics from the University of Glasgow before deciding to study Law at the University of London where he obtained a first class honours degree. He was called to the Bar in 1992 and started practising at 11 King's Bench Walk Chambers (now known as "11 KBW"), which is one of the premier chambers in the country being ranked as a leader in many fields including employment, public, information and procurement law.

Past members of Chambers with whom Akhlaq has worked include the former Lord Chancellor, Lord Irvine of Lairg QC and Lord Justice Elias and Lord Justice Sales of the Court of Appeal. Akhlaq's practice developed rapidly and he is consistently ranked by his peers as a leader in his areas of expertise. He is listed in the Legal 500 (2015-2016) where he is said to be "Undoubtedly one of the best advocates at the Bar". Akhlaq was a long-standing member of the Attorney General's A-panel of approved Counsel in which capacity he acted for and advised the Foreign & Commonwealth Office, the MoD, HMRC and various other Government departments in relation to matters ranging from human rights and discrimination in the armed forces to the right to detain persons with mental incapacity. He was retained as counsel for the Information Commissioner and has appeared in many of the ground-breaking cases in the developing area of Freedom of Information and Data Protection law. In 2009, Akhlaq was appointed a Recorder and he sits as a part-time Judge of the Crown Court presiding over criminal cases. He was appointed Queen's Counsel in 2015 and made a High Court Judge in 2017.

Akhlaq was born in Hampshire but grew up in Glasgow where his father, the late Mr Azizur Rahman Choudhury, ran a successful restaurant business and was a leading member of the Bangladeshi community in Scotland. Akhlaq now lives in London with his wife, Safina, and their three children.

Aziz Choudhury is the Chairman of the Spitalfields Small Business Association (SSBA) which is a unique Community Business and social enterprise with over 30 years' experience of regeneration in the Spitalfields area of London. SSBA provides 80 tenant members with affordable workspace. It also develops training and enterprise programmes through the SSBA Community Trust.

Between 2001 and August 2016, Aziz Choudhury was the Director of Montefiore Centre, London which provided important services to the community with workspace and training for around twenty businesses, charities and community organisations.

From 1999-2001, Aziz Choudhury was Managing Director of Otherwords Ltd which ran the East End Enterprise business newspaper and the Spitalfields Business Club. He is well known for his time as Chief Executive of Bengali Workers Association between 1995 and 1999. At that time, he was responsible for running the Surma Community Centre in Camden and several local projects. In the mid-eighties, Aziz Choudhury was Finance Director for Spitalfields Housing Association, a position he maintained for a decade.

In his early career he was an accountant and worked for various Chartered Accountancy firms. He obtained his BSc in Physics, Chemistry & Mathematics from Dhaka University in 1967. He Studied Accountancy at the London School of Accountancy between 1972—74. Moreover, he is an Associate member of Institute of Financial Accountants and has Fellow Membership of Institute of Financial Accountants as well as achieving Common Purpose Community Leadership Graduation in 1992.

Aziz Choudhury has been involved in several community and voluntary initiatives both in the United Kingdom and in Bangladesh. These include being involved with East London Small Business Centre, East London Business Alliance, West Euston Partnership and he has been a PMG member of the Tower Hamlets Partnership. Most recently, he has been a member of the Board of Directors for the Tower Hamlets Education Partnership (THE Partnership) and the Founder and current President of the Sylhet Sadar Association. In Bangladesh Aziz Choudhury founded the Jalalpur Degree College in Sylhet and he is a trustee and General Secretary of Rosae Trust, which raises funds to support a hospital in Dhaka.

Aziz Choudhury is married to Heima Choudhury. They have two sons, the elder son Ashike is a medical doctor (consultant) working for the NHS and the younger son Siraj is a solicitor working in senior management for local government.

Anwar Choudhury (BSc, MBA) was Her Majesty's High Commissioner to Bangladesh from 2004 to 2008. Mr Choudhury has had a unique and distinguished career having served in British Industry, The Royal Air Force, The Ministry of Defence and The Cabinet Office. He is the first senior British Ambassador from a British Asian background and also one of the youngest to achieve this level of posting.

He started his career in Industry as a Design Engineer. This was followed by the Royal Air Force and the Ministry of Defence where he managed a large team of civilian scientists and senior military personnel. As Assistant Director, he was responsible for developing Ministry of Defence's strategies and policies aimed to bring about the integration of Defence systems within the MOD, NATO and Allies.

Mr Choudhury then moved from the MOD to the Cabinet Office where he was Director of Policy in the Office of the e-Envoy. He was responsible for leading the vision and policy for UK Government's ambition to become a leading knowledge economy and the best place for e-government. He left the Cabinet Office to join the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and initially worked on strategy and policy issues before taking up his posting as High Commissioner to Bangladesh in May 2004.

Mr Choudhury completed his assignment as High Commissioner to Bangladesh in May 2008 and became Director of International Institutions, Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Mr Choudhury's main interests are in policy for radical change in government and the potential of the information revolution for the developing world economies. On a personal note, he is married with three children. He is currently the British Ambassador to Peru.

His hobbies include Cricket, Bridge, Bengali Folk music and an addiction for Bangladeshi cuisine.

Amirul Choudhury is a high-profile entrepreneur with businesses in various sectors. Since his last profile was updated a few years back he has gone from strength to strength, focussing on his construction and development business. He is the Chief Executive of Everard Construction Management Ltd – a company with a proven track record, and specialising in complex property development and restoration work. Projects have included the renovation and development of the Bangladesh Centre in London's Notting Hill, a Grade II listed building owned by a charitable trust and an iconic building for the Bangladeshi community

He is now the Managing Editor and co-owner of Janomot, the longest established weekly newspaper of the Bangladeshi community in the UK, and a leading online news portal.

Mr Choudhury began his entrepreneurial journey in 1994 as co-founder of ChyTel Communications. The company quickly established a leading presence in the mobile phone market for the Bangladeshi community as well as other ethnic groups previously ignored in the growth of mobile telephony. His experience of working with large corporations like EE (originally one2one) and Nokia (then the leading handset manufacturer) gave him the foundations to be a sound businessman.

Over the span of 26 years in business we have seen Mr Choudhury in the community as a very credible businessman who has made major charitable contributions both in the UK and in Bangladesh.

His major philanthropic work of recent times is to be part of RDF Global, a charity dedicated to maternity care in rural Bangladesh. He was asked by the late founder, Mr Shamsujjaman Choudhury, to help build their flagship maternity clinic and he willingly contributed to this important project. He remains humble about his success, but we now have a fully operational maternity clinic in the heart of Jagannathpur, where he was born.

Amirul Choudhury is a household name in our community. During his business career he has stood by the Bangladeshi community in the UK and continues to do so. He has made significant and generous contributions to support the community, financially and with advice and support.

Dr Ferdousi Choudhury is a Clinical Psychologist & Senior Eating Disorder Therapist with the East London Foundation Trust Community Eating Disorder Service. Prior to this she was working in the Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service of the Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust, a specialist mental health Trust based in Camden, London. She graduated in Psychology from City University and gained her Doctorate in Clinical Psychology from University College London. Ferdousi's doctoral thesis was on 'Screening for Postnatal Depression in Bengali Mothers', which looked at the impact of contextual differences on postnatal women in Bangladesh and Camden. Her research has been published in the Journal of Reproductive and Infant Psychology.

Ferdousi has extensive experience of working with children and families from diverse backgrounds, with a significant proportion of clinical work being with children and families of Bangladeshi origin, and those of mixed origin. She has always strived to make mainstream mental health services less stigmatised and more accessible to the Bangladeshi community. This has been achieved by providing community-based interventions, delivering therapeutic sessions and psycho-educational workshops in Sylheti, in familiar community settings, addressing issues such as mental health stigma, depression, stress and anxiety, family conflict and parenting challenges.

She has a special interest in cross cultural and bilingual therapeutic work, and pursued an interest in developing and implementing culturally appropriate parenting programmes for Bangladeshi parents. Ferdousi also has extensive experience of working therapeutically with parents and families who are or have previously been in the social care system, working with traumas such as domestic violence, emotional, physical and sexual abuse. In addition to her work in the NHS, Ferdousi is an Independent Clinical Psychologist, providing Expert Witness Court Reports of culturally appropriate psychological, psychometric and parenting assessments and interventions for families in Care proceedings. In addition to this, she also engages in private clinical work with children, adolescents, families, adults and couples, and provides private consultation and supervision for professionals. Her special interest is in aiming to provide culturally and spiritually appropriate therapeutic services for individuals and families.

Ferdousi was born in Bedfordshire and raised in Glasgow where she lived with her parents, Mrs Sultana Choudhury and the late Mr Azizur Rahman Choudhury, and her two brothers. Her father was a successful restaurateur with a number of businesses in Scotland, and both parents were leading members of the Bangladeshi community in Scotland. Her brothers are Sir Akhlaq Choudhury, High Court Judge, and Zia Choudhury, UN Resident Coordinator and Representative of the UN Secretary General in the Republic of Botswana.

Ferdousi now lives in London with her husband, Kawsar, and their four children.

Mamun Chowdhury is a highly successful British businessman with over 25 years experience in the design and manufacturing of high-end outerwear. He is from Moynabad, Chunarughat, Habigonj. Having completed his education in Bangladesh, After a short period in the Middle East, Mamun arrived in Britain in December 1991. Hailing from Bangladesh, Chowdhury's father and grandfather were businessmen, and he was raised on a diet of deals and negotiations. But the 1971 Independence War destroyed the family businesses and the Chowdhurys lost everything and, in 1991, Mamun came to England hoping to build a business here. Being innately an entrepreneur, he immediately started setting up his own business. In 1994 he established London Clothing Limited, importing garments from abroad and selling to clients in the UK and rest of Europe.

This was supported by setting up his own factory to manufacture garments here in the UK. An inspirational man, audaciously attempted at selling shirts from his suitcase to Marks & Spencer in 1992. But that experience cemented Chowdhury's determination to make it. He was inspired by the story of Michael Marks and Thomas Spencer. Mamun Chowdhury saw an opportunity to manufacture outerwear, designed with a high level of customer involvement, and selling wholesale to trade targeting the sub-couture market. Queen's Award winner London Tradition was born. Quality and skilled craftsmanship rooted in London's heritage and culture are the label's defining features," says Mamun Chowdhury, citing state-of-the-art equipment and technology. "Our dedication to detail is relentless and unwavering." Multiple quality checks throughout the manufacturing process ensure consistency. The brand is also proud to offer a fair working environment for its employees. Today, London Tradition is particularly popular in the Japanese market, and the brand has grown largely by word- of-mouth. Winning the Queen's Award made a significant difference bringing a huge amount of publicity and interest from new customers. The company's future looks exciting, including a new high-end fashion label, Churchill of London, and an ecommerce website aimed at the retail market. He has a clear strategy to grow organically in existing markets and enter into new ones." No suitcase required. Mamun envisions his Company to be the leading luxury heritage outerwear brand in the world and very popular in the Japanese and European market including 17 other countries . In addition he was awarded again for International trade by her Majesty the Queen on 2020.

Cllr Syeda Choudhury has lived in Tower Hamlets since her childhood; she attended local schools, college and university. Syeda migrated to the UK with her family to join her father in 1981. Her family came from the village of Bakamura in the district of Moulvibazar.

At the age of fifteen Syeda started her community work alongside her studies with youth and community organisations. She was involved in youth exchange programmes, which required travelling to various countries, namely France, Germany, Holland and Denmark to learn and value other cultures.

Since coming to the UK, Syeda has been involved with various youth and cultural activities. She has performed Bengali cultural dances in numerous venues including the Royal Festival Hall, The Commonwealth Institute and at the launch of the Kabi Nazrul Centre in 1982. She was a member of cultural groups named Amra Kojhona, Jholock Shilpi Gushti, Shapla and Shejuti.

Syeda was an active member of Women Unite Against Racism during 1990s. She took up challenging work to combat racial issues during the time when Derek Beacon was elected as a councillor on Isle of Dogs. Syeda was in the management committee in Jagonari Resource Centre, Island Advice Centre, Culloden Bangladeshi Parents Association & Bow Bengali Forum and was a director of Boshaki Mela Trust in East London. She was a parent governor in two different schools in Tower Hamlets.

Syeda has been involved in local politics in Tower Hamlets since 2005 and was an active campaigner for the "Yes for Mayor" referendum and two mayoral elections in Tower Hamlets. She was a councillor candidate in Tower Hamlets council election in 2014 but unfortunately she missed the seat by a few votes.

Syeda has been working extensively with women and youths for more than 20 years, to raise awareness about health issues, training and employment, women empowerment, drugs and alcohol. She worked as a community development officer, social investment officer and health advocate with public organisations and many housing associations.

Syeda was a host for Betar Bangla Radio programme "Open Talk" and also she hosted "Women's Voice" – a programme on Bangla TV, where she brought issues relating to British Bangladeshi community in the UK, especially issues that affects our women. Through Betar Bangla Radio she presented programmes on BBC Asian Network. She is the women secretary of Greater Sylhet Development Council in East London Region. She has launched her own fashion lable SyedaC.

Syeda is married to Sirajul Choudhury, who is a teacher at a Tower Hamlets school. She is the mother of two children – her daughter is studying A-levels and her son is studying at University. She is the Councillor for Bridge Ward .

Syeda's hobbies and interests include singing, designing , making clothes, cooking, travelling and networking.

In a complex world where decisions often get bogged down in layers of bureaucracy and good ideas often wither and die, Dr Sanawar Choudhury has always proven to be the exception to the rule. He makes things happen, infusing those around him with infectious energy and passion empowering colleagues to think big, innovate ideas and arrive at transformational solutions. Sanawar stretches goals with such intensity and focus that anything but success is unthinkable.

The Journey started in 1975, when at the age of 9, Sanawar, the first son of a headmaster, came to the UK to join his father (late) Al-Hajj Mohammed Shafiqul Islam Choudhury, accompanied by his mother (Late) Al-Hajj Shamsun Nehar and only sibling brother, Soiful.

Formal education was in the UK, earning a BA (Hons) Degree in Accounting and Finance in 1989, qualified as a Chartered Accountant with Price Waterhouse Coopers (1992) and being awarded a PhD in Accounting from the University of Exeter (EXON, 2005) – amongst the many accolades he has received from both the profession and industry throughout his conspicuous career.

In 2001, Sanawar settled his young family in Dhaka and joined Bangladesh Bank as an World Bank Consultant advising on corporate reporting, foreign exchange management and internal control, working with the then Governors of Bangladesh Bank, Dr Fakhruddin Ahmed and Dr Sallehuddin Ahmed. In 2006 he returned to the UK with his wife Nasima, daughter Nazma and sons Shaheenur, Shajahan and Shafiul.

During his extensive career Sanawar has undertaken strategic consultancy assignments both in the UK, Europe and the Middle East, working mainly in the Financial Markets and Corporate Reporting. Sanawar currently runs a number of successful businesses that extend from Professional Training to Warranty to Car Supermarket to Hospitals to Property. Professionally, he is senior partner of, probably, the largest Chartered Accountancy firm of Bangladeshi origin in the UK, RCi Chartered Accountants and Registered Auditors. As social activist and notable philanthropist, Sanawar has extensive social projects in both the UK and in Bangladesh, funded through his Choudhury Foundation. Current projects include educational establishments in Sylhet and his village home in Khashila, Jagannathpur.

Ayesha Chowdhury is a Labour Co-operative Party politician who has strong ties to local communities and businesses. Ayesha Chowdhury arrived in Britain with her parents at the age of 16. Besides learning English, she found herself taking a course in construction at Newham Community College and completed her BTEC National Diploma in 1993. She was helping her father with his community work and teaching GCSE Bangla Language in Plashet School from 1990 (when she arrived to the UK).

With her father's encouragement, she changed her subjects to study Access to Youth community and social work.

Enrolling at Goldsmiths College, University of London, to study youth, community and social work, eventually obtaining a Master's Degree in Applied Anthropology, Youth & Community Work.

Beside her studies, she has always worked as a youth worker, neighbourhood officer and/or social worker in different local authorities, including Newham, Tower Hamlets, Camden, Victoria and Westminster.

Ayesha began to recognise that whatever she did she was limited by the confines of policy. Therefore she felt that the decision-making process had to be influenced if real changes were to be attempted. As a result of this, she became involved with politics.

She was elected as the first Bangladeshi female councillors in Newham in 2002, and was one of the youngest. She was elected five consecutive times in the same ward, and was privileged to serve the same constituents for 20 years until 2022.

Over the 20 years, she has managed to influence and chair many policy forums, scrutiny commissions, and has served as lead councillor as well as the Mayor's Adviser.

She was the founder-secretary of Beekton Bangladesh Welfare Association as well as Bangladeshi Students Forum in 1993.

She was involved with many community and voluntary organisations, not only Bangladeshi but Chinese, Lithuanian, and Afro Caribbean organisations too.

She's always keen to improve the life of those who are disadvantaged in society.

Ayesha Chowdhury is a successful businesswoman. She is a property developer and also Director of London Green Management Company Ltd. Aside from politics and business, she is also committed to various local, national and transnational organisations. She has been heavily involved in fundraising activities in the UK to support various rural areas across the globe.

Her participation in community initiatives consist of being in the consultative committee of London City Airport, Newham Community Police Forum and School Organisation Committee. Other past and present commitments include being committee member of Beckon Community Forum, Building Schools for Future and Mayoral Advisor. Amongst her most prestigious voluntary association she has been a committee member for Community Cohesion and Child Poverty, two integral issues which society faces in the present climate. During pandemic, she was chairman of Healthy and Adult Social Care Scrutiny Commission.

Her interests include Human Rights, politics, sports, as well as environmental and social issues. She is fluent in several languages.

Talha is a newly elected Councillor for the London Borough of Tower Hamlets. He is serving the Council as the Cabinet Member for Safer Communities. Talha was born in Tower Hamlets in 1990, making him one of the youngest councillors in the local authority. His father kept him involved in community activities from a young age. This inspired him to get involved in the third sector at the age of 14, with his first experience focused on a gang mediation project at a local youth club. Later he led 3 youth clubs in Shadwell and Bethnal Green; running youth provisions, anti-knife crime projects, elderly exercise classes, lunch clubs, mentoring and more.

His work has been recognised nationally and he was awarded the Community Activism Award by the Community Leadership Foundation in cooperation with SOAS University in 2017.

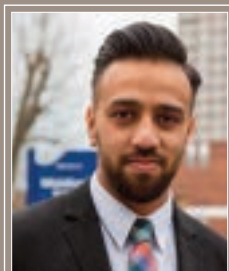

He has been fortunate enough to work internationally in Ethiopia, Bosnia, Egypt, Somaliland, the Middle East in either diplomatic postings on behalf of the government or large NGOs, however he has now firmly set his sights and energy on contributing to the welfare and prosperity of Tower Hamlets.

Talha studied International Relations, Law and Community Leadership at Westminster, SOAS and Oxford University, all in pursuit to understand the issues we face and solutions we can create to make a better world.

He is currently the Senior Quality & Supply Chain Manager for Canary Wharf Group, responsible for overseeing the standards in quality, environment and health & safety for the company. He also manages the company's procurement department as well as Co-Chair the company's Diversity and Inclusion network. He is one of a few senior managers from Bangladeshi origin and is climbing the ranks very quickly.

He has demonstrated the right experience of community, charity, business and government to be an influential figure in the community.

Henna attended the Girls High School in Worthing where she excelled and achieved excellent exam results despite only learning English on her arrival in Britain a few short years earlier.

Following her education, Henna enjoyed a short but productive career in the Civil Service before marrying and devoting her time to raising a young and boisterous family. Councillor Chowdhury has always had a keen interest in the community and is especially concerned with equality of opportunity and equal rights for all.

Whilst raising her family she was involved as an advocate for youth and child support and acted as a community interpreter for a number of organisations involved in domestic violence.

Mrs Chowdhury has worked for local charities supporting BME women in their struggle to overcome racial and intra-community prejudice, domestic violence and lack of educational provision. Henna has worked for charities and local businesses along the entire south coastal strip providing educational courses and training in health and hygiene, business funding as well as organising community events and charity fundraising with a special emphasis on Women's Rights and Equality.

In 2010 Henna had a complete change of direction and was a presenter on Bangla TV, where she hosted a music channel show broadcast to the UK and Europe.

With her keen sense of social justice and fairness for all, Henna felt the need to do more, to lead the way for ethnic minorities, especially Bengali, women, showing them that they have a voice and an important part to play in a successful, modern British multicultural, multi-ethnic society and as such she joined the Labour Party in 2017 where she is currently BAME Officer.

In late 2018 Henna was adopted to fight the safe Conservative ward of Gaisford in the 2019 Worthing Borough Council Elections, a ward which had been in Conservative control for over 50 years. Despite the party's poor showing nationally Henna won the ward with a landslide victory, achieving a swing to Labour of 13% made Henna the first female Muslim councillor in the history not only of Worthing but of West Sussex and was reported Worldwide. A fact she is immensely proud of as it is an encouragement for women with no background in politics or business to come forward, to make a difference and to have a voice.

Henna was elected onto both the licensing committee and the overview and scrutiny committees of Worthing Council.

Henna made further history in her local town of Worthing by becoming the First Labour Mayor when the Labour Party made history by taking control of the local Council during the May 2022 Local Elections. Making her achievements somewhat unique: the 1st Female Muslim Borough Councillor; 1st Female Muslim County Councillor; and 1st Female Muslim Mayor under the 1st Labour Administration for the Borough of Worthing Henna is married to Milad and has three daughters, Fariha, Mariya and Tasnim.

Her professional career with the NHS, academia as well as the charity sector has been dedicated to reaching out to otherwise excluded individuals and communities and tackling inequalities. Jasmin has dedicated her working life in developing the most effective and sustainable way to bring about positive changes in our communities and society as a whole.

Jasmin has won two national awards for her work and was also shortlisted for a UK parliamentary selection in 2013. Actively involved in social justice campaigns. Rooted in to the values of fairness and equality, she is particularly interested in empowering communities, feminism and development of women in all spheres of life and beyond geographical boundaries.

As a senior practitioner with Public Health Wales, Jasmin has led initiatives to give every child the best start in life as well as addressing vaccine inequity in Wales. While involving and engaging with communities at a grass-route level to bring about positive and sustainable societal changes, she has also contributed to the development of some of the groundbreaking legislation including the first legislation in UK on Ending Violence Against Women & Girls.

Described as a passionate, inspiring and driven individual by colleagues, Jasmin has reached out and supported many vulnerable groups and individuals both through her professional as well as voluntary roles. Sharing both personal and professional experiences as well as leadership skills has helped her to inspire and support those who often struggle to find a voice.

As an active campaigner for climate and social justice Jasmin often chairs and speaks at conferences and events on these issues. While publications of her work in public health, the awards and public life has helped to raise profile of the issues and campaigns, she thinks the most rewarding part for her has been the transition in the lives of the individuals and communities she has supported and also the impacts of her work in policy and decision making at local, national and international level.

Jasmin was elected as a Councillor for County Council of the City and County of Cardiff in May 2022.

Monsoor is a qualified Accountant and business entrepreneur. Having successfully completed his training programme within a leading accountancy practice, he was quickly noticed for his outstanding talent and was rewarded with a partnership offer.

He decided to bypass this opportunity and instead take up a more ambitious, lucrative and challenging role, working and reporting directly to Lord Alan Sugar on his various commercial financial interests.

He quickly established himself within a cut-throat environment and very soon became one of Lord Sugar's senior financial representatives. His no nonsense style and approach were ideally suited for the demands of a high profile entrepreneur, working on the finances of a property portfolio in excess of 500m, aviation, media, publishing, electronics, foreign exchange trading and on various other commercial activities.

After eight successful years, Monsoor was head hunted by another high net worth entrepreneur to spearhead the finances of his worldwide real estate interests. After a brief stint, he decided it was the right time to venture into business himself.

He teamed up with his long-time colleague Kamru Ali and decided to take up a partnership position at Apex Accountancy, a small firm based in London. Under his guidance, Apex has fast developed into one of the most forward thinking and innovative small accountancy and taxation firms, providing a wide range of specialist services.

Monsoor also recognises the importance of practical training and uses Apex to serve as a training base for graduates and school leavers to develop their skills, aiding them to seek employment. The majority of his trainees have gone on to secure employment within high profile organisations.

He has over the years and continues to provide consultancy services and sits on the board of a number of organisations, advising on finances within the industries of construction, energy, telecoms, property and healthcare.

Monsoor is currently the CFO of ACAP Global, a start-up international company which has recently won the global rights to supply telecommunications traffic to a number of African based countries. In the process, the organisation has agreed to provide affordable housing solutions to the much needed region and Monsoor is spearheading this project.

Over the years, Monsoor has also invested wisely and built up a small property portfolio.

Having worked in the catering industry since the 90's which helped him fund his college and University education; he has kept his association with the industry and over the past 15 years, he has been involved with a number of successful restaurants and fast food ventures. Currently he overlooks the running of a successful restaurant, which has been awarded regional awards and is now aiming to achieve awards at national level.

During his leisure time, Monsoor participates in challenging charity events. This year he completed the London Marathon, in the process raising considerable funds for charity. On his bucket list of events to do is climbing to first base of Mount Everest and 100 mile walking trek on the Wall of China.

Shamim is a print and television journalist whose career has been varied and prolific. She has been working for Al Jazeera English since 2007, where she fulfils a number of roles including that of deputy news editor, news editor, reporter and field producer. She is based in the network's London offices, but has also worked in the main news centre in Doha, Qatar. In recent times Shamim travelled with a reporting team to Bangladesh on three occasions, including during the January 2014 elections, when she field-produced and reported on a range of subjects. She is considered by the channel to be its resident Bangladesh expert, has close personal contacts with many of the most influential people in Bangladesh and secured an interview with Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina for Al Jazeera in 2012.

Shamim has also been closely involved in Al Jazeera's coverage of the unrest in Ukraine – one of the biggest news stories to come out of Europe in the past few years. As well as travelling to Kiev twice at a time of heightened tensions major security concerns, she was in Crimea for three weeks in March 2014 when her team covered the referendum and witnessed the region fall into Russian control after being part of Ukraine for decades.

Prior to Al Jazeera, Shamim worked in various capacities for Sky News, the BBC and ITV news. She started her career in print journalism and has written news stories and features for The Daily Express, The Daily Mail, The Daily Telegraph and comment and opinion for The Independent. For a while she also had her own column in the Bangla Mirror.

In addition, Shamim has taken part in current affairs and political debates at The House of Lords and on live television discussion programmes.

Since October 2013 she has been on the panel of judges at the Asian Media Awards for the categories of Journalist Of The Year and Best Investigation.

Shamim was born in London and is of Sylheti heritage. The late general Muhammad Ataul Gani Osmani, the commander-in-chief of the East Pakistani liberation forces of 1971, is her great uncle and grew up in the same household as her paternal grandfather.

She received a BSc in Chemistry from Queen Mary, University of London, an MSc in race and ethnic relations from Birkbeck College and a post-graduate diploma in newspaper journalism from City University, for which she won a prestigious bursary from the Wellcome Trust. After completing her Bachelors degree she spent six months living in New York City working as an intern for an NGO affiliated with the United Nations, during which time she contributed to a book which educated American school and college students about the workings of the United Nations.

Shamim has a passion for travel and has visited almost fifty countries including Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Oman, Cuba, China, India and parts of West Africa. Some years ago she worked with a leading charity to help build a community centre in a remote part of Cambodia.

She also enjoys sport and has a black belt in karate.

As well as her day job, Shamim occasionally blogs for the Huffington Post on a range of socio-political issues and is studying English Literature part-time at Oxford University.

Nelson Mandela said: "there is no passion to be found in playing small - in settling for a life that is less than the one you are capable of living." This ultimately sums up thriving personality Mahee Ferdhaus Jalil, who's played a huge pivotal role in the British Bangladeshi community for the last 15 years. He is one of the biggest successes to date is establishing Channel S - the first free-to-air British Bangladeshi satellite Television Channel.

Born in Moulvibazar, Bangladesh, Mahee came to the UK in 1988 as a teenager. Like many of our British Bangladeshi champions, his early days in Britain were endured by hard struggles. Mahee however embraced these challenges with utter determination and focus. He was known for 'dreaming big' and wanted to make his visions a reality.

In 1994, after obtaining training and experience, he set up one of the largest accident management companies in the UK called 'Prestige Auto Group'. The company saw steady growth and became a household name amongst British Asians.

Mahee's greatest success to date however was the establishment of Channel S. He started dreaming of a fully functional Television Channel in the UK in 2002. Mahee wanted a television channel which would engage communities directly, highlight issues which matter the most in the lives of British Bangladeshis, empower communities with the power of information, and create awareness amongst the community about their rights, opportunities as well as responsibilities. Mahee went onto creating a professional, passionate and experienced team. Finally on 16th December 2004, Channel S started its official broadcast. Mahee saw a dream which eventually became a platform for all British Bangladeshis, inspired a generation in achieving their goals, took our community back to their roots, and reminded our younger generation of their history and heritage.

Mahee's vision of launching the Channel was no more a community channel - it became international through a partnership with humanitarian organisation - through generous community donations. He believes we can't take money with us, so invests in the community and good causes.

A passionate entrepreneur, Mahee is also successfully running his various other business interests - from property development to Law and IT. He enjoys mentoring young business enthusiasts so that they are able to settle a life capable of living.

Her main career has been as an academic: she taught at Kingston University and University of Manchester from 1998 onwards until she was elected Labour MP for Ealing Central and Acton in May 2015.

She is author of three books: (i) Making sense of suburbia through popular culture. (2013) Bloomsbury, (ii) On the edge: the contested cultures of suburbia. (2013) Lawrence & Wishart and (iii) Beyond subculture: pop, youth and identity in a postcolonial world. Academically her main interests have been the sociology of the suburbs and popular culture. In Parliament she is vice chair of the All Party Parliamentary Music Group and the APPG on Crossrail. She is also chairing an All Party Parliamentary Group on London, with specific reference to planning and the built environment.

Since being elected the main issues she has spoken on are affordable housing in the capital, transport and the NHS. She served on a UK government Foreign and Commonwealth "Understanding Islam" delegation to Bangladesh in 2008.

Md Abdul Haque is a distinguished entrepreneur with over 27 years of experience in the IT and software industry, where he has established himself as an expert in the field. Born in Moulvibazar, Bangladesh in 1976, and now residing in London his journey from skilled technician to influential business leader is a testament to his dedication and acumen.

Haque holds a bachelor's degree in Maths and Computing from Brunel University and a master's degree in Advanced Software Engineering from the University of Westminster. His career began in the civil service, where he worked as a specialist software engineer on flight data processes for National Air Traffic Services (NATS). However, driven by a vision to innovate and lead, he transitioned into entrepreneurship, founding Purple I Technologies. As the Managing Director, he has been instrumental in advancing the EPOS system within the Bangladeshi and Indian restaurant sectors. His pioneering spirit also led to the creation of the dineNET Online Order & Reservation System, further solidifying his impact on the industry.

In addition to his achievements in the IT sector, he brings over five years of experience in the fine dining industry as the Managing Director of 'Piya Piya', a renowned Thai restaurant and lounge located in the City of London. This venture highlights his versatility and ability to succeed across different industries, enriching his business portfolio with hands-on experience in hospitality.

Beyond his IT and hospitality ventures, Haque is the creative force behind Catering Circle, a media platform that addresses and solves key issues within the catering industry through collaborative dialogue and the active participation of caterers and stakeholders. His leadership extends to the role of Vice-Chairman at Channel S (Sky 777), a television station dedicated to the Bangladeshi community in Britain and Europe, founded by his brother, Mahee Ferdhaus Jalil.

Despite his demanding professional life, Haque finds time for his passions. An avid traveller, he has explored numerous countries, with Malaysia being a particular favourite, praised for its hospitality, cuisine, and strong Islamic identity. He also speaks fondly of his travels to destinations like Barbados, Antigua, the Maldives, and Canada. In addition to travelling, he enjoys playing badminton, going to the gym, and watching films.

Haque is married to Mary Rahman, a successful PR entrepreneur in London, who specialises in promoting clients from the arts, theatre, film, and fashion industries. Together, they form a dynamic and accomplished couple, each excelling in their respective fields.

London based Abdus Hamid started his career as an Accountant and subsequently moved into the field of Technology working for a large firm of Wealth Managers in the City Of London.

He currently works as a Cyber Security Analyst helping to secure the companies network and has forged a successful career operating in the financial services industry over the last 20 years.

Being a passionate advocate of technology and having established himself as a highly skilled Analyst in the field of Cyber Security, he now advises small business and institutions on aspects of Cyber Security. He also runs a Network Solution Company offering consultancy to businesses and institutions across the UK.

Abdus is also the founder Deputy Chairman of Conservative Friends of Bangladesh (CFOB) having been involved in its inception since 2006. CFOB is a member-led organisation that upholds the values of the British Bangladeshi community and champions their similarities with the beliefs of the Conservative Party.

From its humble beginnings in 2006, CFOB now boasts members spanning from across the UK. The organisations was given permission by the Conservative Party to take a delegation of MP's and volunteers to Bangladesh in order to carry out social action work in for the first time in 2011.

Since then CFOB has visited Bangladesh countless times helping various charities. Our last visit in 2017 allowed us to take several MPs and volunteers into the camps of Cox Bazaar where Rohingya refugees are currently living in squalid conditions. Because of our direct intervention, UKAID has so far donated over £50 million to Bangladesh for the Rohingya refugees. CFOB continues to lobby the government in UK for the safe return of Rohingya refugees back to Myanmar. Abdus was also the first British Bangladeshi Chairman of a Conservative Association in the UK and served as the Chairman of Ilford South Conservative Association.

Outside of business and politics Abdus is also involved with various charities nationally and acts as trustees for various charities such as London Tigers.

Any attempt to write history or present state of Bangla print or electronic media in the UK will not be complete without mentioning one name, Syed Samadul Haque. Born in Kishorehony and brought up in the tea valley of Sylhet, Samadul Haque was educated in Dhanmondi Govt. Boys High School, Dhaka College and Dhaka University. Adventure and carrying out new ideas is part of Samadul Haque's character. In 1973 while he was a Secretary of Dhaka College Student Union, travelled to India with a State Student delegation. After a brief break of study to attend Military Academy, Samadul Haque came back to Dhaka University to study Politics. While in the University he was also Director of a family business, Sputnik International Limited. From 1981 to 1983 he traveled to London several times on business. But journey to London in late 1983 was not a very pleasant one. This time he came to London to sue a British Company, Wells Bridge Motors Limited of Cambridge for breach of Contract. This litigation in the High Court of London changed the destiny of Samadul Haque. He decided to live for some time in London and took up a career in media. Soon he was appointed as London Correspondent of Dainik Bangla, then national newspaper of Bangladesh and began writing for different newspapers in Dhaka & London.

In 1984 Samadul Haque joined the Weekly Janomot of London. Soon became the News Editor and Executive Editor, and editor in 1989. In the year 1987 his story on personal life of the then President of Bangladesh H M Ershad was also picked up by Sunday Observer of London as lead story and in response the government of Bangladesh retaliated by banning 'Janomot' in Bangladesh.

He spent good ten years of his youthful time to revitalize and give a solid foundation for Janomot. In 1993-94 he served as part-time Media Consultant of Bethnal Green City Challenge, a project of the Department of Environment of British Government. In 1995 while he was editor of BNS, introduced International news agency service in Bangladesh in Bangla. He also represented CNN in Bangladesh from 1995 – 1998.

Samadul Haque is a pioneer of ethnic television broadcasting in the UK. In May 1998 he with two friends formed Bangla Television Limited and became Managing Director of the company. This Company launched first satellite Bangla TV Channel outside Indian sub-continent on 16 September 1999. During his long career in broadcasting industry he also served as Director of News of Reminiscent Television, Managing Director of Channel S Bangladesh and CEO of Takbeer TV in the UK.

His innovative contribution in British Bangla Media includes launching of 'Daily Janomot', first Bangla internet daily in 1995 and Bangla tele-news service in the UK in 1994. He is also a pioneer of Call Centre industry in Bangladesh. In the year 2009 he opened Orbit Communications Call Centre, first international Call Centre in Bangladesh.

Outside his professional world Samadul Haque is a Community activist. In 80's and 90's he was in the forefront of anti-racist and ethnic minority rights movement in the UK. He was a founder EC member of Tower Hamlets Law Centre, founder General Secretary of Bangla Shahitya Porishod in the UK and also one of the Founder of London Bangla Press Club.

He also participated in the war of liberation of Bangladesh in 1971. He was a member of Bangladesh Liberation Front (BLF).

Immediately after liberation he worked with International / Bangladesh Red Cross Society towards the rehabilitation programme in the war torn areas of the newly born country.

Mr. Hasan first came to the UK in 1979, and settled in the London Borough of Camden. Within the first two years of his settlement in the UK, he started working in the field of community development through Camden Committee for Community Relations (CCCR) and Bengali Workers Action Group (BWAG).

In 1984, he was appointed as part-time Community Development Worker to work with elderly people and homeless families in Camden. In the same year, he was elected as Ethnic Minority Representative to the Inner London Education Authority (ILEA). In 1987, he was appointed to a challenging position as a co-ordinator to redevelop the BWAG known as Surma Community Centre. He has since worked in different senior positions in both voluntary and local government.

He successfully led the completion of the construction work of the purpose-built Surma Community Centre in Camden in 1989. After completion of the Centre, he was strongly supported by the community to take the lead on further development and management of the Centre and was elected chair of BWAG in a voluntary capacity.

In early 1990, he was appointed as Senior Community Development Officer of CHIC, a Charitable Organisation based in Westminster. He has successfully completed graduation on Leadership and Networking from Common Purpose in 1991-1992.

Mr. Hasan has played a key role, along with others, to bring a positive change in Camden which had been experiencing lots of social deprivation and disadvantages. As one of the then young activists, he worked hard to change the destiny of the community: from desperation to dignity and achievement.

Mr. Mahmud Hasan has remarkable contribution to help and support the homeless people, develop health and education, intensify anti-racism campaigns, fight against discrimination and strengthen racial equality.

He has contributed significantly to combat racism, particularly in Central London and is always constructive to develop racial harmony within the multicultural society of Britain.

'He was always engaged voluntarily to act on behalf of others in need and in defence of a moral cause', remembers one Camden resident. Mr. Hasan was elected as the first Bangladeshi chair of Camden Racial Equality Council (CREC) in 1993. A year later, Mr. Hasan was elected as the first Bangladeshi Councillor in the London Borough of Camden. Mr. Hasan has been involved in various Voluntary Sector Organisations including as the Director of Camden Community Law Centre, Voluntary Action Camden, Governor of St Michael School and Kingsway College Corporation, Member of Camden Police Consultative Committee, and Director of Paddington Church's Housing Association.

He is also the founder and current chairman of the Consortium of Bengali Associations (CBA). He was a Civic Ambassador to the London 2012 Olympic Games Forum. Mr. Hasan's profile has been recorded in the Asian "Who's Who" International and in many other publications. Mr. Hasan is currently employed as Chief Executive of APASANTH, a leading social care organisation in the UK working for the people with special needs for over last three decades and APASANTH International, a newly formed CIO. Mr. Hasan is currently leading a ground breaking project in Bangladesh with the aim to raise awareness and educate people with special needs on safe working and daily living practices through the provision of a range of support services.

Md Rajib Hasan is not easily defined by a single title. A software engineer by training, a digital entrepreneur by passion, a journalist by profession, and a writer by heart, his career seamlessly bridges the dynamic worlds of technology and media.

Rajib's journey began with a BSc in Computer Science and Engineering, later enriched by an MBA from Cardiff Metropolitan University in the UK. With this unique combination of technical expertise and business acumen, he has become a trusted advisor for start-ups, guiding them in marketing and digital communication strategies. His digital footprint is equally impressive—over the years, he has developed more than 500 websites and continues to lead in the field of digital marketing.

But Rajib's ambitions extend far beyond technology. In the media landscape, he has carved out a prominent role as the Managing Director of Weekly Bangla News, a well-regarded British-Bangladeshi newspaper based in London. His career in journalism has taken him through some of the UK's most prominent Bangladeshi media outlets, including his tenure as Head of News at NTV Europe. He is also an Executive Member of the Bangladesh Press Club in the UK, where he actively contributes to strengthening Bangladeshi media abroad.

Equally notable is Rajib's creative side. As an author, he has explored both fiction and non-fiction, weaving together narratives that reflect his fascination with technology, society, and culture. His debut novel, Otopor Robot (2016), combined themes of romance and robotics in the UK, while his second, Otopor Mowmita (2017), explored love and the tech-driven culture of Silicon Valley. His most recent book, launched at the 2025 Book Fair in Bangladesh, is a ground breaking non-fiction work titled "Totho Projukti ar Agrodut Begum Khaleda Zia" documenting Bangladesh's ICT advancements during the tenure of Begum Khaleda Zia.

Whether developing cutting-edge digital platforms, leading media institutions, or crafting thought-provoking literature, Md Rajib Hasan continues to inspire. His career is a testament to versatility—showing how technology, communication, and storytelling can come together to create meaningful change. For the younger generation, he stands as both a role model and a reminder that innovation thrives where disciplines meet.

A Turning Point for Hospitality Industry:

Life After the RQF Level 6 Immigration Shift

The UK's Asian restaurant and takeaway sector is world-renowned for its culinary diversity, entrepreneurial spirit, and cultural contribution. Yet, since 22 July 2025, this vibrant industry has been navigating one of its toughest transitions in decades.

The implementation of RQF Level 6 as the minimum threshold for Skilled Worker visa sponsorship has dramatically reshaped recruitment in hospitality. Roles once at the heart of the sector—chefs, bakers, bar managers, restaurant managers, and takeaway managers—are no longer eligible for new Skilled Worker visas. The policy aims to create a "high-skill, high-wage" immigration system, but for hospitality, it has unleashed an urgent workforce challenge.

The UK's vibrant Asian restaurant sector, a cornerstone of British culinary culture, contributes an immense value to the economy.

£4.5BN

However, this vital industry is facing an unprecedented challenge driven by seismic shifts in immigration policy and intense economic pressures, threatening its very foundation.

THE AFTER EFFECTS OF THE CHANGE

RECRUITMENT PIPLINES HAVE DRIED UP

Recent changes to the Skilled Worker visa route have raised the skill threshold to degree level (RQF Level 6), effectively blocking access to vital international talent. With over 100 hospitality roles removed, vacancies are soaring.

INTENSE WAGE & BUSINESS PRESSURES

Fierce competition for a shrinking pool of domestic staff is driving salaries upward. This, combined with high energy costs and inflation, is squeezing already fragile margins, forcing businesses to cut hours and shrink menus.

What is the quick fix?

There is none. Crucially, hospitality roles have been omitted from the government's Temporary Shortage List, meaning relief through overseas recruitment is not an option. Even if these roles were to be added in the future, the new ban on bringing dependents makes the UK a less attractive destination for international workers. This puts independent, family-run establishments at the greatest risk, as they are often the least equipped to weather these challenges.

Abdul is a Senior Government Lawyer and successful social entrepreneur.

As a senior Legal Advisor to Government, Abdul advises departments on a range of commercial matters including Government procurement, commercial disputes, and complex contractual negotiations. Abdul often advises Ministers, the Permanent Secretary and The Secretary of State on matters of national importance. Most notably, Abdul advised the Government in setting up the NHS Nightingale Hospital as part of the Government's response to the Covid-19 pandemic. Abdul has also conducted litigation on behalf of the Ministry of Justice, Ministry of Defence, Department for Work and Pensions and other Government Departments.

Abdul's commitment to public service is not simply restricted to his legal career. Aside from his work as a Government Lawyer, Abdul has founded several community organisations, sports clubs, social enterprises, and Non-Governmental Organisations (NGOs) with the aim of tackling social, educational, and health inequalities faced by many underrepresented communities in London. Most notably, Abdul is the Founder and Managing Director of the "SB Education Group", a leading education provider offering educational and mentoring support services to young people, and "The Future Focus Network" an award-winning NGO that provides employment and training services to the BAME community. He is also the Founder and Chair of the "London Excelsior Sports Club". Since 2012, these organisations have collectively supported thousands of young people across London and Essex and have been recognised nationally as a positive force for good in the community. During the height of the Covid 19 pandemic, more than 300 young people received vital support services including, online supplementary classes to support schools, some received laptops and equipment to help tackle digital exclusion, mental health support services, as well as careers advice. In 2021, Abdul's flagship organisation, "The Future Focus Network" was nominated for "Community Group of the Year" by the prestigious Rotary Club and was nominated as a grant and award body on behalf of The Jack Petchey Foundation.

Because of his extensive work with the BAME community, Abdul was appointed to the Metropolitan Police Encounter Panel in 2022, (East Area - Basic Command Unit) whose task is to monitor and scrutinise police interactions with members of the public. The scrutiny of policing practices via these Panel aims to help improve public trust and confidence in the Met.

Aside from his community work in the UK, Abdul is one of the founding members and Directors of Newlife Medical Services (PVT) Ltd, a primary healthcare clinic in Sylhet, that aims to make world class healthcare services available and accessible to the poor people of rural Bangladesh. To date, the clinic has served thousands of people in Sylhet through medical camps, GP clinics, surgeries, (including cataract operations), telemedicine and ambulance services. Newlife Medical Services is set to launch its phase three programme which will provide greater capacity for more serious operations, with the aim of becoming a fully established community hospital.

Rafiqul Haider, a prominent figure in the Bangladeshi community, was born in Narayanganj, Dhaka, but his roots trace back to Kulaura, Moulvibazar, Bangladesh. After completing his education at Dhaka University, Haider embarked on a remarkable career path.

Haider's family history is marked by notable achievements. His father, Asaddar Ali, served in the British army during World War II, and after the independence of India and Pakistan in 1947, he joined the Bangladesh Inland Water Transport Authority (BIWTA) as an Accounts officer. His mother, Alam Ara Begum, dedicated her life to being a homemaker. Haider's elder brother, Mr. Jalal Uddin Haider, was a freedom fighter who tragically lost his life in the 1971 Bangladesh liberation war.

Mr. Haider is a highly respected business and community figure. He is a partner at Mohammad Shah & CO. LLP, one of the oldest chartered accountancy firms in London, where he has been working since 1995. Haider specialises in VAT, Tax, and investigation cases, and has made remarkable contributions to the community through his expertise in these sectors.

Additionally, he serves as the Finance Director of the Asian Catering Federation, where he is closely involved with the prestigious Asian Curry Awards and other activities of the industry. In January 2025, Mr. Haider was appointed as a trustee of the Darul Amaan Trust at South London, further expanding his role in community leadership. His entrepreneurial ventures span both Bangladesh and the UK, with over two decades of experience in the restaurant and housing sectors.

Prior to his move to the UK, Haider was employed by the Bangladesh government's Social Service department. His dedication to the community extends beyond his professional endeavors. He holds the position of Chief Treasurer for the Global Jalalabad Association and Treasurer of the South London Bangladesh Welfare Association.

Haider's involvement in politics is equally noteworthy. He serves as the Treasurer of the Labour Party's area community, and he is a life member of several prominent organisations, including the Beani Bazar Cancer Hospital, the Bangladesh Welfare Association of Croydon, the Jalalabad Association (UK), the Jokiganj Education Trust, and the Friends of National Heart Foundation Sylhet, registered in the UK. Haider is also working with The Royal Marsden Cancer Charity and The Sreepur Village, Dhaka, Bangladesh.

Mr. Haider's dedication and leadership have earned him several accolades. In 2024, he received the Excellence in Financial Leadership and Community Service award from the Global NRB Awards. In 2025, he was honored with an Excellence Award from the Sunrise Spectrum Bangla radio program.

Haider's family is also highly accomplished. His wife, Sofia Haider, works as a sixth-form coordinator in a school in London. His son is employed in the IT sector in London, while his daughter has graduated with a Law degree.

Rafiqul Haider's remarkable journey and his unwavering dedication to the Bangladeshi community have had a profound positive impact. He remains grateful to his parents, friends, and family for their steadfast support, and he continues to work tirelessly to help and inspire others through his diverse endeavors.

Md Mosaraf Hossen

WHO'S WHO

Md Mosaraf Hossen builds bridges where others see barriers, turning ambition into access and access into advancement. As Founder of Qamla Ltd, he has opened more than 4,000 career opportunities across the UK, designing a recruitment experience that nurtures confidence as much as it connects candidates to roles. From launching Mentor to teach thousands in Bangladesh to executive leadership training at Oxford and recognition at the King's Garden Party at Buckingham Palace, his path reveals a consistent thread: empower people first, and lasting change follows. He does not wait for gates to open; he builds the bridge and invites others across.

Raised in the vibrant port city of Chittagong, he learned discipline and dedication from his father, Md Aktaruzzaman, a mechanical engineer who served BAPLEX for four decades. Engineering might have been the family language, but Mosaraf's heart beat to a different rhythm, one of curiosity, resilience, and an unshakable desire to lift others. While studying Computer Science at the University of Science and Technology Chittagong, he founded Mentor, a tuition initiative through which he taught more than 3,000 students in computing and communications. Those classrooms planted the seeds of his life's mission: equip people with skills, dignity, and forward momentum. Seeking new horizons, he moved to the United Kingdom to complete a Global Master's in Business and Management at the University for the Creative Arts. Like many newcomers, he navigated unfamiliar systems and expectations. Instead of accepting the status quo, he spotted a gap, especially for the South Asian community, in how talent met opportunity. Qamla was his answer. Not a marketplace of listings, but a beacon of empowerment that strengthens skills, readiness, and self belief while matching people with meaningful work.

Under his leadership, Qamla has grown into a trusted name, streamlined, human centered, and practical. It focuses on outcomes over optics, creating pathways where none existed and making sure opportunity is measured by talent, not postcode. Candidates prepare with purpose. Employers hire with confidence. Families feel the lift. The platform's ethos is simple. When tools, training, and trust converge, lives change.

Committed to leading with rigor as well as heart, Mosaraf completed the Oxford Executive Leadership Programme at Said Business School in 2024. The experience sharpened his approach to influence, authenticity, and guiding teams through complexity and change. That same year, he received the British Bangladeshi Who's Who Award for entrepreneurial achievement and community contribution.

In 2025, his dedication to education and skills development was recognized with an invitation to the King's Garden Party at Buckingham Palace, a moment he carried on behalf of a community whose dreams he refuses to let go unheard.

"Our goal is not just recruitment; it is empowerment," he says. That clarity infuses Qamla's day to day work, placements that uplift families, training that unlocks confidence, and partnerships that widen access. The vision ahead is bold and practical: scale Qamla globally so people can build skills, find meaningful roles, and advance with confidence.

From teaching in Bangladesh to building in Britain, from early mentorship to executive leadership, Mosaraf's story is a testament to resilience, aspiration, and service. He creates the pathways others walk. And in doing so, he shows how entrepreneurship becomes leadership, and how leadership, lived with integrity, becomes impact.

Tipu is the eldest son of Al Haj Md. Redwanul Hoque (deceased) and Mrs Rufia Begum from Sreeramshi Degir par, Dist. Sunamgonj.

Tipu is the founder, owner and Managing Director of Unisoft Solutions Ltd developing and supplying EPOS and online ordering software in East London. Born in Bangladesh, Tipu whilst studying for a BA Education at MC College Sylhet, came to the UK in 1989 to join his father, a well respected and successful restaurateur and founder of Sonar Bangla Restaurant at 46 Hanbury Street which became a crucial forum supporting the Bangladesh Independence Movement in 1971, and international political organiser for the Jatiya Janata Party.

Tipu continued his studies in London in English, Computing and MCSE (Microsoft Certified System Engineering). In 1998, merging his IT knowledge and restaurant experience running his father's restaurant and own restaurant, Tipu and his nephew developed a prototype EPOS software for restaurant and takeaway businesses. After using the software in-house, further customisation and development, the software was sold to restaurants and takeaways to provide technology based ordering solutions.

Despite early restaurant business culture resistance to change, fear of technology and financial constraints, Tipu remained steadfast in his passion and aspiration in foreseeing EPOS as an essential business tool for all restaurants/takeaways, however small, which it has become today.

Tipu established Unisoft Solutions Ltd in 2003, which is a thriving supplier of specialist EPOS/Online ordering software to more than a thousand restaurant/takeaway businesses with a local, national and international customer base. Tipu's drive, persistence and firm belief to run a successful business with integrity, professionalism and openness to advice and not mere material gain, has contributed to Unisoft's longevity, ability to change and advance and testament to his self-belief, work ethic and strong religious faith.

Tipu and the Unisoft teams willingness to embrace and adapt the latest technology and trends has allowed it to remain flexible and dynamic in supplying customised online food ordering via website, mobile devices and apps with the latest e-payment methods. Crucial in helping independent restaurants overcome the challenge of competing with major chains, and allowing Unisoft and their customers' to stay ahead of the revolution of online ordering curve.

Running the business from the site of the original family restaurant business, Unisoft staff is stationed locally and remotely in Europe, North America and Asia. Tipu has stayed close to his roots and remains well-grounded. He acknowledges and appreciates the support of his family, especially his father and long-term colleagues and friends including his brother Amlak; Asfar, Nisar, Abu and Gary. Tipu also recognises the continued loyal customer support since 1998 achieved by a genuine commitment to putting customers' first. Apart from family and business, Tipu actively supports community voluntary organisations in the UK and Bangladesh. Tipu has one younger brother Amlak and two sisters Salma and Halima.

A dedicated family man, Tipu is married to Mrs Rumena Jamjam Chowdhury living together with their son E. Hoque Mahdi, daughter Mahira Asma Hoque and Tipu's mother.

Subrina Hossain is a successful TV executive, a popular media personality and a dedicated business woman. She is the Chief Executive of NTV Europe and also overlooks the daily operations for many other businesses both at national and international level.

Her bold venture has proven a phenomenal success, making the NTV brand the leading Bangladeshi TV channel around the world.

A resilient adaptable and strong willed individual of Bangladeshi origin, she overcame cultural and religious barriers to reach her goals. Her relentless efforts over the years have successfully resulted in raising the Bengali profile to the mainstream British society. She is regarded as a celebrity by the Asian media and business community.

Subrina graduated from the London Metropolitan University with a law degree. It was then, where her leadership attributes began to emerge, as she was elected the star of the law course representing student's needs, concerns and expectations to the university officials.

Aside from her full time profession, she is also known for her dedication for helping the community and an active fundraiser for a number of leading charities.

Recently she made history by becoming the first female to be elected on the board of Directors on the British Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce. She is also the Vice President for British Bangladeshi Chambers of Women Entrepreneurs an organization looking at profiling successful business women in British Society.

In response to the government's calls to businesses to create opportunities for local people into training and employment, Subrina has set up a social enterprise along with a community interest chest.

She is a qualified training provider and is delivering relevant training programs for local unemployed people, helping hundreds to improve their chances of securing apprenticeships, training and employment.

Subrina also has a keen interest in politics formally joining the Conservative Party in November 2008. She founded and chaired the London Metropolitan University Conservative Group, where she made over 100 members in a short space of time.

She was elected Executive Member for Poplar & Limehouse Conservative Association for the past three years and represents the Association at Party and regional conferences.

In May 2010, Subrina was the Conservative Council Candidate for the Bromley by Bow ward in Tower Hamlets; a Ward, which has historically been a very comfortable seat for the Labour Party.

The Conservative Party votes in this local ward have always been around 200-250. However, Subrina received over 1100 votes, a massive 6% swing.

Currently she holds the Chair position for Conservative Friends of Bangladesh Women Group. She aims to encourage more women from the Bangladeshi community to join the party. Recently she received freedom of London award.

Shah Hussain, originally from Sylhet, Bangladesh, moved to the UK in 1978 and pursued his education in Burnley, attending Gawthorpe High School and Burnley College. He later earned a BA(Hons) from the University of Hull and a Post Graduate Diploma in Careers Guidance from Huddersfield University. Since graduating, Shah has worked in various roles within local government and is currently part of a Community Mental Health Team. His career is marked by a deep commitment to community activism, beginning with his involvement in youth and community development.

One of Shah's significant contributions to his community was his advocacy for the establishment of Burnley Borough's first purpose-built Mosque and Islamic Centre. Despite facing considerable opposition, Shah campaigned and spoke passionately at the meetings and various events, his efforts were instrumental in the project's approval. Over the years, Shah has held various roles as both an officer and volunteer in community groups, ensuring that the needs of local residents are addressed.

Shah has also been deeply involved in UK mainstream politics. He served as the Secretary for the Burnley Constituency Labour Party (CLP) for many years. However, he resigned from this position in November 2023 due to disagreements with the Labour leadership over their stance on Palestine. Shah's political career includes his election as a councillor for the Daneshouse and Stoneyholme Ward in 2007, a position he has held with increasing majorities in subsequent elections. Notably, he was the first person from a Black, Asian, and Minority Ethnic (BAME) background to serve on the council's Executive and is currently serving as the first Mayor of Burnley from Bangladeshi origin for the 2024-2025 municipal year.

Shah expresses deep gratitude to the residents of his ward for their continued support, finding immense satisfaction in directly helping people and influencing positive changes in their lives. He takes pride in living in Burnley with his family and feels privileged to represent the borough as its first citizen. As Mayor, Shah enjoys visiting various community organizations, championing their work, and raising funds for local charities. He remains actively engaged with his constituents, regularly conducting ward walks to address their concerns and report issues.

In his personal life, Shah enjoys cycling through the picturesque Lancashire countryside and moors, traveling, watching football and cricket, and spending quality time with family and friends. His lifelong dedication to community service and his ongoing commitment to the people of Burnley reflect his passion for making a meaningful impact on the lives of those around him.

Sayed Saiful Hussain (also known as Iqbal Bahar) has been a community activist for the last 28 years working to represent the Bangladeshi culture through media and entertainment. From his early childhood, Sayed has always enjoyed making others laugh. He has always had a special talent for entertaining so he participated in media class at school. Sayed furthered his passion for entertainment after he came to England from Bangladesh in 1992 by appearing on multiple Bangladeshi media channels including NTV, ATN, Channel S and Channel I. He quickly gained popularity in the Bangladeshi community becoming a well known actor, model, presenter and singer. His work in the TV industry has helped to showcase Bengali culture to others as well as instil pride in Bengalis for their country. Not only does he support the Bengali culture, he also aims to inspire others of the South Asian community.

One hobby that Sayed loves is singing. He has released music on YouTube and hopes to release more in the future. Moreover, he was employed by Kings College London to work as a music teacher for the Third Age Project allowing him to share his love of music to students.

Sayed has performed in many impressive settings like the Royal Albert Hall where he was invited to sing.

He has also acted in the famous 'New Home' and 'Polashi Teke Dhanmondi' plays written by the late Abdul Gaffar Chowdhury working alongside many famous film actors such as: Abul Hayath, Bipasha Hayath, Syed Hassan Iman, Laila Hassan and Pijush Bandapoddai. He performed these plays in several locations including the Logan Hall in London, the Elizabeth Hall in Oldham and a hall in Birmingham. His talent led to him receiving many awards including an award for the 'Best TV Advert Personality' given by Ekty Shahed Ali Upohar and the 'Best Actor Award' given by Rahmat Ali from Darpon Magazine. In addition to this, the Bengali Sunrise Radio host, Misbha Jamal, presented Sayed with the title of 'Best Presenter'. An achievement that Sayed is very proud of is the award given by Camden's former mayor, Abdul Khadir, for his work as a community activist. But above all, the greatest prize the actor, singer, model and presenter has ever received is the love that has been bestowed from the multicultural society.

Overall, Sayed Saiful Hussain has had an immense positive impact on the Bangladeshi community through his work in the media and entertainment industry. He is extremely grateful to his parents, friends and family for their support. He continues to work hard for Bangladeshis and hopes to help and inspire others with his work.

Abdul Hye is an award-winning businessman, community activist and international philanthropist from Cambridge. Born in Bangladesh in 1967, he lived through the devastating war of independence in 1971 where more than 3 million lives were lost. The hardship has been the driver for his community and charitable work.

Abdul left school aged 16 without any qualifications but now owns several successful businesses.

The success of these businesses has meant he has been able to help the most needy and vulnerable in society in both the UK and Bangladesh. Abdul has devoted over 30 years to volunteering and charitable initiatives, leaving a lasting impact both locally, nationally and globally.

Over the years, Abdul has not only spearheaded numerous projects focused on education, healthcare, and poverty alleviation as the founder of AH Foundation. He has established very successful partnerships with many local organisations including Cambridge United Community Trust, Cambridge Sustainable Food, Abbey People and other local food hubs including Cambridge Food Poverty Alliance & Jimmy's Shelter.

Since 2010, Abdul has been a driving force in the Bangladesh Welfare and Cultural Association Cambridge, raising funds for local community projects. His dedication to his roots is further evident through his role as a trustee of the Dusthopur Development Project, where he has raised over £60,000 to enhance education and welfare in his hometown.

A life member and active volunteer at the Cambridge Central Mosque, Abdul has played a pivotal role in fundraising efforts, contributing to the mosque's remarkable £25 million campaign. As Europe's first eco-friendly mosque, this landmark project reflects his commitment to sustainability and community development.

Abdul's unwavering dedication to philanthropy and community service continues to inspire and uplift countless lives, making him a true pillar of compassion and generosity.

Shelim Hussain MBE was born in 1973. He is best described as an entrepreneur having started his first business in 1991 at the age of 18 while working part-time as a waiter and studying at college for his A Levels.

Mr Hussain saw an opportunity in the market for prawn supply and started off by selling a few boxes of frozen prawns with his friend, delivering them at night while continuing with his education during the day. His business had an initial capital of only £20. Currently, the annual turnover of his business is around £40 million.

He formed Eurofoods UK in 1993 and the company has grown rapidly since. He employs over 200 staff and has food processing units in Newport, South Wales and in Barking. He also has a new plant and four factories in Bangladesh, and has started a subsidiary in New York.

Aside from Eurofoods he has also invested in the property development business in Wales. Mr Jahedi has done a lot of work for charities in the UK and Bangladesh, and has established an Islamic school in his homeland for girls who cannot afford a basic education.

Mr Jahedi is married to Abeda Sultana Lucky, and they have three children – two daughters and a son.

Jalal Rajonuddin came to the UK with his parents at the age of 12, after the liberation war of Bangladesh in 1972. He later graduated in social, political and economic studies and secured a post graduate degree in Management Studies. In his teens Jalal participated and led the resistance of Bangladeshis in Tower Hamlets and London following the murder of Altab Ali in 1978. This achievement has been made into a Channel 4 documentary and broadcasted recently. This event was the spur, which radicalised and propelled him into organising Bangladeshi youths and then the entire community in the voluntary and community sector for the next 50 years. Jalal was a pioneer in setting up community organisations amongst youth, in the field of racial equality, education, local economic development, culture etc. Amongst others, he was founder Secretary of The Bangladeshi Youth Movement (1976) and Federation of Bangladesh Youth Organisations-FBYO (1982), Co-founder of the Hackney and Tower Hamlets Defence Committee [1978], Community representative on the Race and Housing Action Forum of the former Greater London Council-GLC [1986], Founder Chairperson of Tower Hamlets Association for Racial Equality-THARE (1984), Secretary of Bangladesh Educational Needs-BENTH (1985) and Co-ordinator of Tower Hamlets Initiative on arts, culture and education (1985).

Jalal was also the key campaigner for persuading local, regional and national governments to create and establish a community assets base and was instrumental in creating a political coalition to establish the following: the Bangladesh Centre, Kobi Nazrul Centre, Weavers Youth Centre, Whitechapel Centre, Children's Education Centre, Davenant and "Jagonari" Women's Centre, Rich Mix Centre, Berner Youth Club, Wapping Youth Centre etc. Jalal not only established organisations in different spheres but also began to represent the local ethnic minorities on different representative bodies. He sat on the National Steering Committee of Anti-Nazi League, was a member on Joint Docklands

Action Committee—JDAG, Board member of various Regeneration bodies like City Challenge, City Fringe, Single Regeneration Budget Board (SRB) and New Deal for Communities.

This trajectory of campaigning, representing, establishing community cohesion, resistance and resilience made Jalal gravitate in a political direction and he became involved in local and regional mainstream politics. He joined the Labour Party and participated in Trade Union activities in the 1970's and began the uphill task of representation of Bangladeshis and other ethnic minorities in party or organisational bodies and then onto to local elections.

Jalal became a Councillor in Tower Hamlets in 1990 and rose to become Deputy Leader and Chairperson of Regeneration Committee from 1990 to 1998. In this capacity he represented the London Borough of Tower Hamlets on the former London Dockland Development Corporation—LDDC [Canary Wharf, DLR and Social Accord Developments]. He also went on to be on the approved list of Labour's prospective parliamentary candidates [PPC], EU candidates and GLA member candidates. During this period he implemented housing, regeneration and economic initiatives with partner organisations, by attracting special funding allocations from the national government and European Commission. Moreover, Jalal was instrumental in re-naming the Altab Ali Park, setting up the "Banglatown" [including the annual "Baishaki Mela"], and established the local "Soheed Minar".

After leaving active community work and politics Jalal worked in a number of charity organisations, the Royal London NHS Trust, the Tower Hamlets College, and Havering Council. After early retirement Jalal is involved as a feature writer, political and media commentator in various publications, radio and TV channels.

Presently Jalal is involved in writing his memoirs. He is married to Gulshanara Ahmed and has two daughters and a son.

Abdul Musabbir Karim — widely known as Sabbir — is a multi-award-winning chef-patron, entrepreneur, humanitarian, and aviation leader whose career spans over three decades across hospitality, charity, and international travel.

The only Bangladeshi serving in a management role as In-flight Leader Cabin Crew with British Airways for over 29 years, Sabbir has combined his global travel experience with a deep passion for food, bringing world-class culinary inspiration back to London. His achievements in the skies are matched by his success on the ground as founder of three acclaimed modern Indian restaurants — Salaam Namaste, Namaaste Kitchen, and Namaaste Highgate — all recognised for their innovation, quality, and vibrant dining experiences, attracting high-profile guests including politicians, celebrities, and the UK Prime Minister.

Described by The Guardian as “a maestro in modern Indian and traditional cooking” and awarded a rare 9/10 review, Sabbir is known for continually evolving his craft and his celebrated Peshawari Lamb Chops recipe was published in The Sunday Telegraph alongside Prince William’s Wedding Menu. His accolades include Best Asian & Oriental Chef of the Year (2012), Best Asian & Oriental Innovative Chef of the Year (2013). In 2024, he was honoured by the Asian Curry Awards for his outstanding contribution to both catering industry and charity.

Sabbir is also deeply engaged in public life. A respected media voice, Sabbir has appeared on BBC, Zee TV, and international radio. He has served as a judge for the Asian Curry Awards’ Chef Cook of the Year competition and mentors the next generation of chefs on the live TV show Catering Circle.

Involved in British politics and a Chairperson of the British Bangladeshi Friends of Labour, an organisation supported by UK Prime Minister Sir Keir Starmer, using his platform to strengthen community engagement and political representation. In Ramadan 2024, the Prime Minister visited his restaurant with his family during Ramadan to open the fast alongside Sabbir and his wife Aneela — a reflection of his standing in both community and national circles.

A committed humanitarian, Sabbir is a trustee with the British NGO The Sreepur Village in Bangladesh for over 30 years. He is founder of the Sabbir Karim Foundation, supporting underprivileged communities through youth sports and one-time life-changing interventions, and of the SN Free Primary Health Care Trust (named after his mother, Salimun Nessa), which provides free medicine and consultations to impoverished families in Maulvibazar, Bangladesh, inspired by the UK’s NHS model. His charitable work has also included UNICEF, Action Against Hunger, and Find Your Feet’s Curry for Change campaign.

Sabbir Karim has demonstrated unwavering dedication to helping and supporting people, not only in Camden but across the UK and internationally. His selfless contributions to society, spanning decades, exemplify the qualities of an unsung hero in our community. Sabbir’s character, compassion, and the tangible impact he has made on countless lives

Whether serving passengers at 35,000 feet, diners in central London, or communities in rural Bangladesh, Sabbir Karim blends entrepreneurial drive, cultural pride, and a deep belief in using success to lift others — a mission to inspire, innovate, and make a lasting difference.

Former Mayor Humayun Kabir comes from Islam Pur, Jagannath Pur, Sunamganj but lived in Shapla Bagh in Sylhet and moved in UK after the independence of Bangladesh in 1972 with his parents former Headmaster Late Abdul Gafur BA-BT, and mother late Rukeya Begum Gafur.

He moved to Croydon and opened his first catering business in 1977. Now serving as Mayor of Croydon for 2019-20 he looks forward to working for the benefit of our wonderful community.

After studying his Bachelor of Education degree, he began a new career with Tower Hamlets Council - as a parent advocate & family support services manager. This incredibly fulfilling role has made supporting children with disabilities, and their families, a cause very close to his heart.

He has been actively involved in local politics for 17 years and served as a councillor since 2010 (representing Bensham Manor Ward). He previously served as a deputy cabinet member for economy & jobs, and for finance & treasury, plus he was vice chair of the planning committee for several years.

He first became involved in community work through what is now called the Croydon Bangladesh Welfare Association - which he was president for two terms. He was a founding member of the Asian Resource Centre and was part of the steering committee that helped to develop Shahjalal Mosque.

Whilst Mr Kabir was busy with his profession, community activities and family life in UK he maintained to strong link and relationship with Bangladesh. He was elected in 1994 as president of Sylhet Gonodabi Parishad UK which lobbied Bangladesh government with many issues that Probashi Bangladeshi were facing at that time. There were 3 different demands were prioritised to BD government and they were: to upgrade Sylhet airport to an international airport, to upgrade Sylhet district to a division, to have voting right of Bangladeshis as dual citizen. Mayor Kabir was a leading community leader to achieve these rights.

Furthermore, in order to raise social, economical and educational standard of Bangladeshis that he left behind mayor Kabir has taken up chairmanship of Aralia Bazar Education Trust, trusteeship in Jagannathpur British Bangla Education Trust UK (JBBET), Secretary ship of Patli Union Welfare Trust (PUWT), Donor Membership with Jagannathpur Unnoyon Shongstha UK (JUSS), and an honorary advisor to British Bangladeshi Society Croydon (BBSC). Mayor Kabir remained active in Bangladesh whilst serving his hometown the London Borough of Croydon. Away from politics, he enjoys travelling and playing badminton.

He is married to Mayoress Rahena Chowdhury Kabir with three children, daughters Kuhinoor and Sumaiya, one son Mistaun and a daughter-in-law Mazedra.

Monsur Ahmed Khan is a highly experienced educator with a career spanning 35 years, dedicated to fostering young minds and promoting educational growth. Born on December 16, 1959, in Pattan Tilla, Fenchugonj, Sylhet, Bangladesh, he grew up in a family deeply committed to education. His father, the late Intazir Khan, was a highly respected educationalist and a Headteacher/Rector who played a key role in promoting education and was a founding member in establishing several prominent educational institutions in the region.

Monsur Khan's educational journey began at Kasim Ali Model High School, where he completed his SSC in 1975. He then pursued his HSC at (MC) Government College, followed by a B.Com and M.Com from Madan Mohan College under the University of Chittagong and Jagannath University College. His dedication to education was further demonstrated through his involvement with the Rotary movement, including serving as a Rotarector under the Ramna South Rotary Club. The club also hosted the "Last Call '84" conference for District 328 in Dhaka, Bangladesh.

In 1984, Mr. Khan travelled to England for a Rotary International convention in Birmingham, which led to an opportunity to study for a business diploma at the London School of Foreign Trade. He continued his studies with CSS (PECU) at Salford College of Technology. His qualifications and background in education eventually led him to a role as a bilingual instructor in a primary school in the UK. This position allowed him to pursue and complete a PGCE at the University of Manchester in 1993, marking the start of his long and fulfilling career in education.

Mr. Khan has been actively involved in various social volunteering activities, including local community organizations, mosques, and the British Bangladeshi Civil Society. He served for 14 years on the Board of Governors at Ashton Sixth Form College, Tameside, working on different committees to enhance the learning environment. He also served for 12 years as an executive board member/director at the Tameside Race Equality & Diversity Centre, working on equal opportunities and collaborating with various fringe service groups, such as the Kick Racism Out campaign, and organizing cultural fusion events.

He is currently involved with The Christie, Manchester, the world's leading cancer hospital, and has contributed to the development of charitable organizations in Bangladesh, including helping to establish mosques, madrasahs, a cancer hospital, and other charitable facilities. He is also serving as the General Secretary of the Friends of the National Heart Foundation Hospital Sylhet, UK, supporting a fully functioning institution for heart-related concerns and treatments for the destitute in Bangladesh.

For 22 years, Mr. Khan taught in various primary schools in Tameside. In 2012, after a brief health-related hiatus, he returned to education by establishing the "Milkyway Pre-School Playgroup" alongside his wonderful wife, Meherun Nessa Khan. He has also facilitated training for many childcare practitioners and contributed to the sector with quality staff.

Throughout his career, Monsur Ahmed Khan has been dedicated to inclusivity and community service. His work aims to ensure equitable educational opportunities for all children and their parents. He has a beautiful family of four highly educated children, all of whom are successful in their own professions. Since 1984, Mr. Khan has had the opportunity and capacity to serve the wider communities in many ways in England, positively impacting thousands of students now working in various professions with pride. Monsur Ahmed Khan continues to follow in his father's footsteps, highlighting his commitment to education, community involvement, and cultural preservation, impacting many lives in both the UK and Bangladesh.

Muzahid Khan DL's life is a shining example of compassion, innovation, and a strong commitment to making a difference. From his humble beginnings in war-torn Bangladesh to his role as Deputy Lieutenant of Greater Manchester, Muzahid has dedicated himself to helping others and creating positive change wherever he goes.

His parents, especially his mother and late father, taught him the values of empathy and service early on, shaping his worldview and inspiring him to give back. These values are at the heart of his book, The Gift of Giving, which was released in May 2021. The book shares his belief that generosity has the power to transform lives and encourages readers to embrace giving as a way to enrich their own lives and the lives of others.

As a social business and innovation professional, he uses his creativity and strategic thinking to develop solutions that bring positive change to society. He's also a certified NLP coach, helping others achieve success in their personal and professional lives by unlocking their potential and overcoming challenges.

His work in local government gave him valuable insights into urban renewal, showing that even in tough situations, there are always opportunities for growth. But his impact goes beyond his professional roles—he volunteers his time on the boards of several charitable organisations, including Maggie's Cancer Centre and the Amana Foundation, as well leading on the medical facility built in his home village of Singerkas, Biswanath providing free healthcare for the poor, opening its door in 2016.

Muzahid's dedication hasn't gone unnoticed. In 1998, he was honoured by (late) Queen Elizabeth II as a young achiever, and in 2000, former Prime Minister Tony Blair recognised his exceptional community service. These awards highlight his tireless work to make the world a better place and his influence both locally and globally.

One of his greatest achievements is his appointment as Deputy Lieutenant of Greater Manchester, recognising his leadership and charitable work. Muzahid is a passionate advocate for Oldham, the town where he now lives, and supports local businesses and communities through his work with organisations like Asian Business Leaders and Upturn Social Enterprise.

In addition to his work and charity, Muzahid finds joy and purpose in cycling. He organises charity bike rides, both in the UK and Bangladesh, to raise funds and awareness for important causes.

Muzahid Khan DL's story is one of service, leadership, and a lifelong dedication to making the world a better place. His journey from a young boy with big dreams to a respected leader shows the power of kindness, hard work, and the belief that everyone has something to give. Through his actions, writing, and leadership, Muzahid continues to inspire others to embrace the power of giving and make a lasting impact on the world.

Mashuk Ahmed Khan ("Ahmed-Khan") is the eldest son of Mohammed Matiur Rahman Khan and Begum Jamila Khan of an academically enriched respectable Muslim family of landed gentry and successful entrepreneurship, of village Gangajal, Zakigonj, of district Sylhet.

Ahmed-Khan is an unassuming, spatiotemporally adaptable, vivacious individual, avid to his continued self development. Following his MA and a PG Diploma in Human Resource Management ("HRM"), he completed an M.Phil research on International HRM titled "Export Orientated Industrialisation and the Exploitation of Labour in the Developing Economies". Thereafter he reassigned his academic interest in Law with sustained enthusiasm and achieved a Master of Laws degree ("LL.M") with merit from the World-class Birkbeck College of the University of London. He lately achieved another LL.M by thesis on Professional Legal Practice from the reputable BPP University – complementing his PG Diploma in legal practice. He is committed to legal research on International Human Rights, apropos the virtues, protections, abuse, and myths, surrounding its universal ideologies espoused by the nation states. He formerly scrutinised the US government policies on incarceration, capital punishment and death-row phenomenon in light of European Court of Human Rights' decision in Soering v United Kingdom [1989]. His current undertaking involves critical evaluation of Post-Brexit impact on human rights in UK, and its government's controversial deportation of asylum seekers to Rwanda, contravening UK's fundamental obligations with requisite standards of "legality and appropriateness" being unmet, under the Refugee Convention.

Ahmed-Khan is a legal academic and an advocate of Human Rights. He specialises in Human Rights, Family, Employment, and Advanced Commercial Property laws. He is a member of the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development, and The University of Oxford Philosophical Society. He is a keen reader on Marx, Rousseau, Bentham, Mills, Hobbes and Locke and also a political critique, columnist, a Rotarian, and an author endowed with literary skills. He has written numerous articles on political affairs and governance of his native Bangladesh, including "Our Independence Hitherto Confined in Political Wilderness" (Bangla Mirror, 11/01/2013), depicting a momentous account of Bangladesh's morbid political antecedents and its fetid political environment. His patriotic poems "In the love of my nation" and "My heart cries for the fallen" composed in retrospect to Bangladesh liberation war and its post independence political crises were published in Bangla Mirror, London; Sylhet Madan Mohan University College Literary Council's publication "Katha Lata"; and in Sylhet Mobile Pataghar's narrative publication "Chayalap".

His recent Bangla Mirror publications include: Israel's Wars on Gaza and the Rise of Dahiya Doctrine; Zelensky's War: who is at fault; The Russia-West Stand - off Mimicking 1962 Cuban Missile Crisis; Modi's Hinduvta Riddling the Indian Constitution and, Bangladesh and the COVID-19.

Ahmed-Khan is married to Shamim Ara Begum (Rose) and blessed with a son and two daughters namely: Mustafa, Nabila and Farzana. All three children had the privilege of attending private schools from day one of their schooling lives unto the sixth forms. The son is a Litigation Executive for the NHS and married to Nafisa Islam – a school teacher. The eldest daughter is graduated in Accounting and Finance and married to Mihaz Bokth – a Chartered Certified Accountant. The youngest daughter achieved a first class honours degree in Accounting and Finance and qualified as a Chartered Certified Accountant following completion of her ACCA in 2017. Ahmed-Khan is overjoyed with three lovely grandchildren namely Raniya and Ilyas Khan, and Aizah Bokth.

He has five younger brothers. The immediate younger one had his further education from Sylhet Polytechnic College. Each of the other four brothers has multiple Masters Degrees in various disciplines from reputable Universities at home (Dhaka & Chittagong) and abroad (Sydney, London & Cornell (NY), and domiciled in the UK and USA.

Ahmed Khan asserts himself a devout "British Muslim" – proudly upholding his religious values and traditions – while profoundly deferential to synonymous interests of all other social groups in British society. His pastimes include reading books, watching documentaries, listening Tagore Songs, Urdu Ghazals, Mozart and Pavarotti.

He deferred his Ph.D in Islamic Law at SOAS, during completing his pupillage with Marion Smullen, at chambers of Marion Smullen and Kerim Fuad Q.C. specialising in criminal defence and public law and has been actively involved in the Bibi case, challenging the UK's immigration age bar to overseas marriages.

Prior to a career at the Bar, Islam was a junior civil servant in various departments at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. This included the Human Rights Policy Department, the Foreign Office branch of UK-visas (now substantially UKBA), Consular and headed the Benefits, pay and policy section of HR. He also served overseas as a diplomatic officer.

He sits on a number of panels in Tower Hamlets and advises many charitable organisations across the country. Notably, he was involved in engaging various stakeholders to diffuse the Shajalal mosque fiasco to ensure that public money was kept safe and avoid a dangerous precedent being set. Most recently he has been engaged in drafting grounds in challenging the policy on "maintenance undertakings". There has been significant interest in the case from leading organisations in Tower Hamlets and the BBC.

His published articles to date are: 1. International Law and The legality of the Flotilla raid by Israel; 2. Indirect discrimination by raising the marriage age rule to 21; 3. Religious implications for Hindu pyres in the UK (Ghai and Others); 4. FGM: "an Islamic practice or modern fashion; and 5. Mediation in practice. He has submitted a plan to publish a legal dictionary for the lay person in crime and hopes this will materialise shortly.

He is the proud father of Sadia, Yusuf and his lovely twins: Aaliyah and Amirah. In his past times he enjoys reading, sea fishing and travelling.

Former Mayor Tahir Khan of Luton was born in 1967 in Bangladesh and came to live in the UK in 1982. The rise of racial tensions and arrival of young new migrant community from South Asia particularly from Bangladesh proved to be a challenging dilemma for the authorities to cope. The experience of new migrant young people in the eighties led to abandoning his ambition to study medicine but inspired him to get involved in youth and community work to support young people in improving their life chances. He studied DipHE in Youth and Community Development at the De Montfort University and a management degree at the University of Bedfordshire. Tahir joined Bangladesh Welfare Association in 1986 as a Community Worker to pursue his mission of supporting the local community with their challenges. In 1988 he joined Bangladesh Youth League (Luton) (BYL) and was elected as President. His passion to develop community leaderships led to developing a governance system within BYL that ensured youth involvement and participation at all level within the organisation, providing platform for young people to develop and nurture key skills of leadership.

Tahir played an instrumental lead role in progressing the business of the BYL developing innovative projects that responded to ever changing needs of young people in the most deprived parts of Luton and won a number of high profile awards. The most significant project achievement has been founding of the Centre for Youth and Community Development (CYCD) in 1995.

Tahir served as the founding Chairman for CYCD and he is also a successful entrepreneur, volunteered as community activist served as Treasurer for the Bedfordshire Youth Association a regional umbrella organisation, was Board Member of Princes Trust Bedfordshire Committee for 10 years, served as a Director to Luton and Dunstable Partnership Board and led on international development projects on behalf of a charity including establishing a school cum cyclone shelter in SIDR effected area of Bangladesh. Tahir currently serves on the board of a number of charities.

Using BYL as a platform he engaged at national level with Home Office's Special Support Unit and Equalities Associates in delivering a specialist training program to Senior Police Officers and Judges across the nation. Challenging the institutional racism that infested the police force and judicial system led to influencing much of the changes that we see today.

Tahir has been working for Local Government for over 26 years in various capacities including at senior management level. He worked for Bedfordshire County Council, Luton Borough Council and some of the London boroughs. In his work life he has always been championing the young people's issues and developing opportunities for young people to participate in positive activities and his work gaining national and local awards. He was elected as Councillor in 2007 and served in a number of committees. Following the local election he was subsequently elected to the Council's Executive. He successfully served as Lead Cabinet Member for Children Services for 5 years. Amongst the many projects some of the highlights of his cabinet role has been BSF programme, achievement of 5 star Children Services by Ofsted, convincing the Council to allocate Bath Road site for a new primary school, development of Children Centres. He is also a Director at London Luton Airport Board.

He organised games with West Ham and Chelsea. Mohamadan Sporting Club, Abahani Football Club and Chittagong have benefited from these visits.

Yawar Khan is a Successful Pioneering Restaurateur, the Founder & Chair of Asian Catering Federation and Asian Curry Awards and the Vice President of the European Small Business Alliance (ESBA) .

Mr Yawar Khan has been a successful restaurateur since the establishment of his first restaurant - the Akash Tandoori in Wallington, Sutton over 43 years ago in 1978. He is one of the early pioneers of the now thriving Curry industry in Britain.

When the UK Government introduced limitations on visa awards to overseas workers in 2008 Yawar Khan rose to the challenge and founded the Federation of Bangladeshi Caterers - an organisation committed to providing support and advice and to the promotion of the cuisine, interests and activities of more than 12,000 British Bangladeshi restaurants in the UK at that time. With 8 out of 10 Indian restaurants in the UK owned by Bangladeshis, these restaurants formed the backbone of the British Curry Industry.

Some three years later in 2011, as a response to the growing demands of a burgeoning wider Asian population in the UK (there are more than 4.5 million Asians living in Britain), Yawar Khan took a lead in founding the Asian Catering Federation in an attempt to forge collaboration and cooperation between the different umbrella groups - the Bangladeshi Caterers Federation; the Chinese Takeaway Association and the Malaysian Restaurant Association and to provide a united front in terms of support and advice to the needs of restaurateurs serving cuisine from across the Asia spectrum. These included Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, Burma, China, the Philippines, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, The Middle East, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Thailand and Vietnam.

The Federation led a robust campaign to galvanise parliamentary members to support the designation of Bangladeshi workers as a 'shortage occupation' in order to make it easier to obtain special work permits. This eventually led to the establishment of an All Party Parliamentary Group in 2014. Yawar Khan then capped these remarkable achievements by establishing the much celebrated annual Asian Curry Awards (now in its 12th year) .

Yawar Khan is currently Vice President of the European Small Business Alliance (ESBA) representing and advocating on behalf of over one million small businesses across 36 European countries in the European parliament in Brussels. Yawar Khan continues to find time to commit to charitable work during the Covid Pandemic which shut down of the hospitality industry over a two year period - as government restrictions were introduced, Yawar Khan and his fellow director's encouraged critical support of food provision to hospital and emergency workers from among his federation members.

Yawar Khan also participates every year in fund-raising projects in association with the Mayor and Municipality of Sutton - raising thousands of pounds for the South Western Thames Kidney Fund, Cancer Research UK and other charities such as the Asian Trust. For over forty years he has maintained continual support to humanitarian organisations in his country of origin - Bangladesh, working closely with charities such as the Beanibazar Cancer and General Hospital.

Her qualifications include a Bachelor of Arts with Honours in Social Science, a degree in Social Welfare Practice, and a Joint National Committee (JNC) qualification in Youth and Community Development. Currently, she is employed as a Mental Health Specialist with CNWL CAMHS.

Throughout her career, she has taken on leadership roles, managing and supervising teams in the absence of senior staff. She has also contributed to academia as a lecturer at the University of Bedfordshire, focusing on contemporary social issues. Additionally, Cllr Ayesha served as a practice educator, guiding students in their learning and development. Her involvement in the recruitment process for the National Youth Agency has allowed her to influence course design and delivery at the university level.

Her work emphasizes collaboration with diverse communities to promote inclusion, tackle deprivation, and enhance access to essential services. She has experience in research, report writing, and community profiling, and has partnered with clinical commissioning groups to raise awareness of COVID-19 safety within the BAME community. Her role in a steering group comprising female leaders from the BAME community has enabled her to organize initiatives addressing perinatal mental health, social inclusion, and other pressing issues.

She has participated in numerous local and national projects aimed at fostering positive change, such as contributing to the construction of a school and a place of worship for a remote village in Bangladesh.

Her commitment to community service extends to my involvement with various charities, including the MK NHS Maternity Liaison Committee, MKBA Women's Network, and the Islamic Arts, Heritage and Culture. As a board member of the Equality Council UK and an advisory board member for Thames Valley Police, she actively promotes community cohesion and organize events that address social challenges.

She is passionate about the development of her town and community, consistently seeking innovative ideas to enhance better living environment. Her belief in collaborative, multi-agency efforts has been reinforced by her service as a local Parish Councillor for Bletchley and Fenny Stratford, and She has recently been elected as a city councillor for Bletchley Park.

Having lived in Bletchley for over 40 years, she possesses a deep understanding of the wider community. This background has motivated Ayesha to effect change across various levels, extending beyond her own Bangladeshi community, which has provided her with valuable insights.

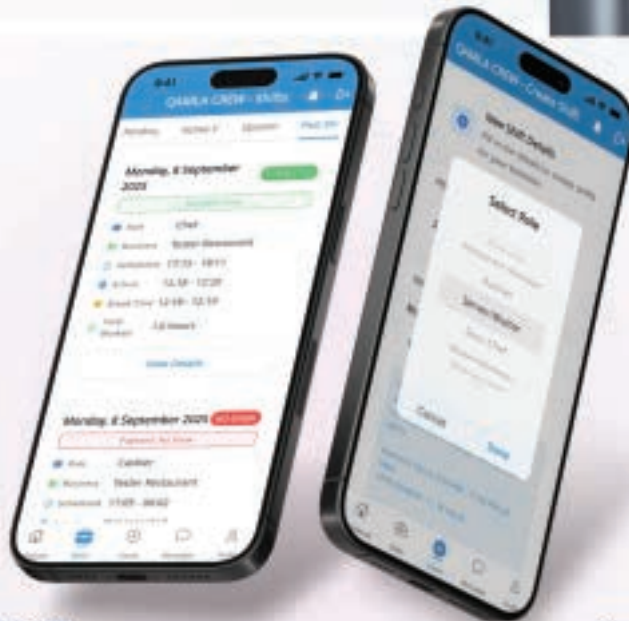

She is driven by a strong desire to assist communities, often finding it difficult to decline opportunities to help. As a 'people person,' she thrives on engaging with individuals from all walks of life. She believes that she can achieve beyond the goals set for herself and remain open to diverse career opportunities.

She considers herself a resilient individual capable of influencing positive choices for her community. While she faced challenges, these experiences have only deepened her and broadened her understanding more.

Cllr Ayesha enjoys travelling, spending quality time with her family, learning new languages, reading, and appreciating nature.

Born in Charar Paar Sylhet, to her parents late Minu Khan and late Shamsun Nessa Khanom. Shuva came to East London in 1974 with her husband Md Abdul Matin, originally from Chowki Dekhi, Sylhet.

Her first encounter with the community was at St Hilda's Community Centre in East London in 1975, where she took her son there for a check up and realised so many Bangladeshi's could not communicate in English properly. Shuva always had a passion to help people. She then started working voluntarily for the community as a translator.

As years went by Shuva realised her vision for life was to help the community and that is exactly what she did. She helped families struggling with housing, marriage problems and financial issues with her own money and used her home as a shelter regardless of their race or religion.

In 1996 Shuva started her own charity in Bangladesh called Shonali Shopno which she funds by holding dinner parties and supplying food to other organisations. She uses the money to provide sewing machines and rickshaws for families in Bangladesh who need a kick start in life. In 1999 her charity started paying for cataract operations in Bangladesh and has helped many people regain their sight.

In 2011 she registered her UK charity Golden Dreams and continued to use her cooking skills to raise funds to provide medical/maternity help in Bangladesh. She also pays for up to 200 circumcisions per year.

Shuva has won numerous awards in the UK and Bangladesh including the Hason Raja Shommanona and Gunijon Shommanona.

In her youth Shuva was an activist for the Awami League (mukti judha) helping freedom fighters during the liberation war. She was encouraged by her uncle's Fokrul Islam and Anwar Uddin Gama.

Last year she was awarded a Leadership and Community award by SOAS. Shuva's hobbies are cooking, socialising and teaching others how to cook.

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO ADAPT TO THE NEW RULES?

Survival and growth now depend on a multi-faceted strategy focused on domestic talent, operational innovation, and collective action. The path forward requires a fundamental shift in how businesses operate and plan for the future.

Domestic Talent Investment

Build robust apprenticeships with local colleges to cultivate and safeguard essential Asian culinary skills for the next generation.

Prioritise Retention

Create supportive environments with competitive pay and clear career pathways to retain your most valuable asset: your existing staff.

Rethink Operations

Embrace digital ordering, kitchen automation and new staffing models to enhance efficiency and ease labor pressures.

Speak Up Collectively

Support trade bodies like in lobbying for pragmatic immigration policies that recognise the sector's unique needs.

YOUR STRATEGIC PARTNER FOR A RESILIENT FUTURE

At WorkPermitCloud (WPC), we recognise the scale of this challenge and are committed to being a partner to the hospitality sector. With stricter rules, Home Office scrutiny is high. A Sponsor Licence is vital and managing it correctly is crucial. Keep accurate records, report changes promptly, and avoid the serious risk of suspension or revocation. Thus, our support goes beyond Immigration advice.

Sponsorship Licence Strategy

Helping businesses who still employ existing Skilled Workers remain compliant with evolving rules.

HRMS Compliance Service

A secure, Home Office-ready system to manage employee records, and reporting with ease.

Right To Work Checks

Ensuring Home Office compliance requirements is met streamlining verification and reduce risk.

Visa Extension Management

We manage the extension process for your existing staff, ensuring you meet the new requirements.

The introduction of RQF Level 6 as the Skilled Worker baseline is more than an immigration rule change—it is a turning point for the UK's Asian hospitality industry. While the challenges are real—shortages, wage inflation, and reduced flexibility—the resilience of this sector has been proven time and again.

At WorkPermitCloud, we are proud to stand alongside the businesses, chefs, and entrepreneurs who make this industry extraordinary. Together, we can adapt, innovate, and ensure the future of Asian dining remains as rich and inspiring as its past.

Alhaj Kazi Saad Meah was born at the Bethnal Green Hospital, London, and raised also in Bethnal Green by parents Abeda Khatun and the late Kazi Shahnoor Meah. He is one of six siblings and is father to daughters' Maisha and Shahirah Jahan, aged 17 and 15 years respectively. He attended a local comprehensive and left school at age 15 years with a string of CSE's and GCSE's. He gained a wealth of life experience between the ages of 15 and 19 years, whilst working in both the private and public sector in various roles before commencing his legal career and extensive involvement in the field of human rights.

He started his legal career at the Immigration Advisory Service's (IAS) predecessor organisation UKIAS in February 1991, which lead to part-time law studies at London Southbank University and subsequently a Masters in Law, with distinction, from the University of East London specialising in International Human Rights Law. He has also successfully completed numerous qualifications in Senior, Strategic and Charity management and has also lectured undergraduates at university and trained, mentored and line managed many young lawyers in immigration, nationality, asylum and human rights law, many of whom have themselves gone on to establish distinguished careers in the field of immigration and human rights. He also served successfully as an Independent Custody Visitor for the London Borough of Newham between 1996 and 2002, representing the interests of detainees held in police custody under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act.

He was at the IAS' Central London Office until 2000, successfully fulfilling roles as Counsellor, Team Leader, Supervisor and Senior Manager, during a period which he represented clients at the Immigration & Asylum Tribunal at Thanet House and latterly at the now Immigration & Asylum Chamber (IAC) at Taylor House. He has also represented many detainees at Immigration Detention Centres at Campfield House, Tinsley House and HMP Haslar, as well running legal surgeries at HMP Rochester, during his years at the IAS. He was also overall responsible for setting up the IAS' Syl-het Offices in Bangladesh involving extensive liaison and partnership working with the British High Commission in Dhaka in 2000. Saad Meah became part of the IAS' Senior Management Executive Team in 2001 when he moved to IAS' major operations based at the Oakington Detention Centre. Here he took up post as the permanent Area Manager with responsibility for over 100 staff members. He gained universal respect for his knowledge and mastery of a number of complicated strategic pilots introduced by the government, as well as an in depth understanding of the 'Fast-Track' processes operating through out the government's detention estate. He was comprehensively involved in influencing and shaping government policy on immigration detention, legal practice and policy as a senior stakeholder representing the interests of vulnerable detainees being processed through the government's 'One Stop' and 'Fast-Track' policies whilst held in immigration detention.

He ran IAS' operations at Oakington until 2008 when he took voluntary redundancy to focus on his career as a Judge at the former Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT). He was appointed as an Immigration Judge in 2006, and sat regularly at the AIT in Sheldon and Walsall, Birmingham, whilst continuing to head up operations at Oakington. He moved to the IAC at Taylor House in September 2010, where he currently continues to sit as a Judge deciding appeals from those subject to immigration control.

Saad Meah is an avid supporter and an advocate of the state/comprehensive schooling system as well as an active promoter and believer in work related apprenticeships and life experience based vocations over entrenched reliance on academic qualifications. He is a firm believer in supporting community based initiatives and resources. He also actively supports a variety of charities including Islamic Relief, The Terrence Higgins Trust, Shelter, OXFAM, NSPCC and UNICEF.

As the President of the British Bangladeshi Association in Somerset, Karim has become a pivotal figure in championing the interests of the Bangladeshi community while also fostering broader cultural and economic ties.

Entrepreneurial Success and Business Leadership Karim's entrepreneurial career is a testament to his foresight, resilience, and innovative spirit. He began his journey with a profound desire to uplift the lives of those in his local community, particularly in Southwest England and London.

Over the years, he has meticulously built a diverse and successful business, serving as the driving force behind several prominent companies.

Karim's business acumen is perhaps most evident in his presence in the hospitality and food sectors, where he has launched and managed several well-known establishments. At the heart of this success is his award-winning Indian Restaurant. He is also the founder of Desserts for you, a rapidly growing chain of dessert outlets that has earned a loyal customer base through its wide assortment of treats. Complementing this success, Karim expanded into the fast-food industry with Kebabs for you, a chain specializing in authentic German Donner Kebabs.

His work in property renovation is characterized by a commitment to quality and customer satisfaction, offering premium rental options that meet the highest standards. His ventures in the real estate sector further underscore his versatility as a businessman and his keen understanding of market dynamics.

Philanthropy and Community Leadership Karim Miah's influence is not confined to the business world; he is equally dedicated to social development and humanitarian causes. His deep-seated empathy and commitment to improving the lives of others have driven him to take on numerous leadership roles within charitable organizations. As the Co-Founder and Chairman of the Autistic Foundation as well as Trustee of the Valerie Taylor Trust, Karim has played a crucial role in advocating for the rights and well-being of individuals with disabilities.

His commitment to the community is further exemplified through his leadership of the Labour Friends of Bangladesh Somerset, directorship of UK Bangladesh Catalysts of Commerce and Industry (UKBCCI) and the Bridgwater Islamic Cultural Centre. In his role as a Trustee of the Beani Bazar Cancer & General Hospital, Karim has been instrumental in ensuring that individuals in need have access to quality healthcare services. His involvement in the hospital's operations reflects his broader commitment to addressing the critical healthcare needs of underprivileged populations, both in the UK and abroad.

He is also the Vice President of BCA London region, friends of national herts foundation sylhet, director Somerset investment club, life member of British Bangladeshi chambers & commars, Member of Jalalabad Association UK.

In various advocacy and leadership roles. He has been appointed as the Vice President of the Rajngaar Welfare Society UK and the Greater Sylhet Development and Welfare Council in the UK Southwest region. These positions have allowed him to advocate effectively for the rights and well-being of the Bangladeshi community, striving to create a more inclusive and equitable society. Karim's influence is further recognized through his permanent membership in the Bangladesh Centre London and his life membership in the London Bangla Press Club. These affiliations underscore his ongoing commitment to promoting cultural and professional ties, not only within the Bangladeshi community but also across broader British society.

His legacy is one of compassion, leadership, and steadfast belief in the power of collective action to bring about meaningful change. As a beacon of hope and progress, Karim continues to inspire those around him to work towards a more prosperous, inclusive, and harmonious future for all.

Shamim is a future leader and a proud young British Bangladeshi who has been spearheading real change within Leeds. Raised in one of the poorest postcodes in the UK, Shamim worked hard to overcome barriers, quickly seeking a passion for local politics and youth empowerment. Taking inspiration from Faruk Miah MBE he stood to be the Member of Youth Parliament for Leeds, where he was elected by 180,000 young people of Leeds to represent them in the House of Commons. This inspired an invitation to shadow and be mentored by prominent political figures John Bercow and Matt Hancock. Following this success, Shamim became a young political star and has since taken on several positions, enabling him to make real effective change within Leeds. Shamim was one of the youngest school governors in the UK, taking the position at 19. He has most recently advanced his passion for education, by being appointed as a Trustee of the Cockburn Multi Academy Trust. During this tenure as a Trustee of the five schools, Shamim has helped facilitate improvements in education and soften the impact of covid-19 by making work experience more accessible. This significantly impacted students, who can now learn and experience a sector they are interested in outside of the classroom. His commitment to enhancing the quality of education over the last 6 years was exemplified, when Cockburn School was judged to be Outstanding by Ofsted – celebrating the schools progress within the Leeds community.

Shamim is a big supporter and advocate of giving back to his roots and community. Alongside members of his family, he co-founded a youth club for British Bangladeshi's called "The Bangla Square Youth Club". This project aims to provide young people within the community access to extracurricular activities to improve their skill sets, culture capital, and experiences as British citizens looking to contribute to the wider society.

Holding a Master's in Law, he is now finalising his qualification as a corporate finance lawyer at a Top 40 Law firm, Shoosmiths. Utilising his network, he regularly hosts work experience days for students who have an interest in pursuing law. Combined with his community work, this has led to him becoming a multi award winner. He was named the British Muslim Young Achiever of the Year, the Yorkshire Young Achiever of the Year and received a Princess Diana Award for his role as a community leader.

Tofozzul Miah an entrepreneur and the founder of the award-winning Bayleaf Group and Hiltop Motors, is located in North London. He is well-known for his innovative and forward-thinking mindset in business and plays a key role in his community. Tofozzul migrated from Bangladesh to the UK in the 1970s at the age of 9. From a young age, he aspired to have control over his own destiny and realised that self-employment would provide that opportunity.

From a young age, Tofozzul worked labour-intensive jobs after school and on weekends, including working in the rug trade and at Sunday markets. Although he faced setbacks when he opened his first Asian restaurant, he made the decision to become a chef to acquire the comprehensive skillset required to run a successful establishment. He worked in a Punjabi-owned restaurant for the next three years until an opportunity arose to become a partner in a restaurant in North London. With his newfound kitchen experience, he took another leap and opened his own business, which proved to be considerably profitable. During this time, he worked seven days a week, dedicating 14 to 16 hours each day.

Recognizing the emerging market of food delivery in the 1990s, Tofozzul decided to venture into this new avenue, opening Bayleaf Takeaway in North London. Within the first few years, the establishment garnered numerous awards and accolades and continues to thrive after 27 years. Additionally, he identified a gap in the market for a fine dining Indian restaurant, leading to the opening of Bayleaf Restaurant in 2013, which has also achieved great success. Currently, it ranks among the top 5 out of 17,500 restaurants on TripAdvisor in the city of London.

Alongside his journey in the catering industry, Tofozzul started buying and selling cars as a hobby in 2006. The impressive returns prompted him to expand operations and purchase a forecourt that could accommodate 20 vehicles. With continued success, he further expanded by acquiring a car showroom in 2009, establishing Hiltop Motors as a quality German car dealership with up to 100 cars in stock. It has been highly successful, generating a turnover of nearly £6 million per year. Recently, Tofozzul embarked on a new and exciting business venture with his three sons, launching the used-car supermarket Car Planet, which stocks over 500 vehicles at their Watford site.

Tofozzul is also a founder-trustee of the Bangladeshi Welfare Society of Barnet, which recently acquired a freehold Masjid worth almost £1 million to serve the growing Muslim community. Additionally, he holds the position of Director and former Secretary General of the British Bangladeshi Caterers Association (BBCA). This organisation is highly recognised in the sector and has provided him with opportunities to make appearances in mainstream media, including the BBC, ITV and Al-Jazeera, as well as participate in discussions with government ministers at No.10 Downing Street regarding policies affecting the catering industry.

Rowshanara Moni was born in the Moulvibazar district town in Bangladesh. She is the sixth child of Late Mohammed Samroo who was a very well known business man in the UK, and Syeda Sufia Kanum, her mother who was actively involved in politics in Bangladesh.

Rowshanara Moni has completed her primary education in Bangladesh and came to the UK in 1984 when she was only 10 years old. She completed her education in the UK.

She has been singing since the age of six. Music is her passion and she can live for it. After coming to UK she joined Dishari Shilpi Gushti and performed in many stage programmes. When she was only 11 she performed in the Royal Albert Hall for the "Save the Children Foundation" and she was singing in front of the honourable guest Princess Anne.

In 1985 she took part in the Bengali Song Contest which was organised by Tower Hamlets Borough, and won 1st prize in Folk song. In 1986 she won 2nd prize in folk song and modern song and 1987 and 1988 she won 2nd prize in modern song and folk song. She has received many other awards and certificates from different organisations. Apart from singing she took great interest in acting. The first stage drama she took part in is "Khotto Bikkhoto" in Camden and she also took part in many other stage dramas. She acted in the first Bangla TV (UK) drama, which was called

"Laal Golap" written by Abdul Gaffer Chowdhury. Rowshanara Moni regularly took part in radio dramas in the "Sunrise Radio" Bengali department with Azizul Hakim. She became well known to the Bangladeshi community as a result. She was a presenter for "Sunrise Radio" in the Bengali department. At the age of 18 she got married in Bangladesh to Mr Mohammed Iqbal who was a Civil Engineer at the Water Development Board in Bangladesh. She has one child who is called Aynan Shabab Iqbal.

Rowshanara Moni sang in all leading channels in the UK and from time to time she goes to Europe to perform.

In July 2009 she organised a fund raising event for the late baul shamraat Shah Abdul Karim and raised £10000 for his rehabilitation. In 2010 she has again organised a thanks giving award to those who helped raise £10000 for baul shamraat Shah Abdul Karim in 2009. She is involved in charity work too. In addition, she has great interest in politics both in the UK and Bangladesh. She is the current Women Affairs Secretary for the Bangladesh Nationalist Party in UK. At present she is working full time in NHS as a medical administrator.

She spent her early childhood and primary school years in East London. She relocated to Bangladesh and enrolled in Sylhet's Blue Bird High School, later completing SSC (GCSE) at Sylhet Govt Girls High School. Her academic path led her to 'Sylhet Womens College' to complete her HSC (A level). Returning to the UK, she pursued higher education at Windsor and Maidenhead College. Her passion for healthcare led her to pursue a BSc in 'Health and Social Science' at New Buckingham University.

In 1993, she married Shah Abu Naser, Sajon (teacher), son of Shah Moddosir Ali (Manik Miah), from Noyabondor Jaganathpur. Having dedicated several years to the NHS during the same time as an existing professional translator as well as a health advocate, she found immense joy in becoming a mother to her three children.

Driven by a commitment to positive change, she ventured into politics and achieved success as a Councillor, currently she is serving as a Deputy Mayor of Luton Borough Council.

Shahanara happened to be inspired to take another step because of her strong sense of Bengali culture, social justice, and equality for all. As an inspiration for various ethnic groups, Shahanara was motivated to move forward. Through her efforts, she has been working closely to enhance the lives of her constituents as well as make a meaningful contribution to the community.

Some examples of her community work include: being involved in the community heritage project, assisting in the organising of Bengali cultural events for children and families through performing, dance, poem recitation, and theatre activities, as well as exhibiting the programmes. The aim was to introduce the younger generation to the rich, vibrant culture through entertaining learning while also promoting mental health and wellbeing for the entire family. Initiating campaigns for increased health care access, conducting health education workshops, leading local clean-up initiatives, and collaborating with community organisations to offer resources for underprivileged families are also part of her responsibilities. These endeavours reflect her dedication to creating a better environment.

Mahbub Murshed is a name for his role in making accountancy an art, bringing accountancy into the drawing room and creating a new dimension to his profession. His success story is now a sensation in the British Bangladeshi community and media. His live TV programme, "Accountancy with Mahbub Murshed" is probably the first ever and the longest running accounting and tax advisory programme in the known world. This only happened because of his vision, hard work, dedication and passion. Mahbub Murshed, a Certified Practising Accountant, was born in 1962 in Tangail, Bangladesh. Having acquired a government scholarship from Bangladesh in 1982, he went to Bulgaria to study Computer Engineering at Technical University of Varna.

It was from here that he would graft his way to create one of the largest accountancy firms in East London. Upon arrival in Britain in 1987, it became evident that a qualification from a former communist country was not going to be easy for him to acquire a job in his field. With this in mind, he made the brave decision of starting from scratch and changing his path to accountancy. It was late Mr MS Zoha, a prominent Bengali accountant, who inspired Mr Mahbub. Mr Mahbub used to work for one of Mr Zoha's clients and the turning point of his life was when he went to Mr Zoha's office to collect his P45 and being offered a job in his office in 1991. Instead of using the conventional method of manual book keeping and accounting, Mr Mahbub became the pioneer among British Bangladeshis by using his computer programming skills to write his own software.

After being in the shadow of Mr Zoha for nearly 10 years and gaining invaluable work experience and academic qualifications, Mr Mahbub decided to set up his own accountancy firm, Mahbub and Co, in 2001 with his younger brother Shah Arif. Starting off with just one employee and a handful of small clients, it was a huge risk for anyone to start with a fragile business in a competitive market. But through dedication, multilingual skills and sincerity, Mr Mahbub was able to expand his business from strength to strength. His friendly professional approach towards his clients has given him a name, "The Accountant with a Smile". Additionally Mr Mahbub has supported many of the youth with work experience and career development. Currently Mahbub and Co is holding the ACCA Gold status as an employer, awarded only to the firms which provide high quality work experience in accountancy. After serving the community for more than a decade, Mr Mahbub launched his new and unique initiative to fulfil the community's need for accountancy related issues. He is the key person together with NTV Europe to start producing the programme "Accountancy with Mahbub Murshed". He believes in empowering the community. So, rather than bringing the people to the accountant's office he went live on TV to answer the questions in his own capacity.

Being inspired by the success of this TV programme, he decided to set up a training institute in conjunction with his firm where school leavers, accounting students, newly qualified accountants and unemployed people could gain hands-on training and practical knowledge. The initial purpose of this training programme was to break the vicious circle of "not getting a job without experience and no experience could be gained without a job". Mr Mahbub devotes time from his relentless schedule to teach the students.

He also sponsors charities, sports, cultural and community activities. Mr Mahbub is passionate about photography and gardening. His amateur, yet artistic photography is loved by the wider audiences in social media. He plays badminton, listens to music and watches cricket.

Mr Mahbub is married to Nilufa Murshed, daughter of a well known Sylheti businessman of the 1960s – Mr Mosahid Ali. Their son, Nayeem Murshed, has graduated in Biochemistry from Imperial College London, and daughter, Nimah Murshed, is an A Level student.

Hafsa Noor is a distinguished community organiser, writer, poet, and author whose work has earned her recognition across literary, cultural, and social platforms. Celebrated for her acclaimed writings, thought-provoking reflections, and spoken word performances, she has established herself as a leading voice within her community and beyond. Through her creativity, activism, and commitment to social justice, Hafsa continues to inspire audiences of all ages and backgrounds.

Her career in media began as a broadcaster with Relaks Radio, where she worked closely with colleagues to shape the station's identity as one of the most popular and inclusive digital media groups within the community. Hafsa played an instrumental role in developing a diverse team, ensuring representation and fostering meaningful dialogue across different cultural and social groups. Building on this media experience, she extended her work into television, becoming a TV presenter with Iqra Bangla and LB24, where she engages audiences with topics that connect culture, community, and current affairs.

Alongside her media career, Hafsa is deeply involved in grassroots activism and charitable initiatives. She is the founder and lead organiser of the Eastern Connection Community Kitchen, a project dedicated to supporting the homeless and vulnerable by providing food, warmth, and compassion. Under her leadership, the initiative has grown into a vital resource for those struggling to make ends meet, while also serving as a platform to raise awareness about the devastating effects of poverty on individual and collective wellbeing. Hafsa has successfully enlisted the support of respected figures and community leaders to amplify this mission, making the community kitchen a shared effort rooted in solidarity and empathy. Education has always been central to Hafsa's vision for social change. A seasoned campaigner in this field, she is currently developing a series of grassroots educational programmes in rural Tangail, Bangladesh. These initiatives aim to make learning more accessible, engaging, and practical, thereby opening up opportunities for local communities to reshape their futures. Through these projects, Hafsa hopes to bridge barriers to education and empower individuals to take full advantage of the resources available to them.

Her unwavering commitment to women's empowerment further defines her work. As a mentor and advocate, she has consistently championed the rights, voices, and potential of women across generations. She is the organiser of the annual Meena Bazaar in London, a dynamic women's event that brings together entrepreneurs, creatives, and professionals to showcase their talents and products in an empowering environment. This platform reflects Hafsa's dedication to nurturing women's independence, creativity, and economic empowerment.

Hafsa is also active in the business and professional sphere as a proud member of the British Bangladeshi Chambers of Commerce and Industry (BCCCI). She plays an important leadership role as the Office Secretary for the London Region, where she contributes to strengthening networks, supporting entrepreneurship, and fostering professional collaboration within the British Bangladeshi community. In addition, Hafsa is a lifetime member of the prestigious Icon Bangladesh Centre, where she has supported the organisation of numerous educational events that promote learning, culture, and intellectual growth. She also serves as a Director of the Surma Centre, further extending her influence and commitment to community development through education, engagement, and advocacy.

In addition to her activism and leadership, Hafsa continues to nurture her passion for writing. She enjoys crafting poems in both Bengali and English, often weaving themes of resilience, self-worth, and identity into her creative work. Her interests extend to reading, travelling, and social engagement, which continue to enrich her writing and activism.

Currently, Hafsa serves as the Executive Editor of Notun Din and the Chief Editor of London Features, in addition to her television hosting work with Iqra Bangla. With her multifaceted roles in media, literature, business, and community development, she remains a highly respected authority and source of inspiration, bridging cultures while empowering voices that deserve to be heard.

Syed Nahas Pasha is one of the most respected and senior British-Bangladeshi journalists working in the UK. His fledgling career began writing for school magazines and then writing for various literary titles. He edited the literary magazine in Bangladesh called Eeshan. Nahas moved to the UK in mid-1970s when he was in his late teens.

He has spent nearly three decades in the industry and held the editorship of several of the country's leading Bengali newspapers including his current role with Janomot, as editor in chief.

His passion for writing and leadership contributed to a rise in both the quality of journalism and readership of the titles as well as guiding them into the digital age.

Nahas is also an overseas correspondent for a national newspaper in Bangladesh, a bureau chief with bdnews24.com, and regularly appears on TV and radio talking about issues affecting the Asian community at home and abroad.

He is elected Vice President of the Commonwealth Journalists Association, an international organisation which has branches across the commonwealth. Syed Nahas Pasha is a founding member of the London Bangla Press Club and in January 2017 was elected as President of the club, a powerful organisation of British Bangladeshi journalists in the UK. He is also advisor to the BB Power & Inspiration100 List which celebrates the achievements of the British-Bangladeshi community.

Syed Nahas Pasha has successfully campaigned on many major issues including the British Bengali representation in the UK Parliament. He has met many world politicians and dignitaries including Her Majesty the late Queen Elizabeth and Nelson Mandela.

His expertise on social and economic affairs at home and abroad has seen him advise the Home Office and Foreign and Commonwealth Office on various issues including radicalisation, forced marriages, immigration and overseas work permits.

This includes accompanying ministerial visits to the EU and acting in an advisory role for visiting dignitaries to the Indian sub-continent. With an insatiable passion for travel, Nahas has journeyed to many countries to cover international conferences. His love of writing and food reflect two passions of Bengali culture and, along with his brother, he has championed the UK's multi-billion-pound curry industry for more than a decade.

This includes an international food festival, the Taste of Britain Food Festival, which showcases the talents of British curry chefs, and promotes British food throughout the Indian subcontinent, Europe and the Middle East.

Nahas is also founder and editor-in-chief of Curry Life Magazine since 2003, a bi-monthly publication distributed free throughout the UK, which offers a lively mix of industry news, reviews and features. As the only independent magazine in the field, the publication has been described as the "voice of the curry industry." One of Nahas' Pasha's key aims is to connect with restaurateurs and chefs at the grass roots of the curry industry through the magazine, and he works tirelessly to foster and promote their businesses at a national and international level.

His unique insight of the trade comes from having owned a restaurant himself during the 1980s and he is focused on helping and promoting the industry through many events, such as Curry Life Awards, Business Awards and Curry Life Culinary Workshop.

In the bustling streets of Whitechapel, stands a testament to perseverance and entrepreneurial spirit - Imran Travels. At its helm is Ashiqur Rahman, a man whose journey from a small town in Bangladesh to becoming a prominent figure in the UK's tourism sector is nothing short of remarkable.

Born in South Surma, Sylhet, Ashiqur Rahman harbored dreams of becoming a teacher. His academic pursuits led him to earn a Master's degree in Chemistry from Chittagong University. For a time, he lived this dream, working as a part-time professor at MC University College and Ambarkhana Government Girls College.

In 1996, Rahman's life took an unexpected turn when he moved to London. Little did he know that this move would set him on a path to becoming a successful entrepreneur in the travel and tourism industry.

Driven by the principles of honesty, hard work, and determination, Rahman established Imran Travels in Whitechapel. What started as a small local business soon expanded across the United Kingdom, with agents in almost every major city.

Rahman's business acumen didn't go unnoticed. In 2011, he was selected as a Certified Agent of Biman Bangladesh Airlines. By 2015, he had achieved the status of best Sales Agent for Biman in the UK. Today, Imran Travels represents not only Biman but also major international airlines like Emirates, Qatar Airways, Saudi Arabian Airlines, Royal Jordanian, Kuwait Airways, and Turkish Airlines.

Beyond his business success, Rahman has established himself as a community leader. He has served as the General Secretary of UKBATA (UK Bangladesh Agents Travel Association) for many years, showcasing his commitment to the broader travel industry.

Despite his professional success, Rahman maintains a strong focus on family and personal growth. He is a proud father of five, with his eldest daughter working as a junior doctor after completing her MBBS from the University of Buckingham, and his son holding a Master's degree in Data Science from Leicester University.

Rahman firmly believes that life is about more than just accumulating wealth. He sees his success as a platform to give back to society and continues to look for ways to integrate his business with evolving technology and societal needs.

As Ashiqur Rahman looks to the future, he has plans to expand his business further, always with an eye on how to better serve his community and adapt to changing times. His journey from a chemistry professor in Bangladesh to a leading figure in the UK's tourism sector serves as an inspiration to aspiring entrepreneurs everywhere.

In Ashiqur Rahman's story, we see the power of embracing change, the importance of hard work, and the impact one individual can have when they set their mind to achieving their goals.

Ibrahim Rahman is a social media and communications professional from Cambridge, working in the higher education and charity sectors.

Ibrahim is a Social Media Coordinator at the University of Cambridge, actively involved in the everyday planning, writing and publishing of content across their social media channels. A key member of the University's Social Media and Audiovisual team since September 2019, he has managed various social media campaigns around student activities, looking at how religious festivals are celebrated or observed at Cambridge, spotlighting South Asian student groups during South Asian Heritage Month, and leading on the University's social media response to A-level results day. Ibrahim currently leads on the direction of the University's Instagram account, which has a following of over 1.2 million.

Away from his day job, Ibrahim volunteers as the Director of Communications for the Karim Foundation, a Cambridge-based charity that provides food, fuel and emergency support for local families and individuals in financial hardship. He has organised and managed online fundraisers such as the annual Cambridge Ramadan Appeal, helping to raise thousands of pounds to support locals most affected by the cost of living crisis. The Karim Foundation was highly commended at the 2022 BBC Make a Difference Awards – one of four finalists shortlisted for the Community Group Award.

Ibrahim has a wealth of experience across broadcast media and public relations. Shortly after graduating with a BSc (Hons) in Information Security and Forensic Computing from Anglia Ruskin University, he worked as a reporter for BBC Radio Cambridgeshire and assistant producer for Nadia Ali's show on BBC Asian Network. Ibrahim went on to become a production assistant for ITV News at the 2017 Wimbledon Championships before joining ITV News Anglia as a production journalist in 2018, tasked with leading their diversity initiative for the East of England. During 2019-2020, Ibrahim was the first-ever Social Media Officer of Cambridge Central Mosque, playing a crucial role in communications at the height of the pandemic and coordinating the Mosque's successful participation in the 2020 and 2021 Open Cambridge festivals.

Ibrahim was born in December 1990 and is a third-generation British Bangladeshi. He is the eldest of four children to Mohammed Zillur Rahman and Shahida Rahman. Ibrahim's maternal grandparents were among the first people from Sylhet to settle in Cambridge during the late 1950s to early 1960s, while his mother – also an award-winning author of historical novels 'An Ayah's Choice' and 'Lascar' – was born two days before the liberation of Bangladesh in December 1971.

Md Lutfur Rahman is a qualified Chartered Legal Executive (FCILEx) Lawyer and Commissioner for Oaths. He is an entrepreneur and community activist widely known in the diaspora community in the UK. With his enthusiasm, integrity, and love for the legal profession, he obtained a good name and fame among immigrants and legal practitioners in the UK.

Mr. Rahman was born in 1973 at Osmani Nagar, Sylhet, Bangladesh in a traditional Muslim family. He came to the UK as a Law student in 1996 at the University of London. He successfully completed his Bachelor of Laws with Honours degree from the University of London in 1999. He was called to the bar as a barrister at the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn in 2000.

Based on his 20+ years of Immigration Service experience, he established an innovative Legal and Software service company namely WorkPermitCloud Limited (www.workpermitcloud.co.uk). Currently, it offers OISC regulated immigration advice on UK Immigration matters.

WorkPermitCloud Limited (WPC) was founded in September 2020 in East London, one year later, Mr Lutfur expanded the office in the city of London, at "The Gherkin" - the first Bangladeshi lawyer to set a foot-print in this prestigious office building. Mr. Lutfur has advised many High Net Worth clients from the Middle East and Asia concerning Entrepreneurs, Investors, Sponsorship Licenses, and Skilled worker visa applications.

He enjoys researching complicated legal issues and tries to use his extensive immigration knowledge and experience to implement a strategy that is arguable and realistic. As a practitioner he brought up common challenges and put recommendations to policy makers. Through delegation and event participation his voice is being heard at House of Commons and Scottish Parliament to relax Immigration rules for Chefs and Hospitality sector staff. Regularly, he engages with major stakeholders to initiate dialogue in important forums. For example - he raised slow UK visa processing for Bangladeshi applicants to British High Commission in Bangladesh and Bangladesh High Commissioner in the UK. He raised a massive awareness to ensure sustainability and advancement of curry industry in the UK!

To meet diverse customer demand for Immigration and recruitment needs, Mr Lutfur established a global company in Dubai, namely WPC Global (www.wpc-global.com). It offers Immigration services for Europe, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, to help more people to change their lives.

Giving back to society for great social and humanitarian causes is in Mr Lutfur's DNA. This year, WorkPermitCloud supported Mount Everest climb, WPC flag was carried on the peak of Mount Everest, the mission is to give back to humanity and raise funds to help and support destitute women, men and children of Afghanistan, Syria, Rohingya, and other places impacted by war, conflict, disaster and poverty. Moreover, he supported the fundraising campaign of Cambridge Central Mosque as a platinum sponsor. He distributed cash money to the flood victims in Sylhet district and regularly patronises various medical camps with free consultation medication. Mr Lutfur is an associate of East London Mosque.

In his personal life, he is married to Barrister Nahid Sultana Parvin. He has been supported in this journey by his beautiful wife Barrister Nahid Sultana Parvin who was also called to the bar in 2000. Currently she is serving as Chief Operating Officer of WPC.

Mahbub Rahman is a highly esteemed figure in the realm of journalism, celebrated for his unwavering dedication and significant contributions to the field. Currently, he holds the position of Communications Officer for a local government authority in London.

Born in Dhaka, Bangladesh, in 1968, his journey in journalism began during his college years in 1986 when he embarked on a path of crafting articles for various esteemed local and national publications.

In 1987, he embarked on an illustrious career at one of the leading regional daily newspapers, Sylhet Dak, where he held various pivotal positions over the course of a decade. His fervor for investigative journalism guided him to collaborate with the national news agency PROBE. Furthermore, he made notable contributions as a stringer for BBC Bangla service and served as the Sylhet bureau chief of the Bangladesh News Agency (BNA).

Mahbub was also a passionate amateur photographer. He played a leading role in founding the Sylhet Photographic Society (SPS) in March 1992 and, during his six-year leadership journey, served as its first General Secretary, Vice President, and President, elevating SPS into a prominent national organization. Since 1997, even after leaving Bangladesh, he has continued to serve as an advisor to this photographic organization. In 1997, he relocated to the UK with his family and joined the Bengali newsweekly Notun Din. During that time, he also worked for Daily Sangbad, a prominent Bangladeshi newspaper, as a UK correspondent.

In the television arena, he left an indelible mark, playing a pivotal role in the inception of the first Bangla language TV channel in the UK, Bangla TV.

In July 1999, Mahbub shifted his career into the world of television, commencing work for Bangla TV and becoming a key member of the pioneering team that turned the dreams of the Bengali community into reality. His diverse roles encompassed Programme Planner, Programme Manager, and News Editor.

Three years later, he assumed the position of Head of News and Current Affairs for the channel.

Mahbub also took on the role of Editor for the UK's curry industry magazine, Curry Life, up until 2006.

In 2002, he assumed the role of Ethnic Media Advisor (part-time) at one of London's largest social housing associations, where he served for nearly two decades.

In 2003, he joined as a Communications Advisor for the UK's most diverse local authority, Tower Hamlets Council. Upon leaving his housing association position, he committed himself full-time as a Communications Officer for Tower Hamlets Council. Spending almost 20 years in the Local Government Authority's busy press office, he has worked closely with both local and national media, gaining extensive experience in local government communication.

Mahbub has been a dedicated member of numerous professional organizations, including the National Union of Journalists and the Commonwealth Journalist Association (CJA). Serving as the former Assistant General Secretary, Mahbub Rahman played a key role in reorganizing the London Bangla Press Club and served as Vice President of this club for two consecutive terms. His influential roles within the London Bangla Press Club, the Sylhet Press Club, and Sylhet Union of Journalists reflect his unwavering commitment to fostering excellence in journalism.

He also served as a founding member and secretary of the Jalalabad Association UK.

Married to Hasna Rahman, a civil servant who works for the Ministry of Justice, Mahbub acknowledges her sacrifice and contribution, which have enabled him to pursue his career and achievements. The couple has been blessed with two daughters, Mehjaben Rahman and Atiya Rahman.

Through his multifaceted career and steadfast dedication to journalism and community engagement, Mahbub has made exceptional contributions to both the profession and society as a whole.

At present, Mr. Rahman is the president of UK-Association for Human Rights (UK-AHR), Euro-Bangladesh Business Consortium, Bangladesh Centre for Social development UK and British Bangladeshi Business Club.

In addition, Mr. Rahman has played important role in establishing and fundraising for many Mosques and Madrasahs, support running schools for the destitute children in Bangladesh, Free Friday Clinics, and personally continuing to help build houses for the needy, medical treatment, etc.

Mr. Mahidur Rahman has made his name as a prominent politician of the Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP). He played an important role in shaping its establishment in the UK and another European Country. In 1992 he was made a co-convenor of the UK-BNP and in 1994, the president. Through his tireless work he formed 12 BNP branches throughout the UK. Currently he is the international affairs secretary of BNP central committee and is looking after the political aspect of European BNP as co-coordinator.

Mr. Rahman is married and has two children. His son graduated in Business Management and is currently a banker and his daughter is a University student.

Muhibur Rahman Muhib MJF, was born in Sylhet, Bangladesh in 1959. Son of the late Mr. Aalhaj Arab Ali and Mrs. Hashira Begum, Muhib grew up in the village of Purushpal, Beani Bazar.

Muhib travelled to the UK in 1972 to start a new chapter in his life. Upon arrival, Muhib enrolled at Robert Montifiore Secondary School, where he furthered his secondary education. Whilst studying, Muhib worked two part time jobs at a local Indian restaurant and a garments factory.

Upon finishing secondary education, Muhib's zeal to become a successful business man was clear. He was determined to make a successful career and improve their family's living standards. This was at a time when many British Bangladeshis were heavily involved in the garments trade.

In 1979, Muhib continued that trend by establishing, with the help of a few business partners, his own garment factory, Modern Embroidery, in Tower Hamlets. The business rapidly became very successful.

Following the success in the garments trade, he ventured into the catering business and in 1982 was a business partner of the Indian restaurant he worked in as a teenager, India Grill, in Tower Hamlets, London. To date, he has carried on his successful business empire and is the owner of a number of restaurants and multiple properties in and around London.

Outside of his business prowess, Muhib plays an important role in community development both in the UK and in his homeland of Bangladesh.

He is currently the President of Jalalabad Association UK and Senior Vice Chair of the Bangladesh Centre London. He was the President of Beani Bazar Welfare Trust and still serving as an Executive Committee member of the Bangladesh Caterers Association UK, a platform representing the Bangladeshi catering industry in UK. His wealth of experience and dedication to the community can also be evidenced through his past effective and executive role in Bangladesh Welfare Association and Beani Bazar Thana Jonokallyan Samity.

His work with the community does not stop with being aligned with charitable organisations; Muhib has also spent much of his own fortune in supporting good causes. He has previously financed a Bengali Newspaper called Weekly Sylheter Dak where he was a Director and a member of the publishing board.

He is known to inspire education amongst generations of young people. He has spent over £30,000 to build a library in Beani Bazar's Women's College, helping hundreds of women from poor families to have access to much needed books and resources. In memory of his late father, he financed the Madrassa Academy Bhavan in 1982. He is also a founder of Purushpal Hafizia Madrassa and a lifetime member of the managing committee for 12 secondary schools in Beani Bazar.

He is one of the founding members of the Beani Bazar Cancer Hospital Foundation, the first hospital of its kind in Sylhet division, Bangladesh. Having served as Vice President of this organisation, Muhib along with a number of Bangladeshis living in the UK, funded this noble project.

In 2005, he was involved in distributing computers in Beani Bazar in order to enhance the education of local children. More recently, he has taken the initiative to build homes for the freedom fighters of Beani Bazaar.

In 2007, The Lions Club International Foundation awarded Muhib, with its highest 'Melvin Jones Fellowship' MJF Award for his dedication and years of working with communities. He is now a member of the prestigious organisation.

Muhib currently lives with his family including seven children in South Woodford, London.

Councillor Nazma Rahman, Former Mayor of Camden is a Labour Councillor for West Hampstead Ward, currently serving in her second term. She has lived and worked in Camden her whole life, with her three children.

Nazma has a strong passion for supporting young people and was appointed as school governor as well as a trustee of her local community centres. She is dedicated to listening to residents' concerns and always champions for underrepresented voices to be heard.

After years of voluntary and community work within her ward Nazma became a Councillor. She is a committed and empathic team leader, working to build effective relationships with organisations as she continues to tackle problems with her community.

Outside of her role in the Council, Nazma has a background in International Public Health Nutrition, and has previously worked as a nutrition consultant for health centres and hospitals across Camden. As a mature student, using the Sure Start and Home Start services, she was able to achieve her higher education qualifications and ensure her children had access to free activities outside of school and during the summer holidays.

During her mayoral year she wants to inspire young people to achieve their potential and will raise awareness of opportunities that exist in the borough for all young people in Camden. She has selected Camden Young Foundation as her chosen charity and will work with the charity to raise awareness of the excellent work they are doing in the borough supporting young people and championing critical issues facing the local community.

Nazma's Mayoress for the year will be Ruji Mahmud and her escorts are her my daughters Thaspia Rahman and Mairah Rahman and my son Al-Mahi Rahman.

Bajloor Rashid MBE is a renowned British Bangladeshi businessman and philanthropist.

Currently, he is the founding president and co-founder of the UK Bangladesh Catalysts of Commerce and Industry (UKBCCI). This influential business organisation helps promote trade between Bangladesh and the UK. Recently he led a trade delegation to Bangladesh which proved to be very successful and mutually beneficial to both nations. Born in Moulvi Bazaar in Bangladesh, he came to the UK in 1978. He gained a reputation in the eighties for his entrepreneurial skill in setting up a number of restaurants with his brother.

This dynamism led to him becoming one of the most prominent figures in the history of the Bangladesh Caterers Association (BCA), with him being their president from 2006 to 2012.

Whilst he was the BCA president, he was the driving force behind many memorable events to raise awareness of the issues affecting the curry industry, most memorably a mass demonstration in Trafalgar Square London over immigration rules. This in turn led to a debate in the House of Commons just days later.

To further cement the UKBCCI's role in business today and its desire to inspire and recognise the deep well of talent that exists, Mr Rashid founded and set up the UKBCCI Business & Entrepreneur Excellence Awards in 2016.

In his long and successful business career, Mr Rashid has been either a Director or Chairman of 20 different successful companies. His business portfolio also includes the wholesale business of rice and spice and his real estate company, Atlantic Properties.

His passionate work ethic has led to him receiving a number of awards over the years.

In 2012, the BB (British Bangladeshi) Power 100 List ranked him as one of the most influential BB individuals in the UK. The following year he was awarded first place in the Community Personality category by the same organisation. He has also been recognised in the BB Power 100 in 2016 and 2017 in the Networks and Association category. Mr Rashid has also received many awards in recognition of his work, including the BCA Honour Award and the Channel S Business Personality Award.

Bajloor Rashid became a Member of the Order of the British Empire in 2012. This was the first time a BCA president had been recognised with an MBE in the New Year's Honours.

As a result of helping communities in the UK and Bangladesh, he was duly recognised by being listed in the Muslim Power 100 in 2018. With a deep concern about environmental issues, Mr Rashid has been at the forefront of many community projects including assisting the plight of communities affected by catastrophic world disasters such as Cyclone Sidr.

Mr Rashid is married and has four grown up children, who are all now in professional careers.

Mohammed Mamun Rashid was born in Bangladesh and came to London for a better life. Upon his arrival to the UK at the age of 17, he faced many obstacles and struggles - but he embraced the challenges and turned them into opportunities.

Mamun Rashid has always been a very motivated entrepreneur, and this can be highlighted through when he started his own business - a garment and tailor company. This turned out to be a very successful enterprise, as it operated for 22 years. At this point, he decided to enter the world of real estate and property development - this business is still going strong to this day.

In the early 2000s, Mamun's passion turned him towards his local community as he became very socially active in local politics. His love for the community and his people got him very involved with charity, youth work, helping the local mosque and so much more. The support from the people resulted in a local election win, as he was elected as a Councillor in 2006.

Mamun believes in making changes and differences to his local society and also the lives of people in Bangladesh. He inspires others with his stories, achievements and establishments. He holds a very important role as Chief Treasurer in Bangladesh

Centre. He is the President of Beani Bazar Thana Jonokollan Shomiitee UK. He is also the Chair of The Labour Party for the Whitechapel Ward.

Kamal Rob is not only a visionary educator but also an entrepreneur and philanthropist with deep roots in community service. His journey began in 2015 when he recognized the untapped potential of adults who felt excluded from educational opportunities. Determined to create change, Rob made it his mission to help parents, the unemployed, and others return to education and enhance their career prospects. His dedication culminated in the founding of ASTML, an educational institution in Oldham, which he established in partnership with a reputable college. ASTML has since helped hundreds of students achieve their dreams of earning degrees in business management.

Beyond education, Rob's entrepreneurial spirit has driven him to make a broader impact on his community. In 2017, he co-founded MyColdhurst, a local community support group. Through MyColdhurst, Rob and his team have launched several initiatives, including alleyway clean-ups, community BBQs, and free weekly sports sessions that have benefited over 150 children. This ongoing effort reflects his commitment to improving the quality of life for those around him.

Rob's entrepreneurial reach also extends into the restaurant industry. He co-founded two local restaurants, which serve as more than just places to dine—they are hubs for charity work. Through these establishments, he launched the FeedAMillion project, an ambitious initiative aimed at providing one million meals to people in need, both locally and internationally. To date, Rob and his team have successfully fed over 50,000 people, and they continue to work tirelessly toward their goal.

His philanthropic work doesn't stop at the local level. Rob is deeply connected to his home country, Bangladesh, where he has co-founded an educational institution in Sylhet and Jagannathpur. This educational institute is focused on providing affordable education to those who seek to improve their lives through employment opportunities. Rob also engages in numerous charitable projects in Bangladesh, regularly organizing efforts to feed and clothe the needy.

Kamal Rob's multifaceted career as an educator, entrepreneur, and philanthropist exemplifies his commitment to bettering the lives of others. Whether through education, community service, or global charity, his work is a testament to the power of vision and dedication. His ongoing efforts continue to inspire and uplift countless individuals, reinforcing his role as a true leader in both his community and beyond.

Abdus Salam is a community figure both in Moulvibazar and in London. He is the son of Late Mohammed Samroo, a leading figure in the curry industry and one of the founders of BCA, and Mrs Sayeda Sufia Khanam, a social activist in Moulvibazar.

His passion for cricket began when he was involved within his locality in the Old Hospital Road cricket team. As his love for cricket grew he began playing with Friends Cricket Club from 1982. From 1987, Abdus came to the U.K, where he joined the Bangladesh Youth Cricket team in London, later joining Abahani cricket club, Surrey. His love of sports extended to football and table tennis also.

Abdus Salam continued being directly involved in Cricket both through playing, and philanthropy. He was a founder member and current treasurer for Rajnagar Welfare Society UK. In 2005 he immersed himself further into sharing cricket with the wider community, becoming the first chairman of London Tigers cricket club. Abdus led the Tigers on a tour of Bangladesh in 2011 during the ICC Cricket World Cup.

Abdus Salam is the founder president of the Bangladesh Cricket Supporters Association (BCSA UK). This is the official supporters' group of the Bangladesh cricket team as recognised by the International Cricket Council. The BCSA UK worked in coalition with the ICC during the Champions Trophy 2017 and ICC Cricket World Cup 2019, both of which were held in the UK. The ICC confirmed that the BCSA sold over 10k tickets to Bangladeshi fans during these events.

Abdus Salam helped found Cricket Players Association

Moulvibazar (CPAM UK), to encourage the previous generation of the Moulvibazar community now in the UK to reconnect through cricket. He became the first CPAM UK president between 2018-2019. He leads by example, is very active, still playing cricket at the age of 56.

Abdus Salam is a founder of the Bangladesh District Cup Cricket Competition UK, now in its fourth year.

Abdus Salam is involved in a range of philanthropy activities, including in his neighbourhood in Moulvibazar, donating cricket equipment, sponsoring the Moulvibazar U14 district cricket team and guiding newly arrived cricketers in the UK to cricket pathway programmes.

Whenever the ECB want to consult on any issues related to Bangladesh, the media team contact Abdus as he has become a well known voice of Bangladeshi cricket in the UK. He appears regularly on TV as a commentator of Bangladeshi cricket.

In May 2023, the BCSA UK supported Essex Country Cricket Club to organise the Bangladesh vs Ireland matches at Chelmsford, Essex. Due to the influence of Abdus Salam, he was given the prestigious honour as the first official Bell Ringer during the ODI between Ireland and Bangladesh. This recognition has never been given to any Bangladeshi person before and that is why 2023 is the year of achievement for Abdus Salam.

Shapla Salique is a British Bangladeshi singer-songwriter and musician. She has been captivating audiences with her talent since early childhood.

At just 8 years of age Shapla became the lead singer in the first UK Bangladeshi musical group, Dishari Shilpi Ghosthi, a group originally founded by her father, Abdus Salique. Fronted by Shapla, Dishari Shilpi Ghosthi went on to perform at events across UK and Europe, and was frequently on national television throughout the eighties and nineties.

Shapla's first mainstream solo Bengali song 'Ziola' was released in the UK in 1996, under the music label 'Journeys by DJ'. 'Ziola' was remixed by the globally well-known DJ Judge Jules for his album 'Dance Wars'. 'Ziola' was followed by two diverse but equally well received solo albums; 'Siyono na Siyona' in 1997, a traditional folk oriented Bengali album, and in 2002, the Hindi pop album 'Lai Lai', produced and composed by Bappi Lahiri.

Shapla has performed at many prestigious venues including, The Royal Albert Hall, Hammersmith Apollo, Royal Ascot, the Barbican, and most recently at BBC Radio London, Houses of Parliament, Hackney Empire and at London's South Bank. She also held her recent solo concert at the prestigious world famous, Wilton's Music Hall, which was a huge success.

In 2014 Shapla was invited to speak and perform at a TEDx event - in front of a celebrity filled audience at the prestigious Queen Elizabeth Hall in Westminster. This was also streamed globally and watched by over a billion people.

Shapla's 3rd album was released in autumn 2015. Shapla is reaching out to new audiences, opening her music to contemporary interpretations, with a combination of Jazz and Funk, for a younger generation, while maintaining her core of loyal traditionalists. Shapla has also arranged, composed and produced this new album herself. Shapla has created a sound which is a perfect blend of East and West.

Valerie Ann Taylor was born on the 8th February 1944, in Bromley, Kent, UK to parents Marie and William Taylor.

Valerie is a Fellow of the Chartered Society of Physiotherapy (FCSP) and first came to Bangladesh with Voluntary Service Overseas (VSO) in 1969 to work as a physiotherapist in the Christian Hospital, Chandraghona in the Chittagong Hill Tracts, East Pakistan.

Her stay was interrupted by the War of Independence in 1971. During the war Valerie was evacuated but returned to the country in October 1971, two months before the liberation of Bangladesh.

Having grown up living close to the National Spinal Injuries Centre at Stoke Mandeville in England, she was very aware of the need for rehabilitation services for the disabled in Bangladesh.

In 1973 Valerie returned to England to raise funds to establish a rehabilitation centre for paralysed people. She stayed in England for two years before returning in 1975. It took another four years before CRP was able to admit its first patients in 1979. During this time, Valerie worked in the Shaheed Suhrawardy Hospital in Dhaka and it was in the grounds of this hospital that CRP had its first premises, two cement store rooms which were used to treat the first spinally injured patients. Rather like gypsies, having moved to three locations during the first eleven years, CRP then found a permanent home and moved to Savar in mid 1990 where the head office is situated.

Valerie's achievements have been recognized with various accolades. She received the OBE (Order of the British Empire) in 1995 from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth; the Bangladesh Independence Award in 2004; Honorary Doctorate Degree (2010), by York St John University, UK and The ONE Award 2013 by Rotary International. Nirafat Anam Memorial Inclusion Award (NAMI Award) 2015 by The Asian Centre for Inclusive Education (ACIE), In 1998 Valerie was granted Bangladeshi citizenship by the Government of Bangladesh.

Valerie has been legal guardian to two Bangladeshi girls for several years. She continues to live adjacent to the CRP-Savar premises with her younger adopted daughter, Poppy. While Joyti, the elder one works as a computer operator in the CRP office and lives next door.

Moin Uddin is a renowned businessman and a loving and caring family man. Son of Alhaj Ahad Uddin, Mr Uddin was born in 1966 in the village of Mathurapur of the number 4 Dhigalbak Union of Nabiganj, a sub district of Greater Sylhet. Though he is originally from Nabiganj, he resides permanently in Sadipur, Sylhet with his family.

Moin Uddin started his education in Dhigalbak Government Primary School. He went on to further his education in Dhigalbak High School, however, came to the UK with his family before completing his due. On arriving in the UK, he joined Leeds Roundhy High School from where he obtained his GCSE's (then known as GCE O- Levels). Mr Uddin then joined Kingston College to study A-levels, from where he went on to run his own business.

At present he has several businesses predominantly in the Surrey area. He is also the founder and owner of the Rose View Hotel. Rose View is the first five star rated hotel in Sylhet and also has the accolade of being the first five star rated hotel outside of the capital Dhaka.

Mr Uddin married Salema Uddin in 1988. Mrs Uddin is the daughter of Mokadas Ali of Ganganagar. The couple live in Surrey and are blessed with four children; two sons (Nasir and Naveed) and two daughters (Nasreen and Nafeesa). All of his children are currently in education.

Moin Uddin is also a dedicated community worker. He is the trustee of Surrey Muslim Centre and is also involved with the Bangladesh Caterers' Association and Nabiganj Education Trust among other associations.

Mohammed Shab Uddin is the CEO and Managing Director of the 'Beani Bazar Cancer and General Hospital' and one of its Founding Trustees. BBCGH is notably known as one of the first 'Cancer' focussed charitable projects in the Bangladeshi community. Since 2009, Mr Uddin has dedicated the majority of his time spearheading this Charity from a green field site to a multi story, fully operational general hospital with a dedicated cancer clinic that is open 24 hours a day to the public. The Charity has been able to successfully raise substantial funds with the help of the community and is continuously expanding its services and fulfilling its objectives.

Prior to Mr Uddin's involvement with BBCGH, he has been actively involved with a number of socio-cultural and charitable organisations of Beani Bazar both in the UK and in Bangladesh since a young age. Mr Uddin's UK life began in the early seventies after joining his father who had been here since 1942. Mr Uddin and his father were involved in various retail businesses before establishing the Tower Tandoori Restaurant in the Tower Bridge area. The family were able to successfully establish a mini chain of Indian Restaurants in the late 80s. Today, the Tower Tandoori is known as one of London's oldest Tandoori restaurants and celebrates its 40th Anniversary in 2018. The Farncombe Tandoori in Surrey, another restaurant opened by Mr Uddin and his father celebrates its 35th Year in business in 2018.

Mr Uddin's father was one of the first Bangladeshi landlords in the East End; he has also helped Mr Uddin invest in the Property Market in the UK and Bangladesh. Mr Uddin has since been able to expand his property business globally.

Mohammed Shab Uddin married Nilufa Begum in 1985 and they are blessed with three sons and one daughter. Syed Monsur Uddin is a journalist and columnist. Uddin began his career when he was a student at Dhaka College back in 1989. In his school days, he developed an interest in journalism as one of his uncles was a journalist himself. Having finished his studies at college, Uddin joined the Department of Political Science at the University of Dhaka and started contributing to the Weekly Ekota and Daily Bangla Bazar. He was the university reporter for both newspapers and was elected as an executive member of the Journalists' Association. During this period, he regularly contributed to other national dailies on issues related to politics, education and culture.

For a considerable period of time, he was attached to the first phone-in programme on BTv – Ovimot. The show was anchored by Md. Jahangir. The programme gave Uddin greater exposure to the social and natural realities of Bangladesh. After his Honours and Master's degree in Political Science from the University of Dhaka, he joined Bangla Bazar and became their senior reporter in 1996. Uddin came to England in 1997 and joined Bangla TV in 1999. He was with the newsroom of Bangla TV and contributed greatly to its growth and development. After a year with Bangla TV, he accepted the News Editor role at Weekly Surma in 2000, also serving as an Editor since 2006 to August 2013. For a brief period, he was the founding News Editor of Bangla Express – a short-lived weekly publication of Surma News Group.

In 2013, Uddin worked for the Tower Hamlets Labour Party as a Media Adviser and for British Bangladeshi MP Rushanara Ali's campaign team. From 2015 to 2022 he worked as a Political Adviser for John Biggs – the Executive Mayor of Tower Hamlets.

Currently he is working for health and social service in Epping Forest.

Uddin is an executive committee member of the London Press Club, and was part of the executive committee of Bishwo Shahitto Kendro in London. He was also a founding member of the institution. Appreciated as 'funny and lovely' by his son Sadaf, Uddin is from the village of Charabhanga in the Madhabpur Upazilla, Hobigonj. His father is Syed Muhammed Idris and his mother is Rafia Khatun Chowdhury. Uddin currently lives in Chigwell, Essex, with his wife, Hadi Jannah, and daughter, Shompreeti. His hobbies include reading, gardening, travelling and cooking.

Nobab joined Janomot in 1990 and became its Editor in 1997, a position he still holds. Janomot, the oldest ethnic Bengali newsweekly in Britain, was established on 21 February 1969 and has, with Nobab's diligence and dedication, become the leading popular newspaper within the Bangladeshi community in UK and Europe. His commitment to the journalistic integrity has ensured that Janomot continues to earn unparalleled respect across different members of the community. Having studied for his Bachelor of Science in Quantity Surveying Building & Construction, he continued his studies and obtained a Diploma in Construction Management. He started his career working within the construction industry, and continued his career progression in local government working for different local authorities and housing associations. He is currently working for a leading housing association in London at senior management level and is a member of several professional bodies.

Nobab is one of the founder members of the London Bangla Press Club. Established in 1991, it is an important association for Bangladeshi journalists in Britain. In addition to carrying out his role first as Treasurer of the Club, he was President from 2014-16.

Nobab is respected for his voluntary work across various community and charity organisations in London. From 1990 to 1994, he was the General Secretary of the largest Bengali organisation BWAG (Surma Centre) in Camden, North London. Indeed, his role as General Secretary was during a seminal time as the local British Bangladeshi community developed in London and he was instrumental in working with Camden Council to deliver a dedicated building for the Surma Centre.

Nobab is the Chief Adviser of the historic Bangladesh Centre in Notting Hill, an active associate of London Borough Tower Hamlets 'Boishaki Mela Engagement Group' and is also an Adviser of the 'British Bangladeshi Power & Inspiration 100'. He has loved sport from an early age, representing his school and district at national level in both badminton and athletics in Bangladesh. This keen interest in sports led to him forming the Bengali Sports Council in UK 1988, in support of National Sports Council. He was founder Secretary of this organisation, encouraging and motivating youths to take an active part in sports. The engagement between community and youth centres was instrumental in helping British Bangladeshis integrate into both the wider community during the turbulent 80s in London as well as mainstream British sports culture. He helped create and foster a family atmosphere in this organization, which crucially continues to serve as a social networking space for other British Asian groups as well.

During the early eighties he formed Link Promotions, a cultural and promotional organisation, which has been performing plays and cultural shows in the UK. Since 1982, Nobab has written and successfully staged several plays across the country to critical acclaim. His status as playwright and director has had, perhaps, the most tangible impact within the British Bangladeshi community. His productions appeal directly to Bangladeshis and Nobab is unflinching in reflecting profound social dilemmas and tackling taboo subjects, such as forced marriages and drug use in the British Bangladeshi community.

He has published five books, and edited three, including The Racist Murder of Altab Ali, which was important in highlighting the senseless murder of a Bengali East End, garment worker in 1978.

Nobab Uddin is married with two children.

In Bangladesh, he has working as the Chairman and Chief Coordinator of the Sylhet Women's Medical College and Hospital, a Trustee of the Bangladesh Female Academy, and an advisor to the Atish Dipankar University of Science & Technologies in Dhaka.

Mr. Kamal Yakub as he is commonly known hails from Sylhet and lives in Surrey. He came to the UK as a full time student in 1972 soon after independence of Bangladesh. He passed 'A' Levels in Pure Maths, Applied Maths and Physics from Paddington Technical College London. Later, Mr. Yakub completed a full time 3 year Degree Course at University College London (UCL) and successfully obtained a degree in Engineering in 1977. Worked for some time in Burma Oil Company's Research Centre in Bracknell. In 1980 he started his own restaurant business in Worcester Park, Surrey and has since been in the catering trade till to date with different outlets. Mr. Yakub is the current National President of Bangladesh Caterers Association UK Ltd, popularly known as BCA. This organisation has been running for 58 years since inception and is the oldest and largest of its kind.

Mr Yakub first joined BCA in 1986 and has always remained with BCA as an active member both regionally and nationally. He served as Secretary of 'BCA Surrey Region' and then during the last term Mr. Yakub was the President of BCA Surrey Region. Prior to being elected as the 'National President' of BCA in May 2017 (for a term of 2 years) he had been a Senior Vice President continuously for a few terms in a row. Mr. Yakub held the responsibility as the Convener of BCA's Annual Award & Dinner Committee over the last few years (upto Nov 2016) requiring a substantial amount of activities and experience. During the Presidency of Mr. Mahmadar Rashid, Mr Yakub headed a team to represent BCA to Sheffield Home Office officials where a round table talk was held regarding 'Sector Based Scheme'. BCA was consulted as stakeholders by the Home Office since the beginning of introducing this pilot scheme. Unfortunately and unfairly the scheme did not continue for countries outside the European Union. BCA is still lobbying for its reintroduction.

During the Presidency of Mr. Bajloor Rashid MBE he was Head of the Action Committee for the historic 'static demonstration' held at Trafalgar Square in 2008. He later with a few senior BCA Members represented BCA with Migration Advisory Committee (MAC) in the Home Office which successfully brought about the inclusion of Bangladeshi skilled Chefs and Managers in the 'Shortage Occupation List', SOL of the Points Based System. Outside BCA, Mr. Yakub has been a Trustee and Secretary of Surrey Muslim Centre in Addlestone, Surrey since 2006. He is also involved in other community related voluntary works. He is a senior adviser for 'Surrey Muslim Funeral Services' which is a voluntary organisation. As a person, he is a man of principle and a thorough gentleman and is liked by both the younger and the older generations.

Mr. Yakub is married with 2 sons and a daughter. The eldest son is a civil Engineer who currently works in Saudia Arabia, the daughter is a school teacher and the youngest son is an IT consultant.

Sabbir Zamee is a distinguished entrepreneur, dedicated community leader, and committed public servant. His contributions have left a significant impact on the British-Bangladeshi community and beyond. Born in Dhaka, Bangladesh, Zamee comes from a family with a strong legacy in medicine and philanthropy. His father, Dr. Md. Shaidullah, was a highly respected doctor and principal at several of Bangladesh's premier medical institutions, including Dhaka Medical College, Rangpur Medical College, Barisal Medical College, and the prestigious PG Hospital. His mother, Jahanara Begum, was a renowned philanthropist whose charity work in Dhaka touched countless lives. Growing up as the youngest of five siblings in such an environment, Zamee was instilled with values of service, leadership, and community responsibility from an early age.

Zamee's journey in the United Kingdom began in 2005 when he became a resident of the Thames View Ward in the London Borough of Barking and Dagenham. His integration into the local community was swift and impactful, marked by his active involvement in various socio-political and cultural organizations. A dedicated member of the Labour Party, Zamee's commitment to public service culminated in his election as Councillor for the Thames View Ward. Beyond his political career, Zamee has made significant strides as an entrepreneur. He is the founder and Managing Director of 'Z Coach & Tours Limited,' a well-regarded transport provider that serves the British-Bangladeshi community. Under his leadership, 'Z Coach London,' a subsidiary of the company, has expanded to operate seven different routes, transporting over 200 students to leading grammar schools across London. The company's fleet of ten Euro VI coaches and a dedicated team of over 10 staff members ensure that students receive reliable and safe transportation. Additionally, Z Coach & Tours Ltd offers affordable UK and European tours during school holidays, making travel accessible to a wider audience. Zamee's entrepreneurial success is a testament to his ability to identify community needs and create sustainable businesses that address those needs.

Zamee's leadership extends well beyond his business ventures. He has served as the Secretary of the Thames View Muslim Association for nearly a decade, showcasing his unwavering commitment to the spiritual and social well-being of his community. In this role, he has played a pivotal part in organizing religious, cultural, and educational programs that enrich the lives of the community members. His leadership is also evident in his role as the Chair of the Thames View Tenant & Residents Association, where he advocates for the rights and interests of local residents, ensuring their voices are heard in local governance.

Zamee's family shares his commitment to excellence and service. His son, Ishraq, is currently pursuing an undergraduate degree, continuing the family's legacy in the field of business. His daughter, Aniya, is thriving in grammar school, reflecting the importance of education within the family. His wife, Ishrat Jahan Zamee Kumu, is actively involved in the UK's Bangladeshi cultural sector and works in a local school, contributing to the community's cultural and educational fabric.

Despite his numerous professional and personal responsibilities, Zamee remains deeply engaged in charitable and socio-cultural activities. He is an active member of several alumni organizations both in the UK and Bangladesh, which allows him to maintain strong ties with his roots while contributing to the development of his adopted home.

In sum, Sabbir Zamee is a multi-faceted leader whose work as an entrepreneur, public servant, and community advocate has had a profound and lasting impact on his community.

Naufal Zamir is a successful entrepreneur, a dedicated businessman and a committed leader. He arrived in the UK in 1999, equipped with a degree in law from Dhaka University, and started down the same path as his legally-adept family.

His father, brother and sister are all legal professionals, and by 2003, Mr Zamir had completed his LLB at London University, qualified as a Barrister-at-Law and was called to the bar by the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn. Armed with only a laptop and a fax machine, Mr Zamir set off on a mission to create a business that would challenge him, test him and push him to grow as a person, a businessman and a leader. It was from those humble beginnings in 2004 that he founded Zamir Telecom.

In the company's short history, it has achieved phenomenal growth in all three of its serving sectors and has established itself as a trusted name in the international wholesale market, a well-recognised brand in the retail market and a respected service in the corporate sector. Recently, Zamir Telecom has soared to new heights, being named amongst the fastest-growing UK tech companies in the Sunday Times' Tech Track 100 in 2011 and 2012.

It has expanded its operations in Middle East, South Asia, South-East Asia, Africa and North America and notably, the company has expanded exponentially, year after year, in spite of rough economic trends globally. One of Mr Zamir's forte is public speaking and he has addressed audiences in award ceremonies, events and congregations of industry peers at the highest level. With all his success, Mr Zamir continues to dedicate himself to furthering his education and development as businessman.

He has attended the LSE Summer Courses in Leadership and Entrepreneurship and regularly attends seminars and events relevant to successful personalities.

Mr Zamir has worked alongside a broad range of consultants - whose areas of expertise range from finance and management to technology and regulatory - and is an active member of the entrepreneur community around the world.
